Yanks Capture Metz; French Storm Belfort

THREE POWERS DRAFT WORLD AVIATION PLAN

Expect 54 Nations to Approve It.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

Delegations from the United States, Great Britain, and Canada at the international civil aviation conference in the Stevens hotel last night submitted a 21 page preliminary draft for a world aviation authority. The draft left unanswered the important questions of whether air traffic between nations shall be divided up by an international body and how much freedom of flight shall be allowed to aircraft traveling to other nations. This document, with those questions still to be solved, probably will be approved by all of the 54 nations' delegations and become the basis for whatever plan is finally adopted.

The document, turned over last night to all of the other delegations, was the work of eight straight days of conferences and drafting by the "big three" nations at the conference, to whom the final task of deciding political and economic problems of world aviation after the war was assigned.

Follows Days of Work.

It represents days of compromises, arguments, concessions, and repeated consultations with some governments.

When the two important missing sections of the draft have been completed, only approval by the plenary session of the assembly, expected tomorrow morning, is required to wind up the work. The conference also will draft interim machinery to govern commercial flying from the time the war ends until the permanent draft may be ratified. This will follow closely the provisions of the permanent draft, conference spokesmen have said.

"Equality of Opportunity."

The preamble of the document states this purpose for the international organization:

"The governments which sign this convention have agreed on certain principles and arrangements in order that international aviation may be developed on the basis of equality of opportunity and that the international air transport service may be established and operated soundly and economically."

The draft contains these important provisions:

1. Bi-lateral agreements between nations or between a nation and a single air line company may be negotiated.

2. Tariffs for international air passenger and freight traffic shall be determined by groups of air line operators—the so-called "company conference"—at a "reasonable level" with the international organization empowered to review and

Jap Homeland Industries Hit by Super Forts

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21 [Tuesday]—(AP).—"A large task force" of B-29 Super Fortress bombers hit the Island of Kyushu in Japan's homeland today. Announcement of the attack read:

"A large task force of B-29 aircraft from the 20th air force today attacked industrial targets on the Island of Kyushu, in the Japanese homeland, Gen. H. H. Arnold, in his capacity as commanding general of the 20th air force, announced at the war department.

"The mission was carried out from China bases by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 20th bomber command. A communique will be issued when further details are available."

Kyushu is the southernmost of the Japanese home islands. On it is Omura, a big aircraft center. Omura was among the spots hits Nov. 11 when the Super Fortresses completed their seventh mission in 27 days.

Stop Japs in Typhoon.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Nov. 21 [Tuesday] (AP).—Lashed by the third typhoon of the Leyte Island campaign, American infantrymen fought off a new Japanese counter-attack and continuous armor-led pressure to close their grip around trapped enemy remnants in northern Ormoc corridor, headquarters reported today.

Fierce winds and walls of rain hammered the fronts, disrupted communications, and challenged Leyte-based American airmen.

The 32d division is making steady progress in reducing strongly fortified Japanese positions near Limon, headquarters reported.

U. S. Road Block Holds.

The American road block across Ormoc highway south of Limon still holds, despite heavy Japanese attack. The Yanks repulsed another enemy counter-attack west of Ormoc rd., where a three hour bloody battle was reported yesterday.

Bridges have been washed out, streams flooded and roads transformed into waterways, headquarters said. All traffic by ground and sea is "fraught with great difficulty and hazard, and battle conditions are becoming static."

Japs Attack in North.

The Japanese were reported in a front line dispatch yesterday to be infiltrating American positions on northern Leyte, around Limon and near Carigara bay, more than two miles northward.

Small enemy forces attacked near Pinamopoan, two miles north and in the rear of Limon, where a considerable Nipponese force is trapped, and also east of Pinamopoan. Both attacks were repulsed.

Near Pinamopoan, northern terminus of the strategic Ormoc road, a battalion of the 32d division beat off the enemy assault, reported Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent.

The other clash occurred near Capoocan, along the Carigara bay coast four miles east of Pinamopoan. There Nipponese units had set up machine guns which opened fire on an American column trudging toward the front.

Bag 118 Jap Planes.

PACIFIC HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Nov. 20 (AP).—In their fourth strike in force this month at the Manila area, United States carrier planes Saturday destroyed 118 Japanese planes and set fire to two large cargo ships and one large oil tanker, Adm. Nimitz announced today. Ten planes were shot down in the air, eight others destroyed by fighters near the American carriers, and 100 destroyed on the ground.

WILDCATS WIN OVER TRUANT OFFICER IN A HEIR RAISIN' CRISIS

Vanceburg, Ky., Nov. 20 [Special].—Until school authorities import some dogs that "ain't afear'd" to track down the catamounts of Martin Holler, the children of Farmer Joseph [Popoff] Johnson will stay home from school.

Conceding that "we can't have any children chewed up by a wildcat," Lewis County School Supt. Thomas W. Rowland today gave Johnson permission to keep his children home while the wildcats are on the loose. The children are Louis, 12; Selby, 10, and Edward, 16. The Johnson's mountain home is three miles from the schoolhouse at Queen's, "along a branch and down a holler."

"Our own dogs is cowed," Johnson told Rowland. "They starts to whine when they hears the cateymounts. Myself, I've never been afeared of man nor beast, but when that old cateymount yowls near our house it makes my hair stand plumb straight up on my head."

NUBBINS TO GET EXAMINATION BY DENVER DOCTOR

Denver, Colo., Nov. 20 (AP).—Swathed in blankets, Forest [Nubbins] Hoffman, Cheyenne, Wyo., boy whose early Christmas yesterday attracted nation-wide attention, arrived at a Denver hospital tonight.

Nubbins and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hoffman, and the child's doctor, Dr. G. B. Savory, made the 100 mile trip from Cheyenne by automobile. An examination will be made tomorrow by a Denver urologist, who asked that his name be withheld.

Dr. Savory said he didn't think the trip to the hospital would do any good, but that they were trying everything. He said the child was "in pretty bad shape."

The child's father, in reply to a question, said that Nubbins felt "terrible."

A Family Beats Retreat in Home Front Disaster

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 20 (AP).—The gravities of war caught up with the Paul Fisher family this week. Their radio, vintage 1939, went to pieces first. Then Mrs. Fisher discovered a part of her washing machine "smashed." The sweeper also made a most peculiar noise. Mr. Fisher arrived at that stage and his wife remarked, "At least the icebox works." Whereupon Fisher opened the icebox and the door fell off.

Maybe Judy'll Forget, but Store?—Never!

BY GAYLE WARNOCK.

Judy, a temperamental elephant masquerading as Eddie, the hero in a new children's book, went on a sit-down strike in Marshall Field & Co.'s store last night for what the store officials called "five long hours."

The 3,000 pound behemoth was brought to Chicago from the Terrell Jacobs circus in Sheboygan, Wis., as a publicity stunt and appeared in the store's book section for two hours yesterday autographing books. Judy used a rubber hand stamp which she held in her trunk.

When 4 o'clock came, and it was time for Judy to leave, she walked peacefully enough thru the book section, thru the rug section, and into the biggest freight elevator in the store. It was the same elevator she had ridden up on, but she apparently remembered the ride, and disliked it, because she hurriedly backed out.

Trapped in Oriental Splendor.

Women and children scrambled for vantage points. Some one closed the emergency fire doors and Judy was trapped among oriental and Navajo rugs.

Capt. Henry Thompson, Judy's trainer, attempted without success to coax the 12 year old animal into the elevator, but Judy went thru all her tricks instead. She, the witnesses said, was having a time.

Faced with harboring an elephant for the night, and perhaps several days, officials telephoned the Brookfield zoo. They learned that Judy probably would walk downstairs safely if the carpenters would build a ramp. While three stories of ramp were constructed down the fire stairs, some one rushed a half bale of hay to the third floor, and someone else sent Judy a loaf of bread.

Judy's a Startling Sight!

After she had finished her hay sandwiches, Judy spied some Indian corn hanging as a decorative piece on the wall. She wanted it, and harassed executives gave her two ears—all they had.

At 9 p. m., when sweating maintenance men completed their work, Judy stepped gingerly onto the ramp, with Capt. Thompson following. There was some slipping and jostling, but Judy made the three flights in three minutes, and walked out of a Wabash av. doorway. Startled Chicagoans blinked twice and hastened behind parked cars.

With Capt. Thompson leading the way, Judy, flanked on each side by a professional handler, walked down the sidewalk to Washington st., thence west to State st., and then south to Harrison st., where she was bedded down for the night in one of Rand-McNally's storerooms—the same room in which she had been kept Sunday night and where she had a whale of a time with some new maps of the European theater of war.

Judy was scheduled to make a two day stand at the Marshall Field book store, but when it began to seem that she might stay over night, Miss Mildred Carroll, of the publicity department, announced that the second day would be canceled.

DORIS DUKE'S RENO DIVORCE SUSTAINED BY COURT DECISION

Reno, Nev., Nov. 20 (AP).—District Judge William McKnight concluded in effect late today that Doris Duke Cromwell was a bona fide resident of Nevada when she obtained a divorce here last December from James H. R. Cromwell, one time United States minister to Canada.

A New Jersey court has ruled that neither she nor Cromwell were residents of this state. William Woodburn, the tobacco heiress' lawyer, told the court that his client had been a bona fide Nevada resident since July 25, 1943.

Judge McKnight essentially ruled the New Jersey verdict null and void, but set the matter aside until Nov. 27 to "prepare findings of fact and conclusions of law."

He said he had studied all the depositions offered and had concluded that the motion to amend all proceedings "should be granted and is granted."

IKE'S ARMIES CRACK GERMAN LINE FROM LUXEMBURG TO SWITZERLAND

Maquis Battle to River Frontier at 3 Points.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE FRENCH 1ST ARMY IN ALSACE, Near the Rhine River, Nov. 20.—Battalions of the French Forces of the Interior tonight are keeping the watch on the Rhine after the 1st army had reached the river at three points—Kembs, Rosenau, and Huningen, north of Basel, Switzerland.

It was an alert watch, a perilous watch, because the big guns of the Germans' Siegfried line defenses, flush with the east bank of the Rhine in this sector, were hurling shells across the water.

But after four years of Nazi domination the task dearest to the heart of the French warrior is to stand guard on his country's eastern frontier river. The Maquis patriots, who had fought so well, were named for the assignment by Gen. Jean de Latre de Tassigny, commanding the French 1st army.

French Storm Into Belfort.

Another great event of this notable day was the entrance of French units into Belfort, the city of forts athwart the pass which leads from eastern France into Alsace and southwestern Germany. Elements of the French 1st armored division and the 9th Zouave regiment broke in from the west—this is believed to be the first time in history, certainly in modern and medieval annals—that the city was stormed.

French armor and infantry reconnaissance units first reached the Rhine late yesterday at Kembs, site of the dam which was bombed by British Lancasters several weeks ago. The French opened fire with their American 105 mm. howitzers for their first artillery shots across the Rhine into the German fatherland. The response was quick, too, from Siegfried fortification guns.

All day today columns of French tanks bowled across the southern plain of Alsace toward the great river in pouring rain. But the tanks wouldn't be denied. They went along roads and thru fields with great upheavals of mud and water. Motorized infantry moved with them.

Maledictions on Germans.

The French soldiers were chanting and hurling maledictions at the Germans. Hearing a report that some Germans were pocketed in the Basel sector, a colonel gleefully shouted something unprintable about what he hoped would happen to them.

Thru late afternoon and tonight tanks and infantry wended toward the Rhine and the pace of action increased there, altho it can't yet be called a full fledged battle. It was mostly an artillery duel, guns carving flashes in the starless sky, but there also were occasional exchanges of small arms fire.

GESTAPO CHIEF GRIM, SURLY AS HE SURRENDERS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN METZ, France, Nov. 20.—All organized German resistance in Metz has ceased altho late today there still was heavy fighting by scattered bands of Nazis in addition to sniper fire in some parts of the city.

Six hundred prisoners were taken today by the 5th division alone, including Maj. Gen. Anton Dunckern, an SS [elite guard] officer in charge of military police for the whole area.

Five major Metz forts still were holding out, including Privat, just west of the city, which today refused the surrender demand made by an American emissary riding in a tank flying the white flag.

Cross in Small Boats.

Fifth and 95th division troops poured into the town today from the north, east, and west, some of them making the river crossing in small boats about 7 a. m. The Germans soon were surrendering wholesale, with the Nazi general and Col. Constantine Meyer, 44, military administrator for the city, getting their bids in early.

Maj. Gen. Dunckern and Col. Meyer—the latter still accompanied by his orderly—were loaded into open jeeps and driven off in the rain toward the rear. Meyer could have been any middle aged shopkeeper, but Dunckern was strictly a nasty piece of goods.

This high official of Heinrich Himmler's secret police was a swaggering, bull necked character, who every one, including the American interpreter who inspected his papers, instinctively disliked. He was still defiant as tho the superman myth was dying hard, but he had one very apparent weakness—an antipathy for being photographed. Whenever any one came near with a camera, Dunckern's fat face was turned some other direction.

At Gestapo Headquarters.

If you wanted to make a caricature of a Gestapo type you could find no better material than Dunckern drawn from life.

Gestapo headquarters in Metz had a series of tiny cells in the basement and on top of the house was a little attic room whose floor was covered with sand. The only furniture was a single chair planted under a skylight window. The unanimous opinion of those who saw the room was that it was here that Nazi Gestapo men questioned suspects.

Metz would have reminded one of Paris except that the wild enthusiasm with which the Parisians had greeted the Americans definitely was not present.

Ninetieth division troops in 24 hours captured 600 Germans in a carefully laid trap as the latter tried to escape from Metz. One of the officers in charge of the ambush was Lt. Scott Lyons, Jeffersonville, Ind. Midwesterners seen in Metz today included Pvt. Mitchell McConkey, Milwaukee, Wis., and Corp. John W. Waller, Sadorus, Ill.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—The United States 3d army plunged two miles into Germany's rich Saar industrial basin in a new invasion of the reich today—a momentous one for allied arms that saw the French, in the greatest break-thru since Normandy, storm in force to the Rhine at three places near the Swiss frontier.

A supreme headquarters dispatch said the sweeping advances had turned the German southern flank and cracked the enemy line from Luxemburg to Switzerland.

The great fortress of Metz had been overrun, and far to the south outflanked Belfort—like Metz a French fortress immune to capture for centuries—rocked under the attack of French colonial Zouaves fighting inside the city.

[A British broadcasting corporation broadcast recorded in New York said Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced officially last night "the fortress of Belfort has fallen."]

Smashes 20 Miles in 24 Hours.

Once more the French and Germans were trading shots across the Rhine for the first time since early in the war.

The Paris radio said a French armored division, which smashed 20 miles in 24 hours to the Rhine, was assaulting the French city of Mulhouse in a rampage up the Rhineland valley against the exposed southern flank of the German armies.

Reports from Switzerland said the French were throwing a bridge across the Rhine for an imminent new invasion of Germany, and another unconfirmed report from the frontier said American troops had occupied Mulhouse.

Artillery fire could be heard in Basel, Switzerland, and German troops and long lines of civilians could be seen fleeing toward the Rhine.

Vosges Towns Fall to 7th.

The United States 7th and the French 1st armies were on the march northward all along an 80 mile front that had its right flank on the Swiss frontier.

In the drive to the Rhine the French captured Altkirch, eight miles southwest of Mulhouse, and the frontier towns of Hirsingue, Tagsdorff and Steinsoultz in the Altkirch area.

Limited gains were made in the Gerardmer region of the French 1st army's front. Northwest of Belfort, the French pushed one mile northeast from Chapagney and the village of Plancher-bas.

A dispatch from an American command post near Saarburg, France, said the Rhine-bent American 7th army, driving 12 miles in less than 24 hours, reached the approaches of Saarburg, 32 miles from the Rhine.

Drive Along Main Highway.

Driving along the main Paris-to-Strasbourg highway, a two-lane pavement, the 7th army was within 14 miles of the Saverne gap, one of the main corridors thru the Vosges mountains to the Rhine plain.

Spotty resistance of the last two days indicated a general German withdrawal thruout the 7th's northern sector. Heavy rainfall restricted air support.

Iowan in Forefront.

Lt. Lyle Hoyt, Rockville City, Ia., led the first American patrol to the approaches of Saarburg.

"We had the Jerries on the run, but when they saw Americans all around they turned and fought like cornered rats," Hoyt said. "I plopped behind a coal pile. When the Jerries quit shooting at me the pile was about half its original size."

More than 20 villages were captured in the 7th's lunge of Saarburg. Since the offensive started the 7th has captured more than 3,000 prisoners. It now can be dis-

Yanks' Smokes Cut Off in Britain

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—Sale of cigarets will be discontinued immediately at all United States army post exchanges in England with the exception of those at air force combat stations. A critical shortage for use of combat forces on the continent caused the shutdown of sales, the army said. English brands cost about 50 cents for a package of 20.

Hospital patients, replacements, and combat personnel in rest areas still will be able to smoke their favorite brands from the United States. British soldiers are rationed 45 English cigarets a week.

$4 a Pack in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP).—The supreme allied command tonight promised to try to report to the American public on the cigaret situation in Paris and many other rear areas where soldiers were told today they could get no cigarets, altho the black market has them for sale at $4 a pack. Officials said earlier today they expected troops in the rear areas to get some smokes next week.

FIGHT TO DEATH VOW PRESCRIBED FOR NAZI TROOPS

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—The German people tonight were told by their chief commentators that they must strive with all their might to prevent an allied victory on the western front by Christmas, and a new "fight to the death" oath was prescribed for all German soldiers.

The new "vow of loyalty," as broadcast by the German radio, exacts from German soldiers this pledge:

"I am determined to give all my strength, my blood, and my life in the present decisive battle for the life of my nation. . . . I will never abandon the arms which the homeland is forging for me with the utmost sacrifice. I will see that nothing falls into the enemy's hands undestroyed. I believe in Germany. As a National Socialist [Nazi] soldier I believe in my Fuehrer Hitler."

closed that the 44th division is operating with the 7th army.

Among the towns liberated between Blamont and Saarburg are: St. Georges, Aspach, Ibigny, Richeval, Hattigny, Heming, Landange, Lorquin, La Neuveville, Fraquelfing, and Neiderhoff. East of Blamont towns taken were Taconville, Cirey, Bertrambois, La Frimbole, and Valet-Chatillon.

Push on Thru Mines.

The 7th scored other impressive gains along its 50 mile front. The village of Le Trouche, a mile and a half east of Raon l'Etape, was occupied and just south of St. Die the village of Foucharupt. In the southern sector the 7th pushed three and a half miles eastward thru mines and rugged terrain, occupying Anould, Develin, and Gerbepal.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 10th armored division tanks rumbled two miles into the Saar basin—source of steel and coal for the German war machine—and were within two miles of the German town of Merzig, on the Saar river.

Northwest of these forces, mechanized cavalry prowled five miles into Germany up the Moselle river valley, ancient gateway to the Rhineland, moving at least a mile beyond Nenning.

Advance East of Metz.

East of Metz, armor and infantry were forging an assault ring along a 25 mile front from nine to 12 miles west and south of the Saar frontier.

Striking northeast of Metz, the 90th infantry division in a mile advance approached Roupeldange, 10 miles from the border and nearly 20 miles southwest of where Patton's tanks broke into the basin.

In the 12th corps area southeast of Metz the 80th division reached Guessling, 20 miles from Saarbrucken, and was within two miles of Faulquemont.

The 35th division approached Hellimer, 10 miles from the German border, after a thrust of six miles had captured Lelling, 18 miles from Saarbrucken. This force also pushed four miles north of the Benestroff railway junction and entered Francaltroff.

The 26th division swept thru Dieuze and entered Guinzeling, seven miles to the northeast.

Gain in Aachen Area.

The German stand also appeared to be approaching the breaking point in the north, where the British 2d and the United States 1st and 9th armies pushed one to two miles deeper into Germany. The 1st army at one point was 28 miles from Cologne.

[A Stockholm dispatch quoting a report from Berlin said that the Americans east of Aachen were attacking with 200,000 troops and 1,000 tanks and had beaten halfway thru the Siegfried line.]

A dispatch from United States 1st army front in Germany said American infantry thrust into the western outskirts of Eschweiler as other doughboys pressed from the northwest and southwest into the fringes of that city 30 miles west of Cologne.

Other forces beat forward two miles to the southeast of Eschweiler and seized the towns of Wenau and Heister, six miles from Duren on the Roer river. Another force of infantry struck into Wenau forest, north of the Hurtgen.

9th Army Moves Ahead.

The United States 9th army in gains of one to two miles fought into Freialdenhoven, 4½ miles west of the Roer river stronghold of Julich, and into Gereonsweiler in the same sector four miles east of Geilenkirchen.

The British 2d army on the northern flank, in gains of up to two miles beyond captured Geilenkirchen, fought in the major fortifications of the Siegfried line and captured Tripsrath.

Farther north Lt. Gen. Dempsey's troops on the Netherlands front continued their advance along the Meijel-Helden road against only rearguard opposition and were within approximately a mile of Venlo. North of Venlo they drew up to the Helena canal and advanced approximately half a mile along the Eindhoven-Venlo railroad to the outskirts of America.

Some Planes in Action.

Despite bad weather United States fighter-bombers attacked Aldenhoven, 12 miles north of Aachen, and hurled explosives on German transport in the path of the 3d army in the Saarlautern, Merzig, and Saargemunde areas.

Medium bombers, flying to head off retreat of the Germans across the Rhine before the French army, attacked a bridge across the stream at Neuenberg, east of Mulhouse.

BRITISH TO BREAK UP FOUR LIBERTY SHIPS DAMAGED IN COMBAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—American Liberty ships are being broken up in British ports because they have been damaged so severely as to be useless for further cargo operations, but not to save British firms from the challenge of American shipping after the war, shipping authorities said today.

At present four or five such vessels which had been made "total losses" by enemy action during combat operations are awaiting dismantling, it was disclosed.

It was considered probable the steel salvaged from each ship will be retained on this side of the ocean for further use. There would be no advantage in shipping it back to America and then returning it here as finished war material when that operation could be handled here, it was said.

1ST JAP FARMER RETURNS TO HIS CALIFORNIA LAND

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 20 [Special].—James K. Yamamoto, a Japanese-American farmer who with 112,000 other persons of Japanese ancestry was evacuated from the west coast in 1942, was resettled without incident today on his six acre berry patch near Cupertino, 50 miles below this city.

He was the first farmer to be readmitted by the army authorities to the San Francisco Bay area.

2,000 AMERICAN PLANES ATTACK GERMANY AGAIN

LONDON, Nov. 20 (AP).—About 2,000 American planes raided Germany again today, bombing two synthetic oil plants, wrecking a railway yard and strafing retreating Nazi troops with cannon. Royal air force Lancasters followed the United States blows with a strike into the industrial Ruhr, attacking unannounced objectives.

More than 600 Liberators and Flying Fortresses from the Italian based United States 15th air force bombed the Blechhammer oil works in Upper Silesia. One hundred and sixty American heavies from 8th air force bases in England attacked the Schelven-Buer synthetic oil plant at Gelsenkirchen.

After these two blows, 1,000 fighter planes descended from their escort chores to work over communications inside the Siegfried line and the Brenner pass.

remarked. "Then we were the ones who had to hold, and now it's the —— Germans, who must defend what they call the fatherland."

Motoring eastward thru the Belfort gap no landmark or barrier was noted to indicate the transition from France proper to Alsace.

Adorned with Three Flags.

Coutelevant was still France, with signposts in French and the natives jabbering excitedly and the little brick houses standing picturesquely adorned with American and British flags and the French tricolor. A road marker read Seppois, a few kilometers father east.

Then suddenly down the road was a sign reading Setp [the German name for Seppois] and legends in German script, and sober faced natives and dead Germans lying beside smashed 88 mm. guns between houses of wood and plaster with their green shutters closed. And this was Alsace.

Children came forth shyly from a building marked, "Schul und Rathaus"—a little way west that would have been, "Ecole et Hotel de Ville" [school and city hall].

Children Speak Only German.

Those children talked German—their parents told us that all youngsters who learned to speak since the German occupation in 1940 spoke only German. The Nazis, who tried to Germanize Alsace completely in accordance with their assertion that the province is part of Germany, forbade the use of the French language and older persons dared use the Gallic tongue only in their homes.

The French flag was being raised in Seppois and German swastika banners were being torn down. Some houses had been hit by shells but damage wasn't too heavy. The Germans had pulled out late yesterday. Few have been captured by the French in the last few days.

Our greeting was very matter of fact, the Alsatians showing none of the exuberance which had been displayed in Montbeliard and other towns farther west. Alsace has been tossed about between Germany and France several times since 1870 and German customs are as much part of the older folks' lives as French customs.

Belfort Cleanup Goes On.

The attitude experienced in Seppois was duplicated in other Alsatian towns as we traveled east toward the Rhine.

As this was written tonight Belfort had not yet been cleared of all the enemy. There were roving parties of Germans in the eastern edge of the city and just beyond, and French artillery was thundering at a semicircle of forts on the east to subdue them completely.

The French fought thru stiff opposition at Fort Salbert and the village of Essert, just west of Belfort, to break their way in. Of the some 15 to 20 forts encircling Belfort, about half were employed by the Germans for storage purposes after the 1940 occupation and others were reinforced by anti-tank and other defenses.

ANTWERP PORT TO OPEN SOON, ADMIRAL SAYS

SUPREME HDQS., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 20 (AP).—The great Belgian port of Antwerp will be open soon with facilities to supply the allied offensive, Adm. Ramsay said today.

Altho in allied hands for two months, its use has been denied by German pockets along the Schelde estuary, now eliminated, and by mines in the river and around its mouth. Gen. Eisenhower's naval commander said the naval forces were using all their resources in clearing the Schelde.

"These figure indicate the magnitude of the task," Ramsay said, "the channel which has to be swept is 73 miles long. At Flushing [Vlissingen], it is approximately a mile wide, and thereafter it varies in width from about 300 to 1,400 yards. In addition to this, in the port itself there are approximately 3,600,000 square yards of dock basins, all of which have to receive attention."

BELGIAN PATRIOT CHIEFS AGREE TO GIVE UP ARMS

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 20 (AP).—The chiefs of Belgium's various resistance organizations agreed today to deliver all the arms of the resistance forces to the allied armies by Saturday and concurred in the procedure by which the weapons will be surrendered.

Meeting with Maj. Gen. George W. E. J. Erskine and other officials of the supreme allied headquarters mission to Belgium, the resistance leaders agreed their organizations would deliver the arms at a designated depot. In view of the transportation difficulties the armies will send trucks to pick up the weapons when necessary.

Surrender of the arms by members of the resistance forces is in response to an order by the Belgian government which has led to organized protests thruout the country.

FOUR BOLIVIANS EXECUTED FOR PLOT TO REVOLT

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Nov. 20 (AP).—Four men were executed today in the city of Oruro for an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government of President Gualberto Villaroel, it was announced by the government radio.

They were identified as Colonels Eduardo Blanco and Fernando Garron and two civilians, Miguel Brito and Fernando Loyaza Beltran. A government bulletin said loyal troops had entered Oruro and "received a hearty ovation from the people."

KILLED 63 JUST TO BE PATRIOTIC, DR. PETIOT SAYS

Testifies He's Scourge But No Bluebeard.

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP).—Dr. Marcel Petiot admitted on the witness stand today the slaying of 63 persons—30 of whom he said were Gestapo agents and the rest "traitorous" Frenchmen—as court hearings opened in one of Paris' most mysterious cases.

Petiot wove a story of intrigue, plots, and counter-plots that extended into three continents and many nations, including the United States. Included in his testimony was mention of a "secret weapon" which he said he once had offered to the American consul, but which he said had been turned down.

Weapon a Secret.

The defendant—charged with the 63 deaths—freely admitted the slayings before Judge Collety and said all met their deaths thru "a secret method."

Petiot—who says he holds a captaincy in the French forces of the interior—said he might disclose later in the week details of his secret weapon which would have permitted America and Britain to fire on German occupied Europe at a time when the channel was still a big obstacle.

The undismayed Petiot—so his story in court ran—formed an organization which specialized in stamping out denunciators and also planned to smuggle patriots over the French border into Spain.

"Patriotic Scourge."

Far from being the cold blooded Bluebeard described on police station posters, the bearded Petiot said he really became a patriotic scourge to traitors and Gestapo agents. He and an aid tried out the "secret arm," which he expected would be most effective in rubbing out the Gestapo, on two German motorcyclists in Paris, and it worked, he said.

It worked 63 times, he testified. Contrary to police allegations, however, Petiot said, his victims were whisked off to various woods and were not buried under his house. Those bodies were planted on his premises by Germans to arouse suspicion, the doctor asserted.

26 IN GARY MILL STRIKE; 18,000 FACE IDLENESS

Steel Plant Crippled as CIO Crane Men Quit.

A strike by CIO United Steel Workers crane men threatened yesterday to close down the rolling mill, with 18,000 employes, in the Gary, Ind., works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, the world's largest steel plant.

The 13 crane men were in the middle shift due to start work at 4 p. m., and their walkout interrupted negotiations which were in progress toward settlement of a strike by 13 other crane men on an earlier shift. Four thousand on the middle shift were thrown into idleness last night. At midnight 2,000 to 3,000 more became idle. Today 9,000 more will be affected, and 2,000 others will be idle later on this week if the strike continues and the backlog of supplies becomes exhausted.

Rolling Mill May Close.

Carnegie officials said the afternoon walkout made the situation more serious, and that they would be obliged to shut down the rolling mill if the men did not return to work immediately.

Joseph Goin, subdistrict director of the United Steel Workers, said the walkout was unauthorized.

Army ordnance officers, emphasizing the importance of production at the Gary works, said the hours of work lost by midnight could have accounted for all the steel shells used by American soldiers who took the city of Aachen. Gen. Eisenhower disclosed Saturday that 300,000 rounds of 105 millimeter shells were used in the Aachen siege.

The strike caused five blast furnaces to be banked, and work was halted at 49 of the 53 open hearth furnaces.

Demand "Spell Men."

Strikers said they want the company to supply "spell men" to relieve them for half hour periods when temperatures in the crane cabs get too hot. The company supplies spell men in summer months, but the operators want them the year around. Spell men are used when cab temperatures exceed 85 degrees for four hours, or 90 degrees for two hours.

The strikers operate cranes which transfer hot steel ingots to furnaces, where the ingots are reheated for transfer to rolling mills.

The operators on the first shift which struck are: Charles Cox, Luis Lucas, John R. Woolley, Austin Brooks, Joseph Lewandowski, Stanley Gilarski, Stanley Fisher, John Persin, James Duncan, and John Kompir, all of Gary, and Vasilios Stamatapoulos, East Gary, George Kincaid, rural route No. 1, Chesterton, and Felix P. Tulley, Hobart.

It was the 74th strike of the year in the company's plants. The 73d occurred Sunday morning when eight welders employed in the South Chicago plant at 3400 E. 89th st. refused to go to work. The company had ordered the crew of 138 transferred from the maintenance department to steel production. Yesterday all 138 were out.

PHONE STRIKERS IN OHIO ORDERED TO WORK BY WLB

Columbus, O., Nov. 20 (AP).—The national war labor board today ordered immediate termination of the strike of telephone operators in 27 Ohio cities, declaring the dispute was "a threat to the effective prosecution of the war."

The WLB notified the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers that if the strike of its members is not ended, the union's officers must appear before the WLB in Washington tomorrow to explain why.

Passive support of the expanding strike was pledged tonight by Cleveland employes of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, who voted not to go thru picket lines of the operators' union.

De Soto Strike Ends.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP). — A strike that involved 6,000 employes of the De Soto plant of Chrysler corporation ended tonight, making possible resumption of production of wings for navy Helldiver planes and parts for anti-aircraft guns. Involved in the dispute were disciplinary layoffs given a number of employes in an argument over "washing up" periods.

Steel Plant Output Halted.

Watervliet, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP).—A work stoppage involving 1,000 employes of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation plant here was referred tonight to the war labor board. Production at the plant for army and navy orders was halted earlier today, when a majority of the workers failed to appear, company officials said. The workers are represented by the United States Steel Wokers of America [CIO]. Company officials said they had not been informed what the strike was about.

LOOP THRONGS SEE STARS OPEN 6TH WAR LOAN

The campaign for Chicago's $836,160,000 quota of the 14 billion dollar sixth war loan was opened yesterday with entertainment stars catching the attention of crowds in the loop and 200,000 citizen volunteers starting their selling rounds thru residential neighborhoods.

Bright weather enhanced the lively scene at State and Madison sts., where film and radio celebrities performed. They sold turkeys at a bond auction and arranged for the purchasers to have the birds delivered to service men's centers. They sang, danced, and drew the crowds to the bond booths set up in a roped off stretch of State st.

ENJOINS BUYER, CITES EX-WIFE OF TARNOWSKY

Saul Plast, a real estate dealer at 30 N. La Salle st., who purchased Mrs. Alice Rand de Tarnowsky McIntosh's half interest in the $36,000 De Tarnowsky home in Barrington, was enjoined by Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday from disposing of or using the property.

Mrs. McIntosh was ordered Nov. 3 not to attempt to sell her share in the property pending the outcome of a divorce suit filed by Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky, now in England with the army engineers. Plast was named a co-defendant in a supplemental divorce bill filed yesterday by De Tarnowsky's attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, and Mrs. McIntosh was ordered to appear Friday to show cause why she should not be held in contempt of court.

William C. Boyden, her attorney, said he hoped Mrs. McIntosh would return by Friday from California, where she is visiting Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh. The soldier and Mrs. De Tarnowsky were married last summer after she obtained a Mexican divorce from De Tarnowsky.

Pays $1,000 for Return of Pup That Cost $150

ALL BUT BIG SHIPS DISPLAYED IN GREAT EXHIBITION BY NAVY

In "Pacific theater," housed in the drill hall and a dozen temporary buildings on Navy pier, visitors may see virtually everything the navy employs in war except the big fighting ships.

Among the thousands of pieces of equipment on display are such hitherto secret items as the famous Norden bomb sight, rockets, electronic devices, and invasion ships. Visitors may go aboard the ships. Admission is free.

The navy yesterday announced cancellation of the marines' beach landing demonstrations in Jackson park. All landings will be conducted at Foster av. The next landing will be made at 2 p. m. tomorrow, and the third at 8 p. m. Friday.

Fighter, torpedo, and dive bombing planes from Glenview naval air station are shown. There are various types of naval and anti-aircraft guns, signal and warning devices used aboard ships, and a control room in which bridge instruments may be operated by visitors. The marine corps is showing its various weapons and also numerous comparable items captured from the Japanese.

Today will be naval personnel day at the pier exhibit.

FLEET RESCUES 1,869 YANKS IN LEYTE SEA FIGHT

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Nov. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Search craft directed by Capt. Richard F. Whitehead, Coronado, Cal., assisted in the rescue of 1,869 flyers and ships' survivors from waters of the Philippines sea after the Oct. 23-27 naval battles in Leyte gulf and the San Bernardino straits.

Capt. Whitehead, who was commander of support air for the 7th fleet, reported PBY search planes, LCIS, escort carrier planes and more than 100 scouts from Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet carriers virtually blanketed more than 124 square miles of ocean looking for survivors of the light carrier Princeton.

REDS OPEN DRIVE ON TRAPPED NAZI ARMY IN LATVIA

LONDON, Nov. 21 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Russian troops yesterday fought their way into the outskirts of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth largest city.

Berlin announced that the Red army had opened its grand winter offensive with attacks on 300,000 Germans pocketed in western Latvia.

Moscow, telling of a six column Russian drive thru Hungary's mountains to within 20 miles of the old Czechoslovakian frontier, did not confirm the German announcement of a Latvian offensive.

But Berlin said the Russians—estimated to have a reservoir of 500,000 to 1,000,000 troops in Latvia—had hurled huge infantry, tank, plane, and artillery forces against the Germans on a 30 mile front near Liepaja, one of the two Baltic escape ports left to the enemy.

Rip Holes in Nazi Lines.

In the fighting which Berlin said was now entering its third day, the Russians were admitted to have ripped holes in the axis lines, but the Germans said these were sealed off in counter-attacks.

The German high command said other Russian forces had broken into German lines on the Sworbe peninsula at the southwestern end of the Estonian island of Saare [Osel], commanding the mouth of the Gulf of Riga.

A Russian bulletin told of a "reconnaissance in force" southwest of Jelgava, which is 97 miles east of Liepaja. It said Russian troops had dislodged the Germans from some positions after a hand-to-hand fight.

The air arm of the Baltic fleet also was reported to have sunk a German supply ship of 6,000 tons, two escort vessels, and two landing barges, presumably off the Latvian coast, but this was the extent of the Russian references to the Latvian front.

Escape Roads Cut.

In Hungary the upper wing of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army cut the eastern and western escape roads out of Miskolc, 85 miles northeast of besieged Budapest. It plunged into Miskolc's southern outskirts with the seizure of Csaba and Szirma, less than one and two miles, respectively, south and southeast of the strategic city.

The highway to imperiled Eger, 22 miles southwest of Miskolc, was cut with the capture of Diosgyor, three miles west of Miskolc. This put one Red army column within 20 miles of the former Slovakian frontier. Between Diosgyor and Miskolc the Russians killed 600 Germans and captured 460 enemy troops.

German and Polish reports indicated large scale Russian assaults were impending in East Prussia and Poland.

The Germans said the Russians still were massing men and material behind their lines in East Prussia and in southern Poland on the road to Krakow and German Silesia, the Polish Telegraphic agency said the Germans expected a renewed drive against Warsaw shortly.

Nazis Mine Buildings.

The Polish report, quoting the underground Warsaw radio which is again operating near the capital, said the Germans were mining factories, hospitals, filter plants, and houses in the capital opposite Russian held Praga suburb on the east bank of the Vistula river.

The Germans are removing all their sick and wounded from Warsaw hospitals and shipping them westward, it said. Poles are forbidden to enter the city.

20,000 Bags of Yule Mail Reach England for Yanks

STRANDED DUTCH REFUSE TO QUIT FLOODED ISLAND

WALCHEREN, Netherland, Nov. 20 [Reuter].—Packed in attics, without the simplest commodities and using rain as drinking water, the population of flooded Walcheren Island refuses to leave despite the rising waters. Altho members of the civil administration are risking their lives to get thru minefields to evacuate them, the islanders declare:

"The Lord made the water rise, He will make it fall."

All they ask is to stay on their farms. They are confident that the dyke will be repaired.

The children are prisoners. The salt water makes everybody ill. Dead cows, horses, and sheep drift around the farms.

The Germans took away all suitable craft for their own evacuation before the invasion, but allied military authorities are giving every possible assistance. Seven thousand people must be evacuated by "ducks," "buffaloes," and other allied amphibious craft.

The heroes of Walcheren are the doctors and clergymen who, day and night, risk their lives in canoes and rickety rowing boats to visit dry ground where people have gathered around churches and lonely farms. Many farmers have been killed by land mines as they search for cows or horses.

TOMORROW
IS THE GREAT UNVEILING!

Tomorrow You—and those great detectives, Peek, Peep, and Peer—will discover the fabulous, breathtaking things we have hidden behind our State Street windows. Curtains rise Thanksgiving eve.

FEW people happen to know that the first proclamation of Thanksgiving, issued by George Washington in 1789, was lost for over a hundred years. It turned up at an auction sale in New York in 1921, and was bought for $300 for the Library of Congress, in whose archives it is now treasured as one of the most valuable documents in the world.

ADD TO THE JOY OF Thanksgiving

As a final note of enjoyment for this greatest home day of all the year, be sure there's a box of Martha Washington candies on hand. Their tempting variety and delicious old-fashioned goodness will be sure to please everybody. CHIANG ANSWERS CLAMOR; SHAKES UP HIS CABINET

Gen. Chen Cheng Named War Minister.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 20 (AP).—With China's military position becoming critical, Chiang Kai-shek reshuffled eight cabinet posts today, naming Gen. Chen Cheng minister of war, succeeding Gen. Ho Ying-ching.

Popular clamor had urged a shake-up of the central government for some time in the face of continuing Japanese military gains in southeastern China. The changes followed the recent recall of Gen. Stilwell as American commander in China-India-Burma.

Gen. Cheng, 44, formerly was commander of the Chinese expeditionary force which now is fighting in the Salween river area to open up a land route from India thru Burma to China. Gen. Ho had been minister of war since 1930.

O. K. Yui, former mayor of Shanghai, was boosted from vice minister to minister of finance succeeding Dr. H. H. Kung, now in the United States.

Other Changes Made.

Others involved in the shakeup—welcomed by all circles in Chungking, with some predicting further changes—were:

Chow Chung Yao, from minister of the interior to vice president of the examination yuan, one branch of the government; Chang Li-sheng, from secretary-general of the executive yuan to minister of the interior; Chu Chia-hua, from vice president of the examination yuan to minister of education; Chien Li-fu, from minister of education to minister of the Kuomingtang organization; Wang Shih-chieh, from the presidium of the people's political council to minister of information, and Liang Han-chao, from minister of information to minister of overseas affairs.

[The retirement of Gen. Ho as minister of war, altho he apparently retains his position as chief of the general staff, may remove one of the chief stumbling blocks to a political settlement of the stalemate between the central government and the Communists. Gen. Ho had maintained a blockade against the Communists with some of China's best troops, which could have been used against the Japanese.]

Kung Still Powerful.

Some observers pointed out that while Kung was removed as finance minister, he still retained the important post of vice president of the executive yuan [vice premier] and that he remained as head of four government banks. Yui, his successor, is regarded as a "Kung man."

GERMANS DRIVE POLISH TROOPS OFF ITALY PEAK

ROME, Italy, Nov. 20 (AP).—A German counter-attack has knocked Polish troops of the 8th army from Monte Fortino, a peak overlooking two secondary roads to Faenza, about five miles to the northwest, allied headquarters said today. The Poles repulsed two Nazi charges before being forced to withdraw.

On the American 5th army front south of Bologna patrols were active and in one sector several small scale German counter-attacks were beaten off.

[Germany's broadcast war summary said yesterday: "In central Italy numerous American thrusts in the Etruscan Apennines and on the Adriatic coast were foiled. Two enemy vessels laden with supplies were sunk by German motor torpedo boats in the Adriatic."]

BURNS HIS WIFE TO DEATH IN ROW OVER CHILDREN

New York, Nov. 20 [Special].—Abraham Gold, 44, a mild looking man, today poured a mixture of kerosene and carbolic acid over his 49 year old wife, applied a match to the fluid and, oblivious to his wife's screams, kept her locked in the bathroom while she suffered fatal burns. Abraham was arrested and held for murder.

Jap Armies Cut China in Two; Allies Gain in Burma

Legends tell latest reported developments in the China-Burma war area.

2 JAP COLUMNS MEET; CUT CHINA INTO TWO PARTS

250,000 Troops Make Junction.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 20 (AP).—Chinese troops are fighting inside Bhamo, strongest remaining Japanese base in North Burma, and have recaptured the Burma road town of Mangshih, 62 miles inside China from the Burma border, the Chinese high command announced today.

Against these allied victories, the high command acknowledged indirectly that two great Japanese forces aggregating probably 250,000 troops who are invading Kwangsi province from the east and north had completed a junction west of Liuchow, severing China and completing an unbroken link all the way from Manchuria to Hong Kong.

[The Tokyo radio said the United States air force in China had destroyed and abandoned its airfield at Nanning [Yungning], 100 miles south-southwest of the point where the Japanese junction appeared to have been effected. The unconfirmed Japanese report said the Nanning field was "the sole enemy air base in South China."]

Refugees Choke Roads.

Arrivals in Chungking reported that all routes leading from the danger zone in Kwangsi province were choked with refugees—a sorry spectacle of human misery. It was estimated that 70,000,000 Chinese new had fled their homes since the war with Japan began in 1937.

Indication that the two Japanese forces invading southern China had formed a junction near Liuchow came in the high command's report that the column which originally drove west from Canton had thrust 15½ miles northwest from Hsincheng to a point 47 miles west-southwest of Liuchow. The enemy column which drove down from the north and captured Liuchow and Ishan was said to have stabbed southward from Ishan to close the gap.

Chinese Are Trapped.

Any Chinese troops remaining in a pocket southwest of Liuchow appeared to have been trapped.

A bulletin said Bhamo, south of Myitkyina and 175 miles northeast of Mandalay, was penetrated by Chinese troops Saturday after a heavy American dive bombing attack and that bitter fighting was going on in the streets. The town was encircled by the Chinese.

Mangshih, third important Burma road town to fall to the Chinese in their offensive in western Yunnan province, was captured last night in a frontal attack coupled with a double envelopment, the high command said. The retreating Japanese burned all food stores and surrounding fields. Lungling and Tengchung previously had fallen to this Chinese force, which is operating with strong American air support.

Universities of Siena and Pisa to Reopen

ROME, Nov. 20.—Two of the oldest and most famous universities in the world—those of Pisa and Siena—will reopen this week with allied help, it was announced today. Pisa's university, which was flourishing in the 13th century, was heavily damaged, but has been repaired enough for use. The University of Siena, which was famous as long ago as the 14th century, was untouched by this war.

FERGUSON ASKS PEARL HARBOR QUIZ BY SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—A senate investigation of the facts surrounding the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and of the events preceding the attack was proposed today by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

Earlier, the senate judiciary committee had approved a proposed joint congressional resolution which would extend for six months after Dec. 7 the statute of limitations in the cases of individuals who may be court-martialed in connection with the attack.

Ferguson said in an interview that the recently completed army and navy investigations of Pearl Harbor, the results of which have been classified "secret" and "top secret," covered only phases of the attack which concerned operations of the army and the navy.

Plans Request Today.

"I am of the opinion that the senate should go into the over-all picture of the Pearl Harbor attack and make a searching investigation for the benefit of the people," Ferguson said. "I shall therefore introduce a resolution tomorrow calling for a senate investigation. This resolution will be separate from that extending the statute of limitations in the Pearl Habor cases."

Ferguson said he will ask that the proposed senate investigating committee be empowered to subpena all records and reports pertaining to the Pearl Harbor attack, including reports of the army and navy investigations and records of the Roberts commission. The Roberts commission, headed by Supreme Court Justice Roberts, made an investigation of the attack early in 1942 and made a public report.

Two Commanders Blamed.

The Roberts commission laid the blame for the surprise on Maj. Gen. Short, army commander in the Hawaiian area, and Rear Adm. Kimmel, navy commander. Both waived the statute of limitations and despite congressional demands for their court-martials, no move has been made to bring them to trial. Kimmel has asked for immediate court-martial, asserting the whole story about Pearl Harbor has not been told.

"The senate investigation can cover a much wider territory than that investigated by the army and navy commissions," Ferguson said.

"For example, it can determine what, if any, coöperation there was between the armed services and the state department and the justice department prior to the Japanese attack."

State department documents and other published reports have indicated Kimmel and Short were not kept fully advised of negotiations with the Japanese government prior to the outbreak of war three years ago.

He asserted that since the start of the war he had been "a real democratic partisan." He was accompanied here from Mexico by Mme. Elena Lupescu and his secretary.

BRITAIN TO BUILD BUNGALOWS FOR BOMB VICTIMS

Details of Temporary Plan Disclosed.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Britain today laid out its blueprint for a temporary housing program which will provide living quarters for blitzed families for an estimated 10 years. One of the prime clauses of the government document is that special consideration should be given by local authorities to ex-service men and women when choosing tenants for temporary bungalows.

These government built, rented houses, it is pointed out, should have model kitchens, plenty of cupboard space, and pleasant surroundings.

"Shanty Towns" Barred.

Attempting to guard against the possibility of approved clusters of 50 or 100 bungalows becoming "shanty towns," the government cautions: "The temporary scheme must not be allowed to stand in the way of a permanent scheme, and it will be for the authorities to insure that both sections of their program can proceed side by side without stultifying one another."

Each of the four approved bungalow types will have a living room, two bedrooms, a kitchen, bath, hall and an outside shed. The rooms are 7½ feet high. Kitchen and bathroom units are standardized and factory built. Necessary kitchen fixtures, including refrigerators, will be built in, including a heated towel rack. There will be electric or gas heaters and hot water. All living rooms face the sunny side.

Officials to Pick Tenants.

The ministry of works will put up the houses. Local officialdom will choose the tenants, fix and receive rents, manage the property and keep it in repair for the government. The government will take over when the property is no longer needed and permanent homes have been built.

Tho there is no definite rental setup, the government proposes that local authorities charge $2 a week plus taxes for the bungalows, whose 10 year mortgage will come to $5.27 a week. About one third the project costs will be borne by local units, with the government defraying the balance and making an extra payment in cases where towns are forced to build on ground with exceptionally high valuation.

CAN YOU HELP SPEED FOOD TO FIGHTING MEN?

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

If the army's quartermaster depot in Chicago, which buys and ships three quarters of all food and non-ordnance equipment used by America's fighting men, fails for a single day to maintain its constant flow of food overseas soldiers on some battlefront will have to go hungry.

This statement was made yesterday by Brig. Gen. J. E. Barzynski, commanding officer of the depot, as he made public the depot's pressing need for additional workers to help keep supplies moving.

Dangerous Lag Feared.

All the unskilled laborers and office help available can be used at the depot, Gen. Barzynski said. If additional help is not forthcoming, he asserted, a dangerous lag in shipments may result.

"Most military observers are agreed," Gen. Barzynski declared, "that this war will be won, and more quickly, by the nations which supply their fighting men with the best food and equipment. Thus far the allies have done just that, but the war will be prolonged if our lengthening supply lines are not kept functioning properly."

The huge depot, which has more than 50 acres of floor space at 1819 W. Pershing rd., handles about 3 million pounds of army supplies daily, with individual items ranging from food and clothing to axes and xylophones. Of the 72,000 items purchased by the quartermaster corps, the Chicago depot handles more than 75 per cent.

Utmost efficiency and speed must be maintained at all times because the Chicago quartermaster office receives almost daily calls for the special delivery, sometimes in a matter of hours, of specific items. Many of these calls come in coded messages directly from the battle fronts.

Freight Handlers Needed.

The workers most needed, said Gen. Barzynski, are men capable of heavy freight handling. They are paid from 76 to 84 cents an hour. There is usually more than eight hours' overtime each week. Stenographers, typists, and office clerks are under civil service and receive a starting wage of $146 as base monthly rate. The average employe at the depot, including unskilled labor, receives a pay check in excess of $183 a month.

Working conditions at the depot are exceptionally good. The freight handlers work in an enclosed terminal, heated in winter and cooled in summer. A great number of mechanical, labor saving devices are provided. Hours for freight handlers are 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., and 8:15 a. m. to 4:45 p. m. for office workers.

BRITISH HOSTESS FINED FOR FOOD YANK GAVE HER

It's Living on Army, Judge Rules.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20.—British hosts soon may be asking two questions of American service men who bring gifts of food when they are invited to dinner. The questions are likely to be: 1. "Are you sure this is no more than your hospitality ration?" 2. "If so, do the extras come from your 'tuck box' [a box sent from home]?"

The reason developed yesterday when a British housewife was fined $80 for obtaining food illegally. An American soldier had taken her some food when he played the role of the man who came to dinner. The judge said:

"Taking food that was provided for rationing to troops is not giving hospitality; it's living on the troops."

Soldier's Conduct Legal.

The soldier's conduct was strictly legal.

An American soldier who is entertained at a meal by a British family is provided with a hospitality ration which is a quantity of food about equal to the amount he would be given for the same meal at his mess. His hostess under British rationing laws is allowed to accept this.

The soldier, however, may not take additional food unless it has been received in the five pound parcel each American citizen is permitted to send weekly to soldiers overseas, or has been bought at a post exchange.

Army Tells Its Stand.

An army spokesman, eager to clear the service of blame for incriminating a hospitable Englishwoman, said that hospitality rations vary in kind and quantity, according to the food available at the different soldiers' messes, but that it should not be difficult for a hostess to decide whether the food offered her by a Yank was more than he would reasonably be entitled to for one meal.

Of course this overlooks the possibility that a soldier might be a hearty eater who goes back for "seconds." The army didn't indicate whether the hospitality boxes carried "seconds." Anyhow, the Yanks' British hosts may have to eat with one eye on the roast beef and the other on the door for the police.

ENGLAND HAS NO FREE PRESS, BRITON SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 20. — That the press in England does not possess the right of free expression or criticism of the government today, or even in peace time, was charged by Cecil King, director and deputy chairman of the Sunday Pictorial newspapers, in a lecture this week at University college.

"At the present time we have not a free press or anything like it," King said. He called for an amendment to Britain's libel laws, saying that even Shakespeare's and Dickens' works would be subject to action under the statutes.

"Altho war time censorship is essential from a security point of view," King went on, "once the authorities have such attractive powers in their hands they will use them for purposes not connected with winning the war. That censorship can be used to hide blunders from the public and protect the blunderers."

PREDICTS FIGHT FOR ORMOC PASS WILL TAKE DAYS

U. S. Wins Air and Sea Control on Leyte.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 6TH ARMY ON LEYTE ISLAND, P. I., Nov. 20.—As the Philippines campaign enters its second month, the United States 6th army and Japanese troops, continuously soaked and muddy from tropical monsoon rains, are in the midst of a costly fight to the finish on Ormoc pass.

Scores of large ships daily bring American supplies and troops to the eastern coast of Leyte, while the Japanese can resupply the west coast only by barges and other small ships, which slip into Ormoc bay by night.

The fight for Ormoc pass will surely last many days, possibly weeks. Despite Jap casualties in the first month of more than 45,000, enemy combat troops in the Ormoc area are still estimated at about 25,000. This is about equal to the garrison on the island when we landed a month ago.

Win Sea, Air Control.

In this first month we have won the fight for the sea and the fight for the air. Early Jap convoys reached Ormoc with only slight loss. But the last attempt was a total failure—all ships were sunk before they reached land. Then, in a bold move, the Japs attempted to send two battle fleets to fight into Leyte gulf and wipe out our forces. The troops prepared for the worst. When the news came, it couldn't have been better—one fleet wiped out and the other turned back, heavily damaged.

The fight for the air reached its peak at the end of the first week. Almost hourly our planes raided the Japs and their planes attacked us. One night ack-ack hardly ceased from before midnight until 8 a. m.

It was the continued carrier and long range bomber attacks at Luzon, Cebu, Mindanao, and other island airports that have finally brought a semblance of quiet to Leyte, plus the fact that very few Jap planes got more than one chance to strike.

First Fighting Rapid.

The early ground campaign went fast. The 1st cavalry division, assigned the job of cleaning the northern tip of the island, securing Tacoblan and its air strip, and going into Samar Island, finished its job within the first week. To the south, the 7th and 96th divisions got ashore with little trouble and reached an air field near San Pablo, a few miles inland, with comparatively little trouble except from the terrain — this means swamps.

In the middle, two regiments of the 24th division caught hell on landing from artillery, mortars, and small arms. Reaching Palo, less than a mile from the beachhead, by the second day, we got the first inkling of the Jap strategy. The Filipinos there told us that two weeks earlier the Japs, apparently preparing for an attack, withdrew most of the 5,000 troops which had been in the Palo area.

These, together with smaller garrisons from Tacoblan and other east coast areas, had been congregated in and near Ormoc. It became a race for the control of the Leyte valley. The force which held the valley dominated the island.

Win Leyte Valley.

The two regiments began the drive. The Japs tried their best to delay them, setting up blocks at bridges, towns, and open rice paddies affording a wide range of fire. The 1st cavalry was called on for an end run, coming into Carigara bay by barge up the San Juanico strait. In two weeks the cavalry and the 24th met in Carigara. Leyte valley was ours.

But there was no time to rest. The Japs got a slow start. They had intended to beat us to Carigara. They changed their plans to retake it. We caught the lead of their main forces at Ormoc pass. And the battle of attrition began. It has been going on for 10 days now.

The battle for Ormoc pass is among the heaviest fighting since Bataan. Here the ending will be reversed. This time it's the Japs who are caught.

THE QUESTION.

How did you make out the first time you asked an employer for a raise?

WHERE ASKED.

State st. and Jackson blvd.

THE ANSWERS.

Daniel Schusterman, actor, 601 Diversey pkwy.—I was playing summer stock in New York. I went to the company manager and told him that I thought I should have a larger percentage of the profits as my salary. He asked me if I thought I was worth it. Of course, I said, "Yes." He took my word and raised my salary.

Joseph Florian, tailor, 2403 S. Elmwood av., Berwyn—A group of us went in to see the boss about increases. I was the spokesman. Our employer pounded on the table and said, "What makes you think you have a right to talk for every one?" He told us to get out. Later he told me I would get a raise but the others wouldn't.

Virginia Lee Serritella, claims adjuster, 1208 Grand av.—My employers promised that I would receive an increase after I had been working for six months. It was past the time for me to get the raise but my check was no larger. I reminded them that they had overlooked the fact that I deserved a raise. I got it.

Roslyn Sponholz, junior executive, 2411 S. Ridgeway av.—The first time I asked for a raise I went to the wrong man. He was the department head and kept stalling me off because he wanted to make his department pay. Finally I went to the superintendent. My boss also came in and agreed it was time for an increase.

Sol Spilky, driver, 3918 Argyle st.—Before I was given more money for doing my job the boss told me I'd have to show my worth. For two or three weeks I worked hard trying to convince him I was worthy of a raise. Without asking a second time the boss increased my salary. I've been working for him ever since.

Stella N. Asinopulos, clerk, 5836 N. Mason av.—My first job didn't pay very well. I was working as a clerk and received $16 a week. After working for several months at that rate I confidently walked in and demanded an increase in salary. The answer was a definite "No!" I said, "All right, I quit as of now."

YANK INVASION SPOILS FEAT BY GUERRILLA BAND

Story of the 'Boldest Strike' on Samar!

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE GUERRILLAS ON SAMAR ISLAND, P. I., Nov. 20.—American landings in the Philippines prevented the boldest strike planned by Samar's guerrillas.

On the southwest corner of the island is a large iron mine. For the first two years of occupation the Japs tried to operate it. From the mine to the coast is a four mile, ore carrying railroad. It passes over several bridges. The guerrillas kept the bridges destroyed so that the Japs could not operate the mine and in time gave up the idea.

Haul Equipment to Docks.

At the mine were several big tractors, earth movers, cranes, and other heavy equipment sorely needed by the Japs. They put guards along the railroad, repaired the breaks, and brought the equipment to the docks. There they left it, and the Samar guerrillas dreamed of building an airport. They laid plans to steal this machinery.

For weeks they had been building large bamboo rafts. They hoped to float these up to the docks, drive away nearby Japs, and tote off those tons of heavy equipment.

Then the Americans landed. The guerrillas heard of shipload after shipload of new and improved equipment coming ashore. They forgot about the mine's stuff.

Thrive on Good Fight.

The main job of the guerrillas on Samar has been one of harassment. On other islands guerrillas from time to time have attacked garrisons in towns. The Japs then sent in garrisons four or five times the size of the original force and imposed harsh measures on civilians.

So orders went out on Samar to lay off the garrisons and stick to patrols. The guerrillas, who thrive on a good fight, especially if they have the upper hand, delight in waylaying four or five Japs on patrol or a single Jap truck bouncing along a road with supplies. Shoot and run, that has been the battle plan.

The plan has paid off, too. It killed off about 200 Japs and kept the rest of them bottled up in the towns where they could not bother the bulk of the Filipinos.

Capture Fleet Commander.

The Filipinos delight in telling exploits of other guerrillas. A few months ago guerrillas captured the commander of the combined Jap fleets when his plane crashed at sea off Cebu Island. The plane sank, but the guerrillas recovered stacks of secret documents. The Japs raised such a commotion and threatened such dire reprisals that the guerrillas gave the commander back but kept his papers.

ICELAND BASE VITAL IN WINTER FLYING ROUTES

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEEKS FIELD, Iceland, Nov. 20.—Winter flying between the United States and Europe across the difficult North Atlantic is an accomplished fact. Today, in almost all kinds of weather, planes get thru, and weather in this area is often violent and unpredictable.

At this base of the North Atlantic division of the mighty army air transport command, fleets of cargo, passenger, and tactical planes are almost a daily sight. Huge B-17s, resembling silvery birds afar, descend in orderly procession, sometimes on "a beam and a prayer," and not too long afterward are off again to near-by Europe and the combat zones.

It was planned that way. So, also, has winter flying been planned. Officially, winter has not yet arrived, but the calendar doesn't count in this part of the world. The ground of Iceland and of Greenland, another A. T. C. base to the west, is covered with ice. Snow has fallen. Winds already have become severe.

Hazards Are Fewer.

The victory of the A. T. C. over the elements it not total, of course; tho winds may not halt American flyers, low ceilings often will. Yet with ultra-modern radionics, some known to the public and others covered by military secrecy, even ceiling hazards have lost much of their peril. This much can be said: Flying today, even in imperfect weather, is safer over long distances than it was only a few short years ago in perfect weather.

Meeks field is a product of the A. T. C. It is vast and modern. Its construction was begun by private contractors, but completed by the navy Seabees in conjunction with the army. It is truly a crossroads of aerial arteries.

All about it, of course, cries of war. Buildings are dispersed, and miles away, at an interlocking base, other buildings, those housing communications, operations, and the many services forming part of the whole picture, also are dispersed.

Headquarters Below Ground.

The operation headquarters, for example, are below ground, a precaution against enemy bombers. Here, under the competent direction of Lt. Col. Roger H. Krause of St. Louis, Mo., the B-17s and other combat ships, A.T.C. cargo planes and passenger aircraft—the latter often carrying important dignitaries—land or take off for Europe and America.

Combat crews do not always land at Meeks; a substantial percentage fly nonstop to the United Kingdom from an A.T.C. base at Gandu, Newfoundland or Goose bay, Labrador. For almost all, the European flight is their first distance flight over the ocean. Yet they make it, and their cockiness and accuracy sometimes amaze Col. Krause, a veteran air lines man.

"However, we handle them a little more closely than we do, for instance, ATC pilots who usually have flown years for commercial lines before the war," the colonel said. What he meant was that combat crews sometimes will be grounded by weather that will not delay seasoned air line men.

"The young kids just will never admit they're in trouble," Col. Krause said. "They'll wander around once in a while, but if you query what's the matter, they'll answer, 'Nothing.'"

One bomber landed as the colonel spoke. The crew members piled out, grinning, some a little dirty faced, but fresh looking. They were questioned. Only two had ever before seen the Atlantic.

"What did you do during your long night ride?" one was asked. "Nothing, just slept," was the reply. "But we kidded each other a lot."

Were they on schedule? "Naw," replied another. "We were due in 11 hours 25 minutes. It took up 11 hours 15."

Come in on 3 Engines.

Another crew had radioed ahead they were coming in on three engines; one had gone bloole. Were they sure they could make it? "On time," was the answer, and on time they were. Most of the crew members, pilots, navigators, bombardiers, engineers, radiomen are young, in their early twenties, fresh and tough. One more hop across water and the next step for them is the battle areas.

Mrs. Mildred Menkol.

Theodore, a coast guard gunner's mate, was lost in the sinking of the cutter Escanaba in the North Atlantic last year, yesterday sponsored an LST [landing ship, tank] launched in the Seneca [Ill.] yards of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company.

Mrs. Menkol is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Polcyn, 2647 Mango av. Her husband was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Menkol, 853 N. Wolcott av. One hundred coast guardsmen were lost with the Escanaba; only two of the crew survived.

Raymond O'Malley, 1123 George st., and Melvin Baldwin, Grand Forks, Minn., the Escanaba survivors, attended the launching. Mrs. Menkol, who joined the SPARS last August, is on temporary duty in Chicago.

HOLD EX-SOLDIER AFTER BREAK-IN.

William McCann, 20, of 6535 Woodlawn av., a medically discharged soldier, was held by police last night after he was captured by detectives in Edward's meat market, 1150 E. 65th st., where he gained entrance by kicking down a door.

Thanksgiving Dinner Ahead

Fewer for Sale

Two turkey retailers accused of ration violations were enjoined yesterday in suits that the office of price administration said were brought as a warning to other dealers. The OPA also forecast the turkey supply in a more hopeful manner than that of some wholesalers, who said they were getting only 10 per cent of their normal Thanksgiving supply.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan in County court issued the injunctions at the request of Harold B. Levy, OPA enforcement attorney, who said the P. & L. food shop, 4101 Harrison st., sold live turkeys to four investigators at 55 cents a pound, 9 cents above the ceiling. The Holmes Poultry and Egg Market, 4800 Cottage Grove av., was cited for neglecting to keep records. No punishment was asked.

The OPA metropolitan office said investigators had found "not too much evidence" of a turkey black market and that indications of an organized conspiracy were lacking.

TELLS OF KNIFE RAID ON CAMP OF WAR PRISONERS

Italian Officer Blames U.S. Soldiers.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 20 [Special].—A knife and fist altercation between a Negro soldier and a former Italian officer immediately preceded the Aug. 14 midnight raid of Negro troops on members of an Italian service unit at Fort Lawton.

Testimony to this effect was given by the Italian officer today at a court martial for 42 Negroes, including seven from Chicago, charged with complicity in the raid which resulted in the hanging of one Italian and injury of about 30 others.

Saw Negro with Knife.

The witness, who was captured in Tunisia, is a member of the service units composed of selected prisoners of war who have pledged allegiance to the allied cause.

He said he and two other Italians were returning to Fort Lawton reservation from downtown liberty when, in Lawton road, they heard four Negro soldiers cursing Italians.

"Some one shouted, 'hey, Italian,'" he related. "I turned around and saw the four Negroes running toward me. One of them had a knife in his hand. The street light was shining on the blade. I let go a left punch to his jaw and he fell. The other three were coming at me so I ran to my barracks."

Broke Door with Ax.

The officer said he went to bed immediately and, about 15 minutes later, heard stones showering an Italian barracks next to his. He could hear a crowd of men milling around, and saw they were armed with knives, clubs, shovels, and rocks. He said the men tried to enter his barracks but couldn't "because we had placed our bunks against the door," altho an ax blade crashed thru the door.

Another witness was Pvt. Roy Daymond, 19, Houston, Tex., a Negro soldier but not a defendant. He testified that he saw several Negroes in the Italian area the night of the raid, among them Corp. David Walton and Pvt. Richard Barber, both of Chicago. He saw one Negro carrying a hunting knife and another a stick, he testified.

BURGLARY SUSPECT QUIZZED.

Joliet police last night were questioning William Hentz, 54, of 2624 Normal av., about a house burglary Sunday night in which a pistol was stolen from the home of Edward Daniels, 509 N. Williams st., Joliet. Chief Ernest Overbey of the Joliet police said the pistol was found in Hentz' car when he was arrested.

60% OF U.S. ARMY CARGO SENT TO WAR IN EUROPE

70 Pct. of Soldiers Go Across Atlantic.

Washington, Nov. 20 [Special].—Forty per cent of the army cargoes moving overseas in the fiscal year ending June 30 went to our forces fighting the Japs in the Pacific and 60 per cent to the forces in the European theater, Lt. Gen. Somervell, commanding general of the army service forces, reported today.

"Ours is a two front war," said the general in his annual report. "In no sense has the Pacific effort been a minor one."

About 70 per cent of all soldiers were carried to Atlantic theaters of war, and 30 per cent to the Pacific battle areas.

The army service forces, according to the general, shipped a total of 40 million tons of cargo overeas i.i the year ending last June, more than twice the previous year's tonnage. And in the last year 2,600,000 passengers, including troop units, replacements and other personnel, were embarked.

Five Million Are Overseas.

American troops now overseas number nearly 5,000,000, the report stated, more than two and one-half times the total number that went overseas in World War I. The troops are "on every continent and on the islands of every ocean," creating the most challenging supply problem this country has ever faced, the commanding general said.

He emphasized that the demands on our supply resources grew from day to day as the allies stepped up the "fury and tempo" of their attacks on every front. As a result, he said, our troops abroad are now short of heavy artillery, heavy ammunition, heavy trucks, heavy duty tires, and heavy tractors. "We cannot relax yet," he said.

Tonnage Needs Increase.

Pointing out the complexities of the supply problem in the present war, the report said each soldier's requirements in materials has increased from 1 ton to 5 tons since the last war. Each soldier's maintenance today requires 1 ton of supplies a month, because of changes in equipment and the wide variation of conditions under which it is used.

Gasoline and other petroleum products made up half of all cargo shipped overseas during the year.

Deliveries from American industry to the army service forces in the 1944 fiscal year amounted to $23,500,000,000, and Gen. Somervell said that it was the American people who had "in the last analysis" made the ASF accomplishments possible.

"At present this country produces in a single day more supplies for the war department than were produced for it in the entire fiscal year of 1940," said the report.

Other Progress Told.

The report also revealed that:

On lend-lease we shipped to Russia alone during the last year 115,000 trucks, 8,000 combat vehicles, including 2,000 tanks—a total of $1,500,000,000 worth of supplies.

Total cargo and troop ships in army services increased from 719 on June 30, 1943, to 1,500 a year later.

Army exchange service—the army's "corner drug store"—did a gross domestic business of $65,000,000 in June, 1944, while overseas posts sold another $21,000,000 worth of goods.

Twenty-two thousand persons were tried by general courts-martial thruout the army during the year—the lowest number in relation to total army strength since the last war.

WOMAN TRYING TO FAST 21 DAYS DIES ON THE 19TH

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 20 [Special].—Samuel Reel, a second hand dealer, testified tonight at a coroner's inquest that his wife, Nellie, 54, died yesterday on the 19th day of a proposed 21 day religious fast. She was a member of a religious sect.

Since Nov. 1, he said, his wife refused to take either food or water, explaining the Lord had told her to fast for three weeks. Earlier this year, he said, she had undergone two fast periods of shorter duration, one for nine days.

The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death by starvation and dehydration and left the verdict open, refusing to classify the death as suicidal, accidental, or homicidal.

REDS DENOUNCE AFL SPURNING OF RUSSIAN UNIONS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—The official soviet trade union magazine today renewed its attacks on the leadership of the American Federation of Labor for its past refusal to participate with Russian labor organizations.

War and the Working Class, the foreign policy publication of the soviet trade union movement, published an editorial concerning the impending London meeting of world trade union representatives.

[The AFL, at its annual convention in New Orleans, announced it will not send representatives to the London meeting, which was called for the purpose of forming a world labor organization. The CIO will send delegates.]

The article says the AFL stand will injure its influence among masses of its own members because it will cast doubt on its democratic sentiments.

40 PCT. OF WAR GOODS PROGRAM LAGS, AFL IS TOLD

CIO Union Strikes

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 20 (AP).—A strike of 5,000 production employes of the Portsmouth works of the Wheeling Steel corporation late today halted production of bomb and shell cases for the army. Howard Henson, a member of the executive committee of Local 3108 of the CIO United Steel Workers of America, said the union local, representing plant guards and office workers, struck in protest over company dismissal of a guard, and that other union locals walked out in sympathy.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20.— Lt. Gen. Somervell, commanding general of the army service forces, speaking before the 64th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, today warned that production is lagging on 40 per cent of the munitions program.

He said that 100,000 new war workers are needed immediately "because our armies on both the German and Japanese battlefronts are using more shells and equipment than is being made."

Gen. Somervell asserted the need for shells is so bad overseas that "we don't even wait for them to get cool at the loading plant before they are on their way."

Cut Training Supplies.

"To give our front line units the fire power they need," Gen. Somervell continued, "we have cut ammunition for training purposes to bare essentials and we have even gone to the length of 'borrowing' from the navy shells adapted for use in army guns."

He said present schedules call for an increase of 35 per cent in the current output of heavy ammunition, 31 per cent in the number of heavy trucks now building, and 35 per cent in tanks.

Gen. Somervell also read a statement from Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, which said that "despite achievements at home and abroad, we are forced to view the future with deep concern. The very speed of our advance has created new production problems which demand herculean effort on the part of all our people in the months ahead."

Green Urges Unity.

William Green, 71, president of the AFL, who is presiding over the convention for his 21st time, pleaded for the CIO "to come back into the house of labor."

He offered to "contribute everything possible" to bring about unity with the CIO, warning that if the CIO and the AFL do not amalgamate their forces "energy will be expended fighting one another in the post-war period which should be consolidated against our common enemies."

Both the CIO and the AFL have committees that have met a number of times since 1937, but nothing near a settlement has been reached. Several AFL unions formed the core of the CIO under John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in 1935 and were suspended from the AFL.

Board Makes Similar Plea.

A similar plea for CIO-AFL unity was made by the AFL executive board in the report to the 600 delegates, who represent a record AFL membership of 6,806,913. The board blames the CIO for raiding established AFL unions and causing "division, discord, and disunity" in the ranks of organized labor.

Secy. of Labor Perkins told the convention that the labor movement has its greatest opportunity to serve the nation, but warned that "no labor leader, and no objective friend looking at the labor movement today fails to see certain defects, certain neglects, and certain missed opportunities for service."

She admitted that the right to strike is a "precious defensive weapon," but said that negotiations between union and employer should be developed so that "like many another old fashioned weapon, the strike weapon, too, can be put unloaded behind the door and not used."

THREE POWERS DRAW UP WORLD AVIATION PLAN

54 Nations Expected to Approve Proposals.

Arbitration Provided.

3. Disagreements between two or more nations shall be arbitrated by the international organization.

The international organization is to be composed of all of the neutral or allied nations which sign and ratify the convention. It is to contain an assembly with each member nation having one vote, and a board of directors consisting of a president and 14 members.

The document stated that "the seven member states of chief importance in air transport shall each appoint one national citizen to the board," but these seven "chief" states were not named.

Board's Duties Defined.

The board of directors will administer finances, determine the provisions of the convention, and appoint a general manager or other personnel necessary to make the international organization work.

The general manager will be responsible for all personnel of the organization, and head up the administration.

One significant paragraph in the draft looks forward to the creation of a world security organization after the war.

"Air matters directly affecting world security may become subject to a general organization set up by the nations of the world to preserve peace," it said. "The administration [of the international air organization] shall recognize the jurisdiction of this organization in matters granted to it by its constitution and, by a two-thirds majority of the assembly, may enter into appropriate arrangements with that organization."

Assembly Rules Budget.

Financing of the international aviation body is arranged by the assembly, which submits an annual budget and statement of accounts. The expenses of the administration will be apportioned among the nations which sign and ratify the document in whatever manner the assembly may decide.

The draft also provides that two or more nations can join in air transport organizations or international operating agencies, and may pool their air services on any routes or in any regions, but must still remain under the jurisdiction of the world organization.

A nation may participate in joint operating organizations or in pooling arrangements "either thru its government or thru an airline company or companies designated by the government," the document states. "The companies may, at the sole discretion of the state concerned, be state owned or partly state owned, or privately owned."

Subsidies Not Mentioned.

This opens the way for government owned monopolies common in European commercial aviation before the war or for joint operation by one or more nations of such adventures.

While there is no mention of subsidies at any point in the document, one clause said that "the board [of directors] may consult with postal administrations regarding rates of carriage paid to air lines for the carriage of mail." The first article of the document, however, states that the administration is formed to "prevent economic waste caused by unreasonable competition."

Another section of the draft provides that if an air line operating under the terms of the convention finds airports and ground facilities of a member nation unsatisfactory for safe and economic operation, the board of directors may consult with that state "with a view to finding the means by which the state whose territory is concerned may expand its existing facilities" or construct new ones.

Can Help Pay for Work.

If the state concerned cannot bear the expenses of this work, the board may advance the money or a portion of it, and arrange amortization for the loan. The board, under these circumstances, may provide technical assistance in the supervision and operation of the airports.

The two important sections of the document marked "still under consideration" are "freedoms of the air," which apparently will cover the right of airplanes of one nation to fly over the territory of another, and "adjustment of capacity to traffic offering," which means the definition of some system governing the number of flights an air line can make and the amount of traffic the aircraft of any one nation may carry.

These are two of the big thorns which have held up progress during the entire 20 days of the conference so far. The United States has held firmly for freedom of flight all over the world, and Great Britain just as resolutely has been trying to insure her right to carry part of the rich trans-Atlantic air traffic thru a quota system.

Two Clauses Considered.

Other clauses which are still under consideration are labeled "united nations participation" and "denunciation and termination." Altho no official explanation of these was given it was assumed that the first may have been an attempt to hold open the door to participation in the world organization by soviet Russia, which withdrew her delegates in a huff while they were en route from Moscow to Chicago.

The other term apparently deals with means by which nations could withdraw from the covenant.

DEATH HELD AN ACCIDENT.

Death of William Forster, 57, of 2927 Nelson st., after a fall down two flights of steps in the home of Elmer Reich, 43, at 1707 N. Paulina st., with whom he was fighting, was called accidental yesterday by a coroner's jury.

MRS. MARY CONLON.

Edward L. Conlon, 30, of 3305 S. Halsted st., who recently was indicted on a charge of bigamy, was ordered by Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court yesterday to give his second wife, Mary, 20, of 3443 Jackson blvd., $125 for attorney fees in proceeding with her suit for annulment.

"If a man can afford to get himself involved in such a marital tangle, he can afford to pay the expenses necessary for his second wife to clear herself," Judge Sbarbaro said. Mrs. Conlon appeared with Atty. Emmet F. Byrne to request the allowance.

Conlon and his first wife, Dorothy, 26, of 5646 S. Halsted st., were married in 1941 in Missouri. They separated last January, and each was married again. When the bigamy was discovered, Conlon and his first wife said each believed the other had obtained a divorce.

POLICE HOLD 29 IN PROBE AFTER SLUGGING WAVE

Twenty-nine Negroes, rounded up by Chicago avenue police early yesterday because of a wave of holdups, sluggings, and stabbings, were held last night for investigation. Capt. Michael Spatz, in charge of the mass arrests, said 15 of the Negroes had police records, and that 18 knives were found when the group was searched. Twenty-one were booked on disorderly conduct charges, and the other eight held without charges. All will appear in Chicago avenue court today.

The current investigation was launched after assaults on Charles Kelley, 52, of 244 E. Pearson st., manufacturing company sales manager, who was stabbed early Saturday near 200 E. Chestnut st., and John C. Sheldon, 41, of 40 E. Oak st., attorney who was beaten and robbed of $28 Saturday. Both men were reported recovering, altho Kelley's condition still is serious at Wesley Memorial hospital.

A stolen automobile, recovered yesterday, which fits the description of the car used by four Negroes who robbed Miss Florence Buroker, 35, of 1435 Astor st., a nurse, was to be examined for fingerprints. Miss Buroker's purse was found in the car, Capt. Spatz said.

MARY D. BAILEY, U. S. ATTORNEY 23 YEARS, TO QUIT

Miss Mary D. Bailey, 68, of 72 N. Batavia rd., Batavia, will retire as assistant United States attorney on Dec. 31 after serving 23 years and six months, United States Atty. Woll said yesterday. Miss Bailey, the oldest in point of service in the history of the district attorney's office, began serving as an assistant on June 1, 1921. She established an enviable record during the prohibition era when injunctions were being served against speakeasies. She also is considered an authority on narcotic and juvenile cases and food and drug violations.

Tito's Troops Take Over Slav Legation in Rome

ROME, Italy, Nov. 20 (AP).—Yugoslav troops of Marshal Tito, wearing red stars and toting tommy guns, took possession of the Yugoslav legation today for Tito's commissioner of foreign affairs, Josip Smodlaka, who assumed a new role as Yugoslav delegate on the allied council for Italy. The former delegate, Miloje Smiljanic, said he had no knowledge of reports that some of his staff had been forcibly thrown out of the legation premises. Smiljanic wore a tiny courtplaster bandage under one eye.

ILLEGAL ENTRY OF REFUGEES IS DENIED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—A justice department official told the house immigration committee today that rumors that thousands of European refugees are entering this country illegally are "absolutely false."

Edward J. Shaughnessy, special assistant to the immigration commissioner, appeared before the committee to submit a report asked in a resolution by Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] Hoffman had requested the number and nationality of refugees who arrived at airports in this country since June, 1943.

The report said no figures on "refugees" are available because there is no legal definition of the term. It said 7,497 aliens arrived at La Guardia and 32,167 at Miami between July 1, 1943 and May 30, 1944.

Overturned Scrap Paper Truck Blocks Traffic

A truck trailer carrying seven tons of scrap paper stopped automobile and street car traffic for an hour yesterday at 32d st. and Western av. when it overturned after striking a safety island. The driver, Ernest Adams, 33, of La Fayette, Ind., employed by the Alton Box Board company of Alton, Ill., said the accident occurred when the universal joint broke.

$71,000,000 ROAD PROGRAM GIVEN COUNTY BOARD

Plans for the spending of at least 71 million dollars on new highways and grade separations in Cook county in the period 1945-1955, inclusive, were outlined in a report made yesterday to the county board by George A. Quinlan, superintendent of highways.

He estimated that this much would be available from the motor fuel tax, while an additional 27½ millions, derived from a general property tax, would be used for maintenance, snow cleaning, shops, and planning.

Of the 71 millions, Quinlan recommended that 48 millions go into express [super] highways, with virtually all the construction in areas outside the Chicago city limits. The express highways and the amounts to be spent on each are:

Calumet and Tri-State, from Dolton av., to the Indiana line, $5,650,000; Edens pkwy., from the northwest city limits to the Lake county line, and paralleling the present Skokie road, $14,500,000; Congress st., within the city, $4,800,000; Congress st. extended, from Austin av. to the county line, $19,600,000, and Tri-State Parkway, from Calumet pkwy. to Governor's highway, $3,450,000.

If the report is followed, 12 million dollars would be spent on grade separations and 11 millions on the paving of 250 miles of sec. ondary roads.

Buy bonds till it hurts!
Go without and do without if need be to help speed the pace of victory
THE young man in this picture obviously is an extreme example. Our Government certainly does not expect any of us to go that far in restricting our buying—even in order to put the 6th War Loan over the top.
But it certainly will help make our fighting forces feel that their sacrifices are appreciated if we deny ourselves some things we could have bought and put the money into extra War Bonds instead.
What if we do without some new clothes, perhaps—or postpone buying some special comfort for our homes? The money we would have spent will serve a better immediate purpose if invested in War Bonds. And it will be a nice nest egg to have on hand when the need for it may be greater later on.
Remember, War Bonds pay off at maturity at the rate of $4 for every $3 invested. Help your country and help yourself—try to buy at least one extra $100 Bond while this 6th War Loan Drive is on.

CIO DEMANDS MORE PAY AND ANNUAL WAGE

Asks Upward Revision of 'Little Steel' Formula.

Upward revision of the Little Steel formula and an annual wage for industrial workers were demanded for labor yesterday at the Congress of Industrial Organizations' annual convention in the Stevens hotel.

President Philip Murray and the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, were cheered by the 1,000 delegates and alternates as they indorsed CIO proposals for higher wages.

Blames WLB on Pay.

In his report, Murray said the administration must change the policy or the personnel of the war labor board, which he accused of blocking increases. He asserted that a guaranteed annual wage in American industries is the most necessary step for full employement.

Murray asserted that wage raises now would assure the purchasing power necessary to maintain production after the war. Wage adjustments should be made now, he said, rather than later, when labor will be confronted with lay-offs.

In a message to the convention addressed to Murray, President Roosevelt expressed regret at being unable to attend because of "heavy official duties," and congratulated the "American men and women on assembly lines, at machines, in mines, at counters, in office work, on farms, and those directing production [who] have, almost without exception, done everything humanly possible to help our brave fighters carry on against ruthless enemies."

Labor unions, as a recognized and permanent force in American life, have an unique opportunity and obligation, Bishop Sheil declared.

Can Give the Answer.

"Labor can give the answer to the persistent quest of the common man—a guaranteed annual wage," he said. "From every standpoint this seems to me a fundamental requirement for full employment, for economic stability, for peace, and finally for dignified human living.

"At this point I cannot refrain from saying that labor's demand for revision of the Little Steel formula is just and imperative. The time is here when labor cannot be asked to continue carrying an unfair part of the burden. The Little Steel formula must be revised."

Labor unions, he said, can help erase discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups from the national life.

Praised by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, one of the convention speakers, apparently referring to the work of the Political Action committee in the election, congratulated the CIO members "for the very fine job you have done as citizens."

"We have seen what your group has accomplished," she said. "Now I appeal to all of you to go on with your educational work to carry on democracy in the world."

Auto Out of Control Straddles Safety Rail

Eight concrete safety blocks were bowled over like tenpins yesterday when an automobile driven by Mrs. Mabel Gates, 5441 Kenmore av., went out of control at the Outer dr. and Foster av. and came to rest astride a safety railing. Mrs. Gates, unhurt, told police another car had forced her off the road.

Sheriff Mulcahy Leaves for Rest in New York

Bobby Socks Crime Victimizes Stores.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 20 [Special].—Teen age girl shoplifters to whom "it's smart to steal" have become a major problem in Portland, the Retail Trade association complained today in a public statement.

Confirming the association's report, police and juvenile court authorities said 150 to 175 instances of detection of shoplifting by girls of 12 to 15 in bobby socks and sweaters occurred during September and October and that the total now has risen to 250.

Steal Clothing, Jewelry.

Loot has included sweaters, scarfs, gloves, costume jewelry, lingerie, and perfume, it was said. Mrs. Elizabeth Moorad, a juvenile court official, said that cliques of girl shoplifters in the higher grades and high schools are "undoubtedly comparing notes on their larcenous experiences and exchanging pilfered goods with each other."

One department store reported that when two girls, 12 and 14, were caught recently with $150 worth of stolen merchandise, they explained they had embarked on their foray because one girl had suggested on their way to school, "Let's skip school today and go shoplifting."

Form 'Shoplifting Clubs.'

Juvenile officials said the offenders come from well to do families in many cases and that few of them can be considered underpriviliged children.

Shoplifting clubs are flourishing among school girls, it was reported by some of the offenders.

The girls enter stores equipped with lunch boxes or cases for carrying school books and cram these receptacles with loot, department store officials said.

Chicago Press Veterans Plan 6th Annual Dinner

CAPEHART OPPOSES PEACE PLAN AT COST OF U. S. SOVEREIGNTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—Homer E. Capehart, Republican senator-elect from Indiana, said today he will cooperate with his senate colleagues and the administration in plans to form a world organization to maintain peace, but will oppose any measure that would cost America her sovereignty.

Homer E. Capehart.

"The terms of the peace treaty must be enforced," Capehart said at a press conference. "To that end I will coöperate with the senate and the administration in the formation of a world association, but I will not support any step that would cause the United States to give up her sovereignty."

Asked today whether he would favor giving the American delegate to the proposed world security council power to commit American military forces to war without congressional approval, Capehart said he would not advocate any specific means of enforcing the peace until the issues are presented to the senate.

FLASH TO LEYTE CARRIES CHEER TO CHICAGOAN

A Chicago doctor caring for the wounded on Leyte Island is free from worry about his ill wife for the first time since Oct. 27. He is Maj. Peter Gaberman, 2922 Palmer st., who received a V-mail letter on that date telling him his wife was seriously ill. Day after day he waited for further word, but storms held back all mail.

Maj. and Mrs. Peter Gaberman.

Yesterday the Associated Press sent over its leased wires to Maj. Gaberman this message: "Dr. Ellis Freilich says Mrs. Gaberman's condition definitely better. She is recovering and making satisfactory progress."

The message traveled more than 18,000 miles by telephone, radio, and jeep. Only last night at 6 o'clock was the message service completed. Gaberman's voice was heard faintly over the field telephone: "O, boy, am I relieved? Thanks a million."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Gaberman is still in the hospital. Some day she will be told how her husband drove a jeep over mud roads to headquarters and asked Lt. Col. Roger Egeberg, Cleveland, O., Gen. MacArthur's aide, to help get a message thru. Egeberg in turn communicated with the Associated Press. Maj. Gaberman has been overseas two and a half years.

FORMER PASTOR ADMITS: 'I WAS MARRIED TO 3'

Would Sane Man Wed 4?

Father of 10 Asks.

In 18 years Noah Gray, 37, a former minister, acquired three wives, 10 children, and an indictment on a charge of bigamy. He was arraigned yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Peter M. Schwaba.

Noah Gray.

Gray, who wore a tired expression, pleaded guilty, shrugged off the stony gaze of two of the wives, Mrs. Thelma Temple Gray and Mrs. Vienna Maki Gray, who were present in the courtroom.

Third Wife Died in June.

A third wife, whom he married while he was still the husband of Thelma and Vienna, died last June 15. She was Adeline Prohaska Gray and her death and a subsequent effort by the undertaker to find Gray led to the discovery of the other wives.

Gray denied that he had married still another woman, Anna V. Szellman, in July of 1937 in Crown Point, Ind., as indicated by marriage license records. Why would any sane man want four wives? he demanded of Assistant State's Atty. Francis McCurrie. McCurrie had no answer.

Gray's marital sweepstakes, McCurrie told the court, followed this sequence:

In 1926 he married Thelma, whom he met at an ice cream social in Portsmouth, O., shortly after he had been ordained at McDonald, O. Eleven years later, the prosecutor said, he deserted her, by then the mother of five children, in Chicago. The children now range in age from 17 to 7.

Elope to Crown Point.

A few weeks later he married Vienna, who lived at 4060 Ellis av., in an elopement to Crown Point. Vienna also gave birth to five children, now aged from 6 years to 3 weeks.

In 1940 he was united to Adeline in a June wedding. During his marriage to her, McCurrie said, Gray met Vienna on the street one day, introduced the two women as "friends," but kept each from learning about his marital status with the other.

Gray, who now is a war plant worker, was extradited to Chicago from Hanford, Wash., after his indictment. His appeal for probation yesterday was continued to Dec. 5 by Judge Schwaba, after McCurrie indicated he would contest it.

As for Thelma and Vienna, both affirmed they wanted no more to do with Gray. "What we want to know is," they said, "are we married or aren't we?" Judge Schwaba promised them an answer in the early future.

MOTHER TURNS BURGLAR TO GET BIRTHDAY CASH

Mrs. Patricia Jedrzejas, 28, mother of three children, launched a brief burglary spree to finance a surprise birthday party for her blacksmith husband, Charles, she told Judge John Gutknecht yesterday in Felony court.

Mrs. Jedrzejas.

Mrs. Jedrzejas was arrested after accepting $25 from a second hand dealer for several radios and other household appliances, looted from the home of a friend, Mrs. Cecelia Wnukowski, 2018 S. Washtenaw av. She climbed thru a window when her friend went to a movie. Her explanation was that she didn't know how else she would get the money for the party.

Her daughter, Sharon, 4, clung to the mother's skirt as she told the court she was penitent. Her husband, with Charles Jr., 2, in his arms, stood beside her. The third child, Allen, 4 months old, was home, sick.

Judge Gutknecht ordered Mrs. Jedrzejas examined by the Criminal court behavior clinic, and continued her hearing until Nov. 30.

CONGRESS TOLD TO SET UP CURB ON BUROCRATS

Urged to Hire Expert Law Drafters.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—Congress was urged today by a house committee to overhaul its organization by hiring additional expert assistance in drafting legislation and by establishing permanent watchdog committees to curb burocratic abuses by executive agencies.

The proposal was made by the special house group studying illegal executive actions, which reported that in recent years New Deal agencies have drafted legislation they want and pushed it thru congress before its full import became apparent. Congress, it said, should have more expert help in drafting its own legislative program.

The committee, headed by Rep. Smith [D., Va.], warned that "framers and ratifiers of the Constitution never contemplated that the legislative branch of the government which they set up would become a mere ratifying body of a supreme executive will."

Joint Staff Urged.

The group offered these recommendations, which were incorporated in a bill introduced in the house today by Smith:

1. Establish a permanent joint legislative staff to give both the senate and the house expert, unbiased, and independent analyses of proposals before congress. Employes of the staff would have civil service status, and two directors, one for each house, would each get $10,000 a year.

2. Set up a joint senate-house standing committee on appropriations, adequately staffed, to study the uses that executive agencies make of congressional appropriations and to propose economies.

3. Have another permanent joint committee, similar to the house Smith group, to investigate transgressions of law by federal bureaus.

4. Establish a third senate-house group to study congressional procedures and to propose improvements, such as the possible revamping of various committee functions to eliminate duplication.

Scales Tipped for New Deal.

The report said that, altho the present congressional committee system has been largely successful in helping write the nation's laws, the flood of legislation in recent years has resulted in the hasty and uninformed passage of some undesirable bills and the rejection of other desirable bills.

Under the present system, the report asserted, "the scales are tipped" in favor of passage of administrative proposals and "are also heavily weighted in opposition to any congressional move to retract and recall powers previously delegated to executive agencies."

Six Real-Life Reasons to BUY WAR BONDS

Sketched on an Army Hospital Train by war correspondent Robert Benney

Six reasons to buy War Bonds? Mr. Benney could as well have sketched sixty!

He might have sketched Sergeant Jim with his pinned-up pajama leg . . . joining cheerfully in a barber shop quartet. Someday, the doctors say, Jim won't even limp. But it takes money to make that promise good.

And what about the youngster with the bandaged eyes? Even victory won't end the war for him. In his battle with darkness, he has first call on every aid our funds can provide.

Would anyone hold back dollars that can ease war's bitter aftermath for these men who held back nothing? Would anyone count the cost of more planes and ships and guns to speed the day when hospital trains need run no more?

Right now, that twofold task calls for fourteen billions in extra War Bonds. It will mean digging deep . . . choosing again and again between War Bonds and the things we'd like to buy. But after all, what we invest in Victory we'll get back . . . four dollars for every three . . . in a world made secure by these fellow Americans who are giving so much for keeps.

BELGIAN UNREST.

Premier Pierlot of Belgium is having his troubles. On Sunday there was a parade of 15,000 men and women in Brussels demanding that he resign. Many of the demonstrators waved hammer and sickle banners and sang the "International" as they marched. The Associated Press correspondent says that none of the demonstrators openly carried arms, but adds that there was no doubt that many in the parade were armed, despite the Belgian government's order that the citizens surrender their guns now that their country has been liberated.

In such a situation Mr. Stalin might have been helpful. Perhaps his admirers in Belgium would not heed a suggestion from him that they cease their agitation for the present, but at least he might have tried to call them off. He would have the best of reasons for doing so. While his armies have been making little significant progress in recent months in the east, his American, British, and French allies of late have been putting forth stupendous efforts in the west. If the war is going to be won this year it will be won in the west. Important supply lines run thru Belgium, and the fear of disorder there not only has required a good deal of Gen. Eisenhower's attention of late but also has obliged him to keep substantial reserves in this area. The Belgian Communists and other resistance groups have only now heeded Gen. Eisenhower's earnest plea of a few days ago to the Belgian people. If Stalin did anything to help, the record doesn't show it.

So far as Mr. Stalin is concerned, coöperation is pretty much a one-way street. Only in recent weeks has he begun to shake a reproving finger at Japan, but it is significant that he hasn't done anything to relieve Chiang Kai-shek's difficulties with the Chinese Communists, whose failure to coöperate with the lawful Chinese government is to no small degree responsible for Japanese successes in China. Stalin insisted that England and America back his man, Tito, in Yugoslavia, but Stalin hasn't offered to back our man, Chiang, in China, who has a better claim than Tito ever had to the support of all the allies.

Defenders of Stalin will say that Communists outside his country are under no obligation to obey him, but the fact is that Communist adherents everywhere have commonly taken their orders from Moscow; and the further fact is that he hasn't even tried to see what he can do to ease the problem in either Belgium or China. It will be his fault if the rest of the world, reading the news from Brussels, gets the idea that Moscow prefers disorder in the liberated countries in the belief that communism can then move in.

Belgium's difficulties since the liberation have been grave. The country is one of the most densely populated areas of its size in the world, which means that it has a relatively small farm population and a relatively large urban, industrial population. There is food on the farms which might be adequate to supply the cities' needs for a time at least, but the farmers have been reluctant to sell at prevailing prices, and this difficulty has been aggravated by the disruption of transportation services. A lot of bridges, roads, and canals were blown up in the German retreat, and a large portion of the rolling stock that wasn't destroyed was taken by the Germans. The lines are gradually being repaired, but the allied armies have a first claim on their use, and the Belgian people, perforce, get only what is left.

In such circumstances, any Belgian government, whether of the left, the right, or the center, would be in trouble. About all any government could do would be to press the people to work as hard and as fast as possible in repairing the war damage and meanwhile counsel them to shiver without complaint and to starve with dignity in the hope that the allied victory would be achieved speedily and that relief would follow promptly. A government with that kind of a program is going to have hard sledding at best.

HERE GOES THE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

That annual civic merry-go-round known as the preparation of the county budget has started up again. As usual, the calliope music is provided by the occupants of the fee offices, screaming to the circuit judges that they need more help to serve the public and push doorbells for the fifth term. The judges ought to tell them to leave the doorbell pushing to the PAC, but they won't.

In the past, spokesmen for various civic associations and taxpayers have labored mightily, but on the whole, in vain, to instill a little fiscal sanity into the county board. This year they might as well sit back and enjoy the show. After all, they're paying for it. By Broadway standards, 20 millions or so are a pretty big price for the production, but then there are a lot of Broadway productions that don't provide so many laughs.

This year's performance ought to reach some new heights in the ludicrous. Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, who embodied a large proportion of the financial literacy of the board, died shortly after he was carried from his bed to cast the deciding vote for last year's budget. He must have passed on at peace with the world, because in the final months of his life he achieved his ambition of getting the county out of debt, or nearly so, at least. It was done by the unorthodox method of selling bonds to pay debts, but at least the boys are starting this year on top of a new hill. Watch them slide.

Assessor Clark's 100 per cent assessments have put an extra shine on the runners. The change in the valuation basis put the return that the county can get on its old statutory tax rate above its pegged levy by a couple of million dollars. That, however, won't last long. If the budget balances, even with the extra gravy, it will be purely by oversight.

As usual the fee officers are asking for several score new jobs. Mr. Mulcahy, the newly elected sheriff, is one of the more ambitious. He wants several score, mostly in the county highway police. Mr. Mulcahy said during the campaign that he was going to be an honest sheriff, and his record gives hope that he may live up to his promise, but if he is going to be an honest sheriff he doesn't need any highway police. Elsewhere in Illinois the state highway force patrols the highways. The principal function of the Cook county highway force has been to see that roulette wheels didn't turn or bookies' wall sheets didn't go up in suburban roadhouses —until the proprietors had seen the proper parties. If Mr. Mulcahy wants people to believe his campaign pledge, he should give up his cops.

A POST-WAR USE FOR LANDING CRAFT.

The government's sale of obsolete assault boats suggests that many types of specialized landing craft which have been turned out by the tens of thousands for this amphibious war could be usefully employed after the war as cargo carriers on our inland waterways. Most of them are of extremely shallow draft and could load cargos from lake beaches if necessary.

Some types, such as the LST [landing ship, tank], an example of which is on exhibit at the Navy pier 6th war loan show, have a very large cargo capacity and might be able to compete advantageously on fairly long hauls. This type of vessel is capable of crossing the ocean by itself, but has not enough cargo capacity to compete in ocean traffic, where we shall be overstocked with war-built merchant vessels, in any event.

We have already built a fleet of about 100,000 landing craft of all types, and many of them have been produced in ship yards on the Great Lakes. Some of the larger have had to be floated on pontoons thru the Illinois-Mississippi channel, but a great many of them can navigate a channel even this shallow without difficulty. They would be able to navigate not only the lakes, but the St. Lawrence and Illinois waterways.

Thousands of sailors and coast guardmen have been trained in the handling of these craft, and the use of the vessels on inland waterways and in lake shipping would give employment to a large number of men who are already thoroly equipped for the work. Inasmuch as the services will have use for only a limited number of these specialized craft once peace returns, it would profit small shippers to begin thinking of acquiring some of the surplus as commercial carriers.

Crews now operating the craft in war might even think of going into business for themselves. With the federal loans which they may obtain for a start in business after their service is completed they could pool enough funds to acquire a vessel and start bidding for a share in post-war lake and river traffic.

EFFRONTERY.

A pamphlet by Edward L. Bernays represents that the nation's press has "failed to gain the broad public acceptance it should, either as a disseminator of news or as an instrument of social leadership. There is danger to our democratic well-being in this condition," he continues, "for unless the public regards the press as a free and independent medium and an instrument of leadership, it will find difficulty in maintaining its status and privileges in our society. It may lose its position as a public service institution, and there may be a tendency on the part of the public toward restriction and control, despite the first amendment."

Who is Mr. Bernays? Well, the gentleman who hands down these pronouncements is a press agent. He has graduated to a paneled office, so that makes him a public relations counselor. He represents a business that would like to be classified as a profession. The business is a parasite on the press. Responsible editors spend a fair amount of time protecting the public from the paid special interest pressures of Mr. Bernays and those of his kind.

Mr. Bernays, if he can sell his thesis, apparently hopes for a little business. "Newspapers," he says, "must make a realistic reëxamination of their public relations platforms. . . . The press must consciously go about trying to make the public recognize its values in the fields of leadership and news. This can be done thru what is known as the 'engineering of consent,' using public relations procedures employed today by all kinds of groups, to gain greater acceptance for the press from the public." So much for Mr. Bernays' disinterestedness. He has something to sell.

Mr. Bernays' ally in the argument that newspapers are losing public confidence is Fortune magazine. It took a poll five years ago. Fortune also has an ax to grind. It is part of Mr. Henry Luce's magazine string, which is in competition with the daily press. If the public can be convinced that the press is unreliable, perhaps it will turn to what Mr. Luce calls his "newsmagazine." Mr. Luce, like Mr. Bernays, is sniffing for a little business.

Other newspapers may do as they will. THE TRIBUNE needs no advice from fly-by-nights. Its circulation figures are printed where anybody can see them. Its following has been attained, not by any shyster methods of "engineering consent," but thru the solid worth of the news, the features, and the advertising it presents, and the reputation for honesty, independence, and courage it has built up thru 97 years. The measure of a newspaper's success is the faith it keeps with its readers. That, undoubtedly, will be news to Mr. Bernays.

The plan to pay off the national debt in the next 100 years should be a powerful argument for New Dealers who favor a fifth, sixth, seventh, and maybe an eighth term, depending upon the political emergency at the time.—Kansas City Star.

FEATHERS ON TIME'S WING.

Every day in every way large numbers of people are having birthdays. Crowned heads, dictators, and Presidents with "mandates" are flattered with national celebrations, but the rest of us manage to get along with a cake, a candle, and brief, perfunctory salutes by the happy birthday song, or with nothing except the comforts or pangs of our own meditations. "Birthdays are feathers in the broad wing of Time," wrote Jean Paul Richter, a German who may be quoted without political risks, and when a large number of them have been shed, the birthday child begins to wonder when the supply of pinions will run out.

It seems to have been forgotten that a firm stand against Presidential celebrations was taken by one of the Founding Fathers. Thomas Jefferson wrote in a letter, 1803:

"Disapproving of transferring the honors and veneration for the great birthday of our Republic to any individual, or of dividing them with individuals, I have declined letting my own birthday be known, and have engaged my family not to communicate it."

The most important birthday stands at the zero mark on the scale. It is, in fact, the only birthday, and its successors are merely anniversaries. Reaching the magic number of democracies, 21, used to be an occasion for special observances, such as paternal bestowal of a watch upon the new voter, but in this era there is more fuss over the dubious age when a twerp may safely drive, and perhaps own, a motor car. The arrival of 50 is a solemn matter, for it starts the downhill journey toward the sunset.

The ancient lore of birthstones, fostered by jewelers without noticeable results, is baffling in its symbolism. Why, for example, should Adolf Hitler have missed the bloodstone by 20 days and been born to the diamond or the sapphire?

AT SIXTEEN.

And a flower to wear in my hair.
I'm going out dancing from ten 'til two . . .
And there's no telling who'll be there!

My manicured nails have a rosy hue
And my curls are all shining and neat,
For I'm going out dancing from ten 'til two . . .
And there's no telling who I'll meet!

He may be a lad in a soldier suit
Or a boy in a middy of white,
For I'm going out dancing from ten 'til two . . .
And I may fall in love tonight!

My slippers are dainty, and white, and new;
I'm a-shimmer from head to toe.
For I'm going out dancing from ten 'til two . . .
With the boys at the U. S. O.!

The Rebel.

Chicago's Finest Street, Old Style.

After the traditional heavy Sunday dinner of 50 years ago, Pa hitched the family horse to a surrey, a vehicle favored by the more or less well to do middle class, and loaded it with kith and kin for a ride to Jackson park.

The first stop was at 39th st. and Grand blvd. [now South Park way], where there was a huge fountain to satisfy the thirst of man and beast. Grand blvd. was one of the show streets of the town—a three lane highway, two miles long, lined with the mansions of wealthy citizens. The middle drive was wide enough to permit harness races on certain afternoons.

On Saturday and Sunday afternoons Grand blvd. was crowded with pleasure vehicles of all types—broughams, landaus, carriages, hansom cabs, and buggies of various vintages. Occasionally an open victoria would roll by, with high-stepping bays in spanking harness, coachman and footman correctly attired, and ladies carrying colorful parasols.

So they drove down the boulevard and into the quiet of Washington park, past its refectory and Sans Souci to Jackson park, where memories of the World's fair were still vivid. There in the shadow of the Iowa building, a fair survivor, they rested to enjoy views of the Fine Arts building, the German building, and the great blue lake. Max of the Second Gallery.

HARVEST BENISON.

Thru golden days and silvery harvest moon,
The fields have yielded up their priceless store
Of corn and wheat, a truly matchless boon
When hunger stalks as seldom known before.
Thruout the world the noise of conflict sounds;
Few homes remain without their missing ones.
In Old World lands grief knit with want abounds,
And yet the cost of war increasing runs.

"Why should I pray when all about is dark?"
Rebellious souls cry from their depth of grief;
"When all the future holds is bleak and stark,
What boots it now to ask for vain relief?"
But benison is rich in field and sky,
And God above can all man's needs supply.

The old time Duke's Cameo and Sweet Caps [Nov. 16] were packed 10 in a thin, square-edged cardboard box, opening at the end. The package also included 10 tapering waxed-paper holders about one-half inch long, nested to save space. They were supposed to prevent telltale stains on lips or fingers. Warren Estey.

Mrs. A. H. writes: "I have been told that organizations may send packages exceeding the usual five pounds if they are consigned to the American Red Cross in a military area overseas."

Parcels for military agencies, including those sent to hospitals, medical units, canteens, Red Cross, or library officers, may weigh up to 70 pounds and measure 100 inches in length and girth combined. Such parcels should be plainly indorsed "for military agency."

Mrs. D. W. writes: "My daughter and her children have been living in New York near an army post at which her husband was stationed. He is a sergeant and now has been transferred to another state. Is she entitled to moving expenses, and, if so, how are they obtained?"

Commissioned officers and men in the first four pay grades are entitled to the transportation of household goods in some cases. Only one such move may be made for the war's duration. It always is preferable for the service man to handle such matters, and your son-in-law should contact the transportation officer at his present post for exact information as to his eligibility and the necessary forms.

MASSAGE AND PAINFUL MUSCLE RIGIDITY.

PAIN which originates within the muscles is of common occurrence. Many will exhibit fleeting twinges which come and go. With others, the symptom may be sufficiently severe to bring on disability. The origin may not be injury but a failing circulation.

What actually happens? Tiny fibers within the working structures of the body are replaced by fibrous deposits which are not elastic. They act a good deal like foreign bodies—minute splinters. The answer to the problem lies in stimulating the blood flow to the parts so that absorption will take place, with the return of normal power.

Physicians encounter this condition daily but many fail to recognize it. It is looked upon as rheumatism, arthritis, sinus infection, or what have you. In almost every instance where distress is produced by firm pressure—if other causes can be ruled out—fibrositis is present. Here deep massage—from one to a half dozen hour treatments—will disperse the hardened regions completely or destroy their ability to give rise to discomfort.

Now, many of these paroxysms will be experienced within the chest and there is a tendency to assume that the sufferer has angina pectoris. This is not so at all. Scientific massage of the "pulleys" which cover the chest and back, more often than not, will prove curative. If it is true angina, it will respond to the use of nitroglycerin.

It is not unusual these days to observe women carrying heavy shopping loads—baskets, bags, and bundles. The strain may be enough to result in fibrositis, which will be manifested in the arms, shoulders, and along the lower margin of the breast.

Considerable trouble of this character may be noted in the neighborhood of the head and neck. Not long ago, in one of our discussions, it was pointed out that in some of these cases, soreness will radiate up the neck and down to both shoulders. One investigator found that the use of a local anesthetic, assisted by manipulation, was all that was required. Under the influence of novocaine, the patient who held the head taut was able to move it about with facility. What ensued is clear. The twisting and turning of her head, which she had not done for weeks, stretched the muscles and broke up adhesions. The effect was identical with massage. The sensation of tightness vanished and circulation was reëstablished.

We must keep in mind, of course, that arthritis is an accompaniment of the aging process and many types of pain will be referred from the spine as it becomes rigid. But this need not blind us to the presence of fibrotic areas which require merely squeezing and kneading.

The beauty of this procedure is that many victims can treat themselves. Once the diagnosis has been established, the balls of the fingers can dig into aching sites, which will release stiffness. By and large, pressure must be firm enough to reach the tissues an inch or more below the surface. Sometimes the clenched knuckles will serve better than the fingertips. The skilled physician may actually feel these marblelike nodules beneath the skin. Relief will come only when they are broken up and absorbed by an increased blood supply.

DRINKING HUBBY.

Mrs. K. writes: My husband started to drink when he was 16 and he is now 35. He consumes three whiskies and one-half gallon of beer daily. He has not been feeling good lately. What would you suggest?

Encourage him to consult the family doctor. The chances are that your better half will be advised to curtail his consumption of alcohol. A little is enough.

City Sight.

One of the city's magnificent orange hued garbage trucks moved slowly out of an alley in the rain [reports Roberta]. Behind the truck walked a denim clad member of its crew. A great wide shovel dangled casually from one hand while in the other, held daintily aloft, was a lady's blue and white striped umbrella.

Happy Crew.

The luckiest army wives in America get to Chicago on Dec. 12. There are 39 of them. Their husbands are part of the all-army cast of "Winged Victory," the army air forces show written by Moss Hart, and so are they. The show opened in Boston last Nov. 20, and altho in New York two hotels were converted into barrack "posts" for most of the cast, the 39 soldiers whose wives act with them could live off the posts. Similarly in Hollywood, where the show was made into a film. A tent city was erected as a post, but the 39 men with wives at hand lived as they pleased. All with special war department permission, too.

Not Yet.

Strained Joy.

With a single exception the Filipino public is delirious with joy at the arrival of the American troops, Pvt. Ted Mikolojko reports. The exception is the 12 year old boy he met who said, tearfully, "But now I'll have to go back to school. While the Japs were in control, my father let me stay home."

Beard to Beard.

Now that Jack Thompson, THE TRIBUNE'S bearded war correspondent, has gone back to the front lines, it seems safe to chronicle his conversation with a full bearded Englishman who bowed and introduced himself to Mr. Thompson as the latter dined in a London restaurant. Mr. Thompson got up and bowed, and the conversation ran like this:

Englishman to Mr. T.: "Do you like your beard?"

Mr. T.: "Yes, I like my beard. Do you like yours?"

"Yes, I like my beard. Does your wife like your beard?"

"Yes, she likes my beard. Does your wife like your beard?"

"No, but I don't like my wife. Would you care to join us for a glass of champagne? My wife and I are celebrating our 20th wedding anniversary."

Talented Actors.

A recent item here about repertory theater in rural Indiana reminded Cliff Soubier, radio comedian, of an incident long ago when he was trouping about with a tent dramatic show, known as "rag opry" among the actors. Every one with the show was expected to lend a hand erecting and tearing down the tent at each stand, so knowing how to tie knots became second nature with the performers. One dismal night Soubier and a fellow actor were stumbling thru the dark toward the miserable little hotel that was their temporary home. Passing a residence, Soubier pointed to a man reading comfortably in an attractive living room. "Look at him. He has it pretty soft," Soubier exclaimed. "That may be," the other conceded, "but I'll bet the idiot doesn't know how to tie a half hitch."

Farewell.

[From Lavada Vilmure.]

"We were standing at the graveside of a dear friend. She was elderly, and it seemed that God had chosen the proper time to call her home, for the skies were blue-gray and the autumn leaves were falling all around. As the minister spoke the final words over the casket and it was being lowered into the grave, a lovely golden brown leaf floated gently down and came to rest upon the casket. It, too, was lowered into the grave."

CASHING WAR BONDS.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—It is shocking to hear from Secretary Morgenthau that a large percentage of the bonds sold in September were cashed in October.

What can we say to our boys who are making sacrifices when we use bonds merely as a delayed check to be cashed in at the earliest permitted moment?

It should be mandatory for every one to keep bonds purchased until due date, or cash them only for valid reasons permitted by the proper authorities.

The names of all those cashing in bonds should be printed and the records kept so that at some future time if the recipients should ask for relief or any other help from their government, the fact that bonds have been cashed in should be taken into consideration.

Pressure campaigns in the selling of bonds should be eliminated, but purchasers should be educated to realize that every purchase is a promise for a better country, and that all bonds purchased, therefore, should be kept until they mature. M. YELLIN.

NO CHOICE FOR THE NATIONALISTS.

Englewood, Colo., Nov. 14.—Colorado's six electoral votes went to Mr. Dewey on Nov. 7. Four years ago they went for Mr. Willkie. But, frankly, we Republican nationalists in Colorado are becoming just a little tired of being "sold down the river." Mr. Dewey tried to ride two horses—the white horse of American nationalism and the red horse of internationalism. It takes an expert to ride two horses at once and Mr. Dewey is no expert, so he took a great fall.

Mr. Dewey's political advisers should have told him that every internationalist vote in the nation went to the fourth term candidate. Some of the nationalists voted for Mr. Dewey. The others—several million of them—stayed home. Figure it out for yourself: There are 80 million voters in the nation; only 46 million voted. Dewey needed only 4 million more votes, or 2 million more than Willkie received, to win. Gov. Bricker or a number of other Republican nationalists I might mention could have won. Sen. Taft, who was gypped out of the nomination by the eastern internationalists, could have won four years ago.

As Mr. Dewey said, "It's time for a change." Let's have a new party, a party for American nationalists, who, altho in the majority in this great land of ours, have no political party to represent them. DEWEY M. TAFT.

SILENCING UPTON CLOSE.

Highland Park, Ill., Nov. 16.—Thank you very much for your editorial this morning on Upton Close. Those of us who have listened to him regularly have felt, of late, that his remarks had the ring of a farewell. Knowing, or possibly strongly suspecting, what was in store for him—dismissal—he still had the courage to warn us of what he called "statism."

RAFT'S DICE GAME.

Berwyn, Ill., Nov. 15.—It makes my blood boil when I read in today's paper about George Raft winning $10,000 in a dice game, while my brothers and nephews are dodging bullets for $50 a month. What kind of Americans are these people? MRS. BETTY BRELIS.

FROM A SAILOR.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—I read in your column on the editorial page a few of the letters sent to you condemning you for all the so-called mud slinging you have done and the cartoons that you have printed. These letter writers are the kind of people who are ripe for a leader to step in and take the government over for his own use. Their attitude is the same as that of many persons in Germany before Hitler took over.

Your paper has done more for this country than most thick headed letter writers will ever realize. I admit that you have gone to extremes in revealing the many blunders of the Democratic party, but it takes a lot of emphasis on the faults of an administration to make most people realize what it is doing wrong. If there wasn't a paper like yours in this country that printed what it wanted to because it thought the people should know the facts, it would be easy for the administration to slip many otherwise unseen wrongdoings past the American public. Reports on errors in government are not mud slinging, but calling a paper names for exercising its rights is. Keep up the good work. W. S., S 2/C.

PREDICTION FULFILLED.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—All freedom loving people must view with alarm the case of Upton Close vs. the New Deal.

History shows us that the first power asserted by Communists and Fascists in taking over control of a government is to stifle freedom of speech and the press. This group in America have shown their ugly heads in bringing pressure to bear to have Close kicked off the air. The very things that he predicted are now coming to pass.

KATHRYN F. GOULD.

SHE WASN'T AMUSED.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Funny, isn't it? But I must say that my sense of humor is deserting me. This article was found tucked away in an obscure spot in one of our prominent newspapers. Let all good Americans read it and meditate upon it for the next four years:

"Washington, Nov. 10 [INS].—President Roosevelt today sidestepped—thru roars of laughter at his press conference—the question of whether he would run again for reëlection in 1948. He said the question was hoary with age; that he had been asked the same thing in 1940, and, as far as he could remember, he might have been asked that in 1936 also." CORINNE MILLER.

WHAT TO DO WITH STRIKERS.

Des Plaines, Ill., Nov. 13.—It would be a good idea to keep a record of all strikers during war time and when this war is over and all our boys come home, lay these strikers off and give our service men their jobs. I am sure that they would be satisfied with conditions and salaries here at home. AMERICAN.

BAR INCOME TAX DEDUCTION FOR ELECTION LOSER

High Court Says Candidate Hazards Own Funds.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—An $8,000 price placed upon a judicial candidacy by the Democratic party in Pennsylvania was declared a non-deductible income tax item in a 5 to 4 Supreme court decision today.

The court ruled that a judge's campaign for reelection did not constitute a "transaction entered into for profit" and campaign expenses incurred by a losing candidate might not be entered as "losses" on his income tax return.

The majority and minority opinions were notable for their frank discussion of the sordid phases of politics as practiced in some localities. The ruling was of interest to the thousands of candidates for national and state office whose campaign expenses total millions of dollars.

Calls It an Assessment.

Former Judge Michael F. McDonald of the Common Pleas court of Luzerne county, Pa., sought to deduct $13,017 in "reelection expenses" from his 1939 return after he had ben defeated for reelection. He explained he had been forced to pay an "assessment" of $8,000 to the Democratic party organization to get his name on the ticket and also spent $5,017 in campaign expenses.

The salary of a common pleas judge was $12,000 a year for a term of 10 years, he explained, and all candidates were "assessed" on the basis of their total prospective salaries. Inasmuch as he lost, he contended, the expenses were deductible as in any transaction entered into for profit.

The commissioner of internal revenue disallowed the item and notified McDonald of a deficiency of $2,506. He appealed to the United States Tax court and the Circuit Court of Appeals, both of which affirmed the commissioner, and the case was then taken to the Supreme court.

Read by Frankfurter.

The majority opinion, further affirming the commissioner's ruling, was read by Justice Frankfurter and concurred in by Chief Justice Stone and Justices Roberts, Jackson, and Rutledge.

McDonald could deduct expenses related to the discharge of his functions as judge but not "in trying to be a judge for the next 10 years," the court held. As to the "transaction for profit" argument, it declared:

"Petitioner's money was not spent to buy the election but to buy the opportunity to persuade the electors. His campaign contribution was not an insurance of victory frustrated by 'an act of God' but the price paid for an active share in the hazards of popular elections."

The Dissenting Opinion.

The dissenting opinion was drafted by Justice Black and concurred in by Justices Reed, Douglas and Murphy.

"I can hardly conceive that we should infer that congress wanted to penalize, thru its tax laws, necessary campaign expenses and thereby condemn a practice of campaigning that is as old as our country and which exists in every state of the union," wrote Black.

"I deny the existence of a public policy which, while permitting congress to tax the income of elected public officials, bars congress from allowing a deduction for necessary campaign expenses," he added.

"State officials all over this nation have been subject to federal income taxes since 1939. When they run for office, they must necessarily spend some money to advertise their campaigns.

"We permit private individuals to deduct expenses incurred in advertising to get business."

SOLDIER ASKS: TAKE CHILDREN FROM MY WIFE

Pvt. John Baily, 22, of 1451 N. Rockwell st., asked Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court yesterday to take the custody of his two children, Diane, 2, and Joan, 8 months old, away from his estranged wife, Lorraine, 20, of 1532 Walton st.

Mrs. Baily and her mother, Mrs. Katherine Krawczyk, 40, with whom she lives, were arrested last month on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of the children and were placed on probation for a year. Baily, represented by Atty. Harry X. Cole, has filed a suit for divorce, charging his wife with drunkeness and adultery.

AP MEMBERSHIP HAS UNEQUALED POWER, SUN SAYS

Subscribers Privileged Class, Brief Holds.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Chicago Sun described the Associated Press to the Supreme court today as "a news gathering organization with an actual and potential power that cannot be equaled."

The paper contended that exclusive privileges conferred upon members of the AP make them "a privileged class in American journalism."

The Sun presented a brief as a friend of the court in the government's civil anti-trust suit which seeks to change membership by-laws of the AP.

The paper said it sought membership in the AP or access to its facilities. After these were refused, the Sun told the court, it filed a complaint with the attorney general charging the AP violated the anti-trust laws.

Stresses AP Greatness.

A special three-judge federal court of the southern district of New York held the AP should be restrained from observing by-laws which permit members to consider the competitive effect of an application for membership. The court held, however, that the nonprofit news coöperative might restrict admission on other grounds. The Supreme court is scheduled next month to begin a review of this decision.

The Sun, citing the AP's news gathering facilities and the coöperative activities of AP members, told the tribunal:

"The combination of so great a majority of the American newspapers pooling their individual and their collective news gathering facilities creates a news gathering organization with an actual and potential power that cannot be equaled. No other American news agency has or, while the exclusive features exist, can have comparable facilities and resources."

Offers Unique Advantage.

The result, the Sun said, is that AP members have unique competitive advantages. It asserted that AP members have "maintained a structure designed to perpetuate their exclusive competitive privileges and to keep out competitors. . . .

"AP has retained the exclusive feature despite the fact that it calls itself a coöperative, and that the essence of a coöperative is membership open upon equal terms to all persons in the class of those served by the coöperative. . . . As a cooperative, the interests of AP would be served by increasing its membership."

The paper's brief suggested that new AP by-laws should be drawn "so as to declare that membership shall not be denied except for cause."

TAVERN LAWYER DRAWS FINE LINE IN CHURCH ROW

Harold Snavely, operator of the 100 Club tavern in Highwood, who is alleged to have opened his establishment too close to a church, appeared before the Illinois liquor control commission yesterday to appeal the revoking of his license. Proceedings were delayed for more than an hour while his lawyer, Leo Bartolini, argued the difference between the physical and spiritual church.

Bartolini, in an attempt to prove that the spiritual church if not the physical church was more than 100 feet from Snavely's tavern, as required by law, questioned the Rev. William G. Overend, pastor of the Highwood Methodist church, and Dr. George A. Fowler, superintendent of the Chicago northern district of the Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Overend, a student pastor, said he could not answer Bartolini's question, but Dr. Fowler stated firmly: "There is a spiritual church, but the entire edifice is considered the church." The case was continued until Nov. 28.

CAN YOU DRESS IN SUCH "glamorous fashion" —OR DOES PSORIASIS FORCE YOU TO DRESS FOR CONCEALMENT?
If you suffer from such a handicap — try SIROIL. It might alter the picture for you considerably. SIROIL tends to remove the crusts and scales of psoriasis which are external in character and located on the outer layer of the skin. If or when your psoriasis lesions recur, light applications of SIROIL will help keep them under control. Applied externally, SIROIL does not stain clothing or bed linen, nor does it interfere in any way with your daily routine. Try it. Certainly it's worth a trial, particularly since it's offered to you on a two-weeks'-satisfaction-or-money-refunded basis.

U. S. Chemist Is Heard in Fernel Drug Act Case

Harold F. O'Keefe, analytical chemist employed by the federal food and drug administration, was the government's first witness yesterday in Judge Michael L. Igoe's federal court in the trial of Jean Paul Fernel, 54, former plastic surgeon, on charges of violating the food and drug act. O'Keefe told of his analysis of 15 of the medical preparations which Fernell is accused in a criminal information of selling in violation of the act. Nine physicians are scheduled to present their analyses of the products in today's hearing.

2 ARSON FIRES BARED BY QUIZ IN SEVEN DEATHS

One Apartment Victim Still Unidentified.

After testimony by four witnesses about the quick spread of flames that killed seven persons, one still unidentified, Sunday midnight in the Lille apartments at 1353-5 E. 47th pl., Deputy Coroner Jack Pryzbylinski said yesterday that he suspected the blaze was of incendiary origin.

James R. Hughes, chief of the 16th battalion, who led the first fire fighting unit to the scene, said upon his arrival the flames were confined to the rear entrance at No. 1355, but a few minutes later flames were discovered in the front stairway just above the ground floor. The two fires were more than 40 feet apart and were of separate origin, Hughes said.

One Dead Unidentified.

Identified dead are Peter Koteras; Ann, his wife; Dora Rosenberg, Jessie Poland, Ann Schaefer, and Lawrence A. Fournier, 66, an architect who lived in the building. Fournier was identified last night by his brother, Harold, 7944 Michigan av. At that time, a woman victim was unidentified.

Pryzbylinski and James Whalen, assistant chief deputy coroner, presided at the inquest held in a chapel at 1005 E. 47th st. It was continued until Dec. 20 to seek additional evidence.

Tenants were hanging out of second and third story windows of the smoke filled building when he arrived after the alarm was turned in at 11:30 p. m. Sunday, Hughes said. The body of a woman lay on the concrete under a window from which she had jumped.

Tenant Discovers Fire.

W. E. Melton, a tenant, told of discovering the flames, turning in the alarm, and pounding on apartment doors to awaken his neighbors. A district claim agent for the Wabash railroad, he was visiting Harold Tidmarsh when they heard a "terrific slam." From the window they saw a mattress leaning against a basement banister, both in flames.

Mrs. Dora Outman, who has managed the 31 apartment building for more than two years, said the mattress, discarded by a tenant, had been left in a little used entrance. The building had been inspected six months ago, fire extinguishers were in working order, and there had been no trouble with tenants or neighbors, she said.

Straw Found a Week Ago.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Outman said, she heard an iron bar drop, but an investigation proved fruitless. A week ago a pile of grass and straw was found in a rear entrance, but she assumed it had been left by children. The building is owned by Gillmore Jones.

Max Mandel, who was found in an apartment near 47th st. and Drexel blvd. after the fire, was released by police after being questioned.

UNIONIST TELLS OF SLUGGING BY CIO ORGANIZER

Accused Man Denies Charges in Court.

Matt Kearns, international vice president of the Transport Workers of America [CIO], went on trial yesterday before Municipal Judge Edward P. Luczak and a jury of 10 women and two men on charges of assault and battery. Harold A. Cunningham, trustee of the Chicago Motor Coach Employes' fraternity, an independent union, was complaining witness.

Cunningham, who weighs 102 pounds, grew excited as he described the assault upon him by the 172 pound, 5 foot 11 inch tall Kearns, a New York labor organizer who came to Chicago in February, 1943.

Tells Flight from Slugger.

"This guy [Kearns] comes at me at Sherman st. and Jackson blvd," said Cunningham.

Kearns looked so much "like a maniac," Cunningham went on, that he turned and ran down La Salle st. to escape.

"Pretty soon a cab stops and Kearns bounds out," the witness went on.

Kearns, Cunningham testified, grabbed him by the throat and began choking him and banging his head against the side of a building; then he twisted his [Cunningham's] arm, thrust his knee into his abdomen, and tried to garrot him with his necktie.

Defendant Denies Charges.

Kearns on the stand denied all charges. He said he warned Cunningham in a fatherly spirit because he believed Cunningham was a spy hanging around the transport worker headquarters, 166 W. Jackson blvd.

"Did you strike Cunningham?" Meyers asked him. Kearns smiled.

"Of course not," he said.

"Did you use profane language?"

Kearns replied: "That [July 16] was a Sunday. I wouldn't use profanity on a Sunday."

Three character witnesses for Kearns were Michael Quill, a New York alderman from the Bronx and president of the Transport Workers' union; Maurice McElligot, secretary treasurer of the Illinois State Industrial council, and Robert C. Travis, vice president of the council. The hearing will resume today.

...revolutionary new air-wick* kills kitchen odors... only product of its kind containing miracle-working chlorophyll

no fuss... no bother
nothing to light or burn
just pull up the wick

Here's a pleasant, easy way to kill all unpleasant household odors...to make indoor air country-fresh. Simply uncap a bottle of air-wick and pull up the wick. Odors disappear like magic. air-wick has no unpleasant "medicinal" odor, nor is it in any sense a "perfume." It is a scientific grouping of literally hundreds of aromatic substances which in combination neutralize almost any known unpleasant odor. And in addition, air-wick, and air-wick alone, contains activated chlorophyll...the miracle-working substance which in its natural state freshens the air in gardens.

Keep one bottle of air-wick in the kitchen...another for bathroom use...and a third for smoke-stale living rooms. You'll find air-wick on sale at all better stores.

Floyd S. Young, who as director of the Lincoln park zoo for 21 years has won the affection of thousands of wild animals and birds, will be retired on Dec. 12, George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district, announced yesterday. Young's retirement will be technically effective next Jan. 7, his 65th birthday. He will be succeeded by the present assistant director, R. Marlin Perkins.

R. M. Perkins.

During Young's directorship the zoo population has been increased by approximately 600 animals and 4,000 birds. More than 500 "babies" have been born in captivity to his charges. Half have survived.

FINAL O. K. GIVEN ON ABSENTEE DIVORCE SUITS

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday reaffirmed an opinion it gave in September that the personal appearance of the plaintiff is not required by law in a divorce case in this state.

A rule of Cook county Circuit and Superior courts was voided by the Supreme court opinion, issued to allow an appeal filed in behalf of an overseas soldier, Frederick Roy Kinsley, whose suit for divorce against Verona Haller Kinsley was not accepted in Superior court.

The Supreme court ordered the divorce case heard on its merits, tho Kinsley was unable to appear. Superior court judges asked the Supreme court to review its opinion, and the higher court refused. At least 40 divorce suits filed by absent soldiers are on file in Cook county courts.

Age of Electronics?

After the war we may see the Age of Electronics! For Electronics, which is simply the harnessing and control of electrical particles flowing between two points, can be made to work many wonders.

Electronics' ability to see, to hear, to smell, to count, and do countless other jobs with superhuman accuracy has put it to work for war in many new and important ways.

This war-born growth of Electronics — much of it part of Majestic's own research — will bring vastly greater listening pleasure from your next radio. Clearer reception, greater range and depth of tone, and hair-line tuning for greater clarity are only a few Majestic developments. Be sure of these better radio features when you buy. Look for the name Majestic—for radios built by men with years of experience in radio and Electronics. Produced so efficiently that everyone can enjoy radio at its best—Majestic Radio!

Stars of stage, screen, and radio will put on a great radio show Thanksgiving Day in behalf of the Sixth War Loan.

You're invited to enjoy it—and to buy and hold extra War Bonds as your way of giving thanks for the freedom and security of our country.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 club	double
1 spade	2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead, four of spades:

A very neat departure from the orthodox permitted East to defeat an enterprising game contract at no trump, in today's hand. The deal just came to me in the overseas mail from London, England. It was submitted by Dr. Paul Stern, former captain of the Austrian Contract Bridge team, holders of the European championship prior to the war.

This department refuses to accept any responsibility for the bidding sequence leading up to the final contract. That is recorded as history tho a comment or two may be in order. West's opening bid of a club is carrying the third hand light opening to extremes. Tho the hand contains two and one-half honor tricks it is not the type of hand that any one should care to start a fight with. I might do it with less, but of a different type. North's double was sound, and Dr. Stern's bid of one spade, is not my style, but was inserted I suppose for the purpose of confusing the opposition. South's free bid of two no trump might appear to border on the fantastic, lacking as it does a complete stopper in either of the bid suits. Actually, however, I do not think the bid should be criticized. South has passed a hand containing over two and one-half honor tricks which makes it highly probable that there is a play for game if the best contract can be found. [In fact there was no defense that could stop four hearts.] The doubler was bound to have values in the black suits since all he could have in the red suits was two aces, hardly enough for a double.

West opened the four of spades, the conventional lead under the circumstances. Dummy played low and East could have won the trick with the queen. But had he done so there would have been no way to defeat the contract. West would win the second trick with the ace and declarer the third with the jack and then there would have been no way for East ever to get in.

Dr. Stern's play of the ten is very sound. It forced South to win the first trick, so that the defense could maintain communication, and when the ace of hearts was driven out West was able to lead the ace and another spade and run the suit. There is no danger in the play because South must surely have three spades at least to the jack. Or he would have played the king on the first trick, so that declarer must win one trick in any event. The idea is to make him win it now.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

As South you hold:
♠ A K 9 2 ♥ 10 6 4 ♦ Q J 3 ♣ A J 9

The bidding has proceeded:

Gay Nineties' Hoop Skirt Is Back in Paris

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Fashions of the gay '90s are revived in the current showings of Madeleine de Vramante, with the appearance of huge hoopskirts on several evening gowns in her collection.

The crinoline of one evening gown in brown taffeta is edged with lace ruffles of white cotton. Another dinner dress in white net is trimmed with red velvet.

Huge purple satin bows at the sides are used to decorate a black net afternoon dress which features a new length skirt—10 inches below the knee. A full skirted white lace dress with a star-spangled bodice is of the same length.

Madeleine de Vramante also is showing smart leather bags as big as suit cases to go with her tailored suits. Many of her costumes for street wear are heavy tweeds, tunic length and unbelted. Sports coats have balloon sleeves and yard wide shoulders.

Coralie, milliner, sent 500 invitations to a welcome committee in charge of entertainment for allied soldiers and gave a cocktail party for her guests at the recent presentation of her winter fashions.

To open her display, a model dressed in Chinese tunic and pants and a large oriental hat appeared with another model wearing Paris street clothes based on the same lines as the Chinese ensemble. In the latter the vivid coloring and cut of the Chinese tunic were retained, and the large hat with a tiny elevated crown was identical to the Chinese one.

Bagpipes were played as two young models appeared in all-around plaited skirts of plaid. They wore identical hats called Scotch, with ribbons forming tiny bows and falling low in back.

The same idea of dual models was continued in the Buddha and Hindu displays. The original Buddha consisted of a flowing gown and turban. With it another model wore a dinner dress with long, full lines and a similar headgear. The Hindu was an elaborately bejewelled model in gold lamé trimmed with precious stones.

Use Wool with Imagination in These Blouses

BY REA SEEGER.

Wool blouses are far from stodgy or frumpy looking, no matter how they may sound. Wool this year is used with all the imagination usually accorded such fine fabrics as brocade and heavy satin. The wool is thin and all scratchy threads have been eliminated, so that shoppers with a definite allergy to wool are wearing the new fine woolens with comfort. Delicate pastels and smart neutrals, especially the pale beige shades and the natural tones that look like honey, are offered in newly unpacked collections.

A delightful shade of French gray jersey makes some smart blouses for winter suits. Long fitted sleeves are used in one model, bracelet length in another. One has a blue taffeta ruffle-peplum, another has a soft deep blue satin bow at the throat. Another is shirred at the sides to make the blouse fit like a basque, and there are other models with a shirtwaist effect, even to the cuffed long sleeves and the convertible collar. Many jersey blouses are available in brown and black, two contrast colors for vivid tweeds and plaid suits, and together make the warmest imaginable ensemble for a cold winter day in town or country.

White wool blouses are very dress parade, because of the gossamer thin wool and the handsome motifs worked in silver, gold, or copper colored thread, or those effectively beaded in sequins. Some gala white wool models shimmer with twin panels of inky black beads; there are a few with silver and pearl beading, and dozens of simpler affairs tailored precisely and then softened with a bow of the wool to tie at the throat.

Fair and Games Party Will Be Given Friday by Women Musicians

To help with transportation expenses of members entertaining at veterans' hospitals, the Organized Women Musicians will hold a large fair and games party at 8 p. m. Friday in Musicians' hall, 175 W. Washington st. The Indian Council Fire, one of whose members, Sky Eyes, is president of the women musicians, plans to set up a booth of Christmas gifts, there will be fortune telling, and a white elephant trading post. At 10 p. m., radio and concert artists will give a floor show.

The basement of the building will be the scene of an old-fashioned barn dance, and the upper hall will be set with tables for bridge, pinochle, and other games. The management committee lists among awards concert tickets, a basket of canned foods, war savings stamps, and hand woven articles.

"THE PRINCESS AND THE PIRATE."

An RKO-Radio picture, directed by David Butler, starring Bob Hope, with Virginia Mayo, Walter Brennan, Walter Slezak, and Victor Mature, and presented at the Woods.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

If you really want to extract the last laugh from Bob Hope's antics in "The Princess and the Pirate" you probably will have to see it twice, for the gags tread so closely upon each other's heels that a few hilarious souls are always still shouting at the last crack while a new one is being born. Unless you are utterly insatiable, however, you can miss a few and still harvest a bumper crop.

Bob goes in for fancy dress in this one and technicolor so gaudy it sometimes vies with the comic supplement. But it's all of a piece, unless you except Bob's anachronistic quips concerning matters of 1944 moment in a setting circa 1744. And they, of course, are all the funnier for this Einsteinian nonchalance with time.

The action begins on a sailing vessel on whose passenger list are a ham actor known as Sylvester the Great [Bob, of course] and a pretty princess [Virginia Mayo], traveling incog because she has quarreled with her father, His Majesty, the King. A buccaneer ship, alive with pirates right off Treasure Island and commanded by a fearsome creature known as "The Hook" [for the gadget he uses in place of a right hand] appears. The princess is seized for ransom and the Great Sylvester, not a notable example of bravery, assumes the first of many guises, that of an old gypsy hag.

From there on our hero visits many colorful places, such as the "Bucket of Blood" tavern, where beer is served in gallon steins and performers in the stage show are paid off in hot lead, and the palace of the sybaritic governor of Casarouge [Walter Slezak]. There's a buried treasure involved in the plot, too, and when discovery seems imminent Bob lunches on the all important map, only to discover that in a moment of unconsciousness induced by one of many felling blows, it has been indelibly tatooed on his chest. That's the moment the governor chooses to invite him to the royal bath.

But it's hopeless to attempt to give an idea of this Hopefull picture. It's zany, daffy, goofy, and worth leaving home for—at least for an evening.

CINCINNATI TELEPHONE BULLETIN.

Pleasing to the Customer.

At a traffic conference, telephone operators and supervisers were asked to write down what they considered service pleasing to the customer.

Amid myriad answers, the one most frequently repeated, in one form or another, was the suggestion that customers be made to feel their calls are important and that, even tho hurried, the operator must never sound impatient.

The telephone company has done an amazing job of maintaining courtesy, plus efficiency. Yet with an eye to the future it is pooling experience of operators to personalize the service, to call subscribers by name, to develop more friendly voices and to give the customers all attention possible.

And, speaking of telephones and telephoning, Ray Blain throws out the challenge. "Some one should make a study to determine what part of an executive's time may be spent on the telephone without losing efficiency. There is no doubt that many such men spend over half of their time in telephone conversation. This is true despite the fact that an alert secretary screens all calls in an attempt to eliminate the nonessential calls, shunting them to some minor official."

Business Hums in Shop Aiding Russian Relief

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE brilliant Russian panels completed by the painting class which meets each Wednesday in Mrs. Philip Wyatt Moore's home will have a constant and appreciative audience in the shoppers who patronize the little store opened last month at 564 Lincoln av., Winnetka, by the North Shore committee for Russian war relief. Copied in glowing shades of green, yellow, red, and purple after the style of Marc Chagall, Russian impressionist, the panels decorate the walls of the new shop which already is doing a humming business under the supervision of Mrs. John F. Fenn.

The new headquarters has been designed to fill a number of needs, as it will serve as a gift shop, a novel luncheon spot, a collection depot for the warm clothing which the committee gathers to send to Russia, and a distributing center for the knitting materials and woolens for 4 year olds' dresses which the volunteers have been making for shipment abroad. In little more than a month the committee has collected nearly 2,000 pounds of clothing toward the million pound goal which the Chicago committee of Russian war relief hopes to realize between next Sunday and Dec. 3.

With an eye for economy of space, a closet in the shop has been converted into a tiny kitchen, where luncheon is served daily to the first 16 persons telephoning for reservations. Each day three north shore women donate the luncheon and cook it at home, and the proceeds are turned over directly to Mrs. Fenn. Thursday's menu is an all-Russian one planned by Mrs. Ilya Neushul, who lived in Russia for some time. Hostesses for the other days are Mrs. Moore, who is chairman of the north shore committee, on Mondays; Mrs. Perry Dunlap Smith and Mrs. Norman Harris, on Tuesdays; Mrs. Laurence Howe, on Wednesdays, and Mrs. Laird, on Fridays.

Luncheon is not served on Saturdays, altho the shop is open from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. Mrs. Bell serves as Mrs. Moore's vice chairman on the committee, of which Mrs. Harve G. Badgerow is treasurer.

Here and There.

Miss Naoma Donnelley, who in ordinary times would be having a debut party in Chicago this year, instead will be introduced at two parties in the east, as her parents, Comdr. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelley of Lake Forest, are living in Washington, D. C., for the duration. On Dec. 21 she will bow, along with several dozen New York debutantes, at the Allied Flag ball and Debutante cotillion in New York City. Later during the holiday season Comdr. and Mrs. Donnelley will entertain for her at the fashionable 1925 F Street club in Washington. Miss Donnelley attends Finch Junior college in New York.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan McKenna have decided on an open house Dec. 24 to introduce to society their younger daughter, Ruth. The debutante and her brother, Charles Jr., will arrive on the 23d from Bard college, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., where both are students. Women were admitted for the first time this year to Bard, which is run along the same lines as Bennington, at which Miss McKenna's older sister, Jane, is a student. In fact, the Misses McKenna share the same voice teacher. Jane will return to Chicago, Dec. 16.

When Lt. Comdr. David Schoonmaker passed thru Chicago last month he was just in time to greet his new daughter, born Oct. 19. Comdr. Schoonmaker was still a lieutenant during the five days he spent here, but since then has received a promotion. The baby, who has been named Sally, is at home with her mother, the former Anne Palmer, and sisters, Rita and Jean, with their grandparents, the Dudley C. Palmers, in Winnetka.

The Illinois Association for the Crippled has come to the aid of Christmas shoppers by opening a display of gifts made by physically handicapped persons aided by the society, in its headquarters on the 11th floor at 116 S. Michigan av. Toy clowns, circus animals, dolls and doll furniture, French poodles and Scotties, salad bowls, aprons, leather bags and wallets, baby items, and costume jewelry are among the attractive gifts which will be sold from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. each day except Sunday and until 9 p. m. on Mondays.

Arturo Toscanini will conduct a Philharmonic Symphony orchestra concert in Carnegie Hall, New York, Saturday night, Jan. 13, to benefit the pension fund. His program duplicates that played at his Philharmonic début Jan. 14, 1926, and includes Haydn's "Clock" Symphony, Respighi's "The Pines of Rome," Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuonela," excerpts from Wagner's "Götterdämmerung," and Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe."

Children Should Be Taught to Say Grace at Table

This little boy gives evidence of proper training as he reverently bows his head in a prayer of thanks at the table beside his mother. This is a subject Mrs. Bevans discusses today.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 20.—Sol Lesser is trying—and how! He even threatens to go to New York to sign up Agnes De Mille to stage dances for his new picture. Miss De Mille has every intention of remaining right on Broadway where she's tops. She'll do the new ballet for the Theater Guild's "Liliom." Agnes, as you know, did the sensational "Bloomer Girl" and her protege, James Mitchell from Los Angeles, is top dancer in that. . . . They're telling a funny one about Agnes and her mama. It seems that Anna De Mille can't get over the fact that our producers paid no heed to Agnes when she was struggling so hard out here. She had to find fame in New York. Now I'm told when a Hollywood mogul calls to sign her up, her mama answers the phone and after hearing who's calling says, "You can't have her. Why didn't you sign her up when she was eating her heart out in Hollywood 10 years ago. She was as good then as now. Good-by." I must admit there's much in what she says. Agnes always was clever. Her best friend here during those early days was Irene Selznick. In fact, Irene says she learned more from the De Mille girl during that formative period of her life than she's learned since. There seemed to be room for only one De Mille here—his name is Cecil. Agnes should worry—she's got New York in the palm of her hand.

Reel and Real.

Real G. I. Joes supporting Burgess Meredith in Ernie Pyle's story are living in barracks behind the Metro studio. They've moved up to Victorville for African stuff. They've been training a month to get in condition for the picture and expect to be completely worn out when it's ended, 'cause in a real engagement boys go thru it once, but in the picture there's no telling how many times they'll have to do it. But they're shot at only by a camera. . . . Mervyn Leroy, since reading galley proofs of London Correspondent Walter Griffin's "Manchukuo," wants the rights to it. The story's about our planes bombing Tokyo from bases given us by Russia. So far it's fiction. . . . Yep, I guess that Veronica Lake wedding will go thru. She's asked Edith Head to design her wedding gown of ice blue satin. Nice color for her.

He Said It—and How!

The other night Abbott and Costello, during a warm up for their radio show, became intrigued by a hat worn in the audience. It carried a basket filled with miniature vegetables. Lou finally sputtered, "Madam, don't you like us?" "Sure I do," laughed the vegetable hat wearer. "No, you don't," said he. "There isn't one single ear of corn in that lid." . . . A wolfish assistant director tried to date a saxophone player in Phil Spitalny's band. He didn't get very far when Phil made a $1,000 bet with him that he'd never date her. The reason is that none of the 35 girls can accept a date until the five girl committee has passed upon him. Any girl who does forfeits her bonus, which may net her $3,000. . . . Hoagy Carmichael's children songs will be available soon. You'll love "The Whale Song." . . . Lew Jenkins, world lightweight champion now in the service, named his hospital rescue boat "The Ann Sheridan Express. . . . Ilka Chase's gowns, designed by long distance by Adrian, got better notices than her play "In Bed We Cry."

Could Stand Remake.

Note from Sam Blake: "Saw you in 'Alice Adams' at Little Carnegie. That was long ago and far away. Then I was working for Marx Brothers. Incidentally, you got feature billing in lobby ads. Despite its age, Katie Hepburn's performance emerges all powerful. MacMurray was good—a far cry from MacMurray of today. It was quite a contrast to the companion film "Gay Divorcee" with its dated acting and settings. Ginger has made strides since. Fred Astaire is still wonderful." . . . Spencer Tracy's secretary, Peggy Gough, in Belgium with the American Red Cross, hopes to do a book on her return from a diary she's keeping. . . . Andrew Marton directs "New Horizons" with John Carroll and Jan Clayton for Sam Marx. . . . When Irene Manning returns from Paris she'll bring the first Parisian wardrobe. One full-skirted gown has a baby waist and fur sleeves, and a back on the head hat is supposed to knock yours off. . . . Since the George Murphy's have added to their family and can't add to their home, they've bought a new one near the famous Doheny mansion "Graystone."

Roofs Are Going Up.

Marion Davies had Warners raise the roof some years ago so she could do a certain scene. Today Columbia raised their roof for Cornel Wilde and Adele Jergens because of a dance sequence in "A Thousand and One Nights." They just had to have a high stairway. . . . Bonita Granville's mother loves auctions. They paid off when she bought an old chest of drawers. In one of them found a ledger belonging to a colonial blacksmith. One of the entries read, "Received from P. Revere 4 shillings for shoeing horse. . . . Betty Field is in New York, Zachary Scott in Palm Springs, but Director Jean Renoir figured out how to get extra dialog on a sound track of the two. He finally got a record of Scott's part which left spaces for Betty. She'll fill in with her voice in New York. But, heck, they could have done the whole thing by telephone.

In some families grace always is said at table. We didn't have the practice in our family; but I can see now in my mind's eye my little son, when he happened to have a meal with his beloved Anna [from Virginia] and her husband, bowing his curly head, clasping his hands, and closing his big brown eyes as they reverently bowed and said grace over whatever it might be—often as not fried chicken and spoon bread. That our Anna always raised her head at once and twinkled some jolly remark at the small boy made it none the less sincere.

In a number of families who do not habitually say grace, it is, however, said on special occasions, such as at Thanksgiving and Christmas time. This happens to be a ritual we always have observed, and I notice that those whom one might consider the more worldly or sophisticated guests seem really touched by it.

At a time like this in the world when thousands have been in a tragic plight for so long, it seems fitting to express occasionally, as well as feel, a thankfulness for what we in America have. You or one of the adult members of your family may say grace, or you may choose to have one of the children say it.

In case you have not a recent paper in which we printed some graces at hand, and would like a simple grace for your small son or daughter to say at the Thanksgiving table, we have space enough today to reprint several of the briefest:

Little Jesus, come and be our guest.
Dear Jesus, as our heads we bow,
For our food we thank Thee now.

Father, we thank Thee for Thy love
Shown in such lovely ways;
For food to eat, both plain and sweet,
Accept our graceful praise.

Tea Will Be Given Today by Michael Reese Board

Tunes are likely to take a syncopated swing today at the traditional sing which is part of the Thanksgiving tea given annually by the woman's board of Michael Reese hospital for staff members and the student nurses. Sammy Williams, piano entertainer, will play for the community singing at the party to be held at 2 p. m. in the nurses' residence, 2816 Ellis av. Mrs. Edwin Rand, president of the woman's board, will head the hostess committee.

Business Men Pick and Play Program Ably

Overture, "Der Improvisator"....d'Albert
Symphony, "Rustic Wedding"...Goldmark
Concerto for Violoncello, D minor....Lalo
Waltz, "Vienna Life".....Strauss

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Holding an amateur orchestra together in these times is no easy job, but tho the Chicago Business Men's orchestra now has about a third of its former personnel in uniform, it has not hung up one of those signs, "Closed for the duration." The group opened its 23d season in Orchestra hall last night again with George Dasch at the helm, and with a gifted young soloist, this time Harry Sturm, the cellist, and some of that very determination to survive was heard in its music. Aided by an improved cello and bass section, this new vigor gave the orchestra a backbone of solidity sometimes quite remarkable, considering that its players are business and professional men who have to filch time from their work for practice and rehearsal.

The concert, as sometimes happens with amateur groups, got better as it went along. D'Albert's overture, "Der Improvisator," was just another overture, with Mr. Dasch more polite than firm at his post. But Goldmark's "Rustic Symphony" was a distinct improvement over the orchestra's work in the last season or two. For one thing it is not a profound piece of music, taxing the highest skill in performance and projection. It is a series of pleasant, bucolic episodes, and if it was chosen to display the cellos, it succeeded in doing just that.

But it also limbered up the orchestra and set it firmly on the path of capable performance. Because of that the accompaniment in the Lalo Concerto was one of the best I have heard this orchestra play. It had some strokes of authority in the right places, and the intermezzo had the rhythmic lilt without which the soloist might as well pack up his instrument and go home.

Which would have been too bad in the case of Mr. Sturm, who once sat on that very stage with the Civic orchestra. Tall, so that the cello seems a reasonable instrument in his big hands, he has good presence and a talent worth watching. His tone is not particularly large, but it has a concentrated quality that can turn pungent, and he manipulates it with an easy dexterity that hints at fluid brilliance. His playing has an interesting sense of musical phrasing and he turned to the Spanish idiom of the rondo's opening with a flair that commanded attention. The audience was still asking for an encore when I left the hall.

Campaign for Funds to Combat Polio Will Open in January

A drive to raise funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will be opened in Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties early in January. Britton I. Budd and Col. A. A. Sprague will serve as co-chairman of the Cook county chapter, with headquarters in the newly opened offices at 122 S. Michigan av. A total of nearly $500,000 was raised in last year's drive.

Funds contributed in the campaign are used to help pay the costs of hospitalization and treatment of polio victims and to finance continued research in leading medical institutions, Mr. Budd pointed out.

"More than $500,000 was spent last year in studying popularly called 'hot pack' treatment introduced by Sister Kenny," Mr. Budd said in explaining that the national foundation's program is to evaluate and test every new technique and method of treatment.

Recruits Women for Active Roles in Peace Making

Women qualified to represent their sex at the peace table and in the many international policy making groups in the post-war era were recruited last night by Dr. Charl Ormond Williams, former Tennessee hill country school teacher. Dr. Williams, now director of field service of the National Education association, Washington, D. C., spoke before 40 representatives of women's clubs of Chicago in the Cordon club at 410 S. Michigan av.

Encouraging women to assert themselves as a united influence in all national, state, county, and municipal affairs, Dr. Williams urged the organizations to submit the names of members best qualified to get into the international political picture. She said the names would be presented to President Roosevelt and to the state department as candidates for appointment as American women representatives on the policy making committees.

"This is not a movement to substitute woman power for man power," Dr. Williams said. "It is a serious and patriotic endeavor to assure having woman power at its best at the side of man power and brought squarely and efficiently to bear on all peace time problems."

Stella Ford Walker, president of the Altrusa club, which sponsored Dr. Williams' appearance, said a regional meeting would be held in January to compile a list of candidates for the world committees.

Glacier Priest to Present Alaskan Film's Premiere

The Rev. Bernard H. Hubbard will present the premiere of his movie, "Post-War Alaska," tomorrow night in the Civic Opera house. Father Hubbard, known as the glacier priest, recently returned from that territory, and his technicolor film, approved by the government, records chiefly scenes along the 1,300 mile highway until now used only by the army. The picture features the productive quality of Alaska's soil, both for grain and truck farming, notably in the Matanuska valley.

Unselfish Lass Gives a Break to Competition

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Q.—"Some time ago I introduced a girl friend of mine to a boy whom I like and some of his boy friends. I have never had a real date with him, but when with a group we've always paired off. His boy friend has called this girl several times and now I have heard that she is having a party and has invited this group of boys, some other girls, and has purposely omitted me. Is there nothing I can do?"

on the SOLID side

A.—An introduction usually presupposes a desire that two people may become friends. You were the character who made the introductions. The fellow and gal have become friends, but thoroly, so there isn't much you can do now but cross your fingers and keep smiling. The girl must consider you dangerous dating competition or she would have included you in her party list. Why not plan a party of your own? The boy is still your friend, too. You might even be bighearted to invite the girl . . . but don't let your competition become evident. Boys don't like to be given away as door prizes.

Q.—"I have just moved to a new town and recently I was invited to join a girls' club. For a long time I have liked a boy who lives in the town from which I came. Our club is planning an important formal dance, and since there is no boy here whom I would care to invite I'd like to ask my boy from home to come down for it. I'm just 15. He is 16, and my mother says that it would be perfectly all right for him to stay at our house. I am not sure whether it is or not. We have plenty of room and he could share a bedroom with my young brother. . . ."

A.—If your mother approves, such arrangements should be quite proper. You may invite the boy yourself but have your mother drop a note to his mother just to verify everything.

Q.—"I am working now, one night a week and on Saturdays. I am making a little money and should like to give at least part of it to my mother. Would you suggest I do it week by week or save it all up for an expensive Christmas present for her?"

A.—Why not do both? Give her some part of the money each week and try to save a small sum on the side for a double surprise at Christmas time. Whatever you do, she is certain to be pleased because the fact that you want to share with her adds up to something much more valuable than the actual sum of that folding money.

From a Wine Cookbook

Broiled Chicken au Sauterne
Split 2 small fryers for broiling. Simmer necks, giblets in water with parsley and sliced onion. When tender, add 1 cup California Sauterne or Rhine Wine, strain and use for basting. Chop giblets fine, set aside. Rub chickens with garlic, sprinkle with lemon juice, salt, and pepper, brush with oil. Place skin side down in shallow pan, low under broiler. Turn occasionally, baste frequently. When chickens are well-browned (about 30 minutes) remove from pan. Thicken remaining sauce with 1 tbsp. each flour and butter rubbed together, add chopped giblets, heat and pour over chicken. Serves 4.
Notes on Wine Cookery
• Wine alcohol evaporates when heat is applied, so the whole family can enjoy wine-cooked dishes like the chicken cooked as above.
• Pour some Sherry over a sectioned grapefruit half for the first course of the dinner...or for an unusual dessert.

'Personal and Private'

By William MacLeod Raine

(Copyright: 1944: By William MacLeod Raine.)

SYNOPSIS: John Ranger, owner of Circle-JR ranch, and three cattlemen go in search of rustlers who shot and killed Rod Spillman. On the way to the crossroads store Sandra and Nelson Ranger are intercepted by bandits. Two rustlers, riding warily out of the hills, scrutinize the valley, then signal for the herd to move on. Four armed men appear in the valley. In the rustlers' attempt to get away, one of them is killed and a stranger is taken prisoner. Uhlmann and Sholte are anxious to hang the stranger, believing he is one of Scarface's bandits, but John Ranger and Russell Hart prevent it. Uhlmann keeps guard over the captured cowboy, Sloan, while the others drive the recovered cattle. Bill Hays warns them of the approach of Pablo Lopez' raiders. During the encounter Sloan escapes and rescues Sandra and Nelson from the bandits and escorts them back to Blunt's, where the men are hoping to hang him. John Ranger comes to his aid.

INSTALMENT VIII.

BEFRIENDED.

Ranger took first things first. "Let's get into the house and look at your wound," he said. "Can you walk?"

"Learned 26 years ago, come Christmas," Sloan replied.

He gave up the support of the saddle horn and moved forward jauntily. But his step faltered.

Sandra slipped an arm around his waist. "Lean on me," she told him.

Her father took the other side. "Don't walk. We'll carry you."

He would not have it that way. "Just a li'l knife rip in the shoulder."

But he let them steady and help him to the steps, up them, and to the lounge in the parlor, where he promptly fainted from loss of blood. John Ranger had doctored broken limbs, gunshot wounds, and knife gashes. Now he gave competent first aid to Sloan.

"Will he be all right?" Sandra asked her father while he was washing his hands in the tin basin outside the house.

"Ought to be good as new in a few days," her father said.

Nelson had joined them. The stark fact stood out that Sloan had charged four desperadoes, killed one, slammed another unconscious, and driven the other two away.

"He's got sand in his craw," the cattleman admitted. "All the time Pete and Hans were wanting to hang him he was as cool as if they were talking about another fellow."

"Hang him!" Sandra cried, aghast. "What for?"

"We trapped him up a canyon where we had driven Scarface. He claims he isn't one of the gang. I'm beginning to believe it. I hope he is telling the truth."

"Of course he is," his daughter cried in hot indignation. He's wonderful, father. He came down the hill like a tornado. I was terribly frightened, but I needn't have been."

"He just banged one of 'em over the head and shot another quicker 'n scat. The others lit out like heel flies were after them." The eyes of the boy were big with reminiscent excitement.

"You aren't going to let anybody harm him, are you?" Sandra asked. "After what he did for us."

"No." John Ranger spoke with crisp decision.

"He isn't a thief," Sandra announced loyally. "And if he was I wouldn't care."

The cattleman wished he was as sure Sloan was innocent. But the man had fought for the children and then had brought them safely back to the place where men were hoping to hang him.

Blunt and his party reached the ranch. Bill Hays was put to bed and his wound dressed. One of Ranger's riders started on the 50 mile ride to bring a doctor. After supper John gathered the men around him at the corral.

He told the story of how this man Sloan had saved his children from the raiders.

Blunt spoke first. "He has guts. That's sure."

"But he's a cow thief just the same," Sholte added.

Ranger looked at him with contempt in his steady eyes. "I don't think it. We'll know in a couple of days whether his story is true. But right now I'm serving notice that whether it is or isn't nobody is going to harm this man."

Uhlmann protested sourly. "Now look here, John. We can't turn a cow thief loose because he's game. He would be a menace to the community. Take Scarface. They don't make them any gamer than he is, but by jimminy, if I get my gun sights on him he's going to die."

Ranger said, spacing his words deliberately: "We're not talking about Scarface, but about a man who has just saved my children at great risk to himself, a man who had got away scot free and came back because he had to make sure that they would get home safe."

"But if he's a rustler——" began Blunt unhappily.

"If he's a rustler we'll drive him out of the district. But that will be all." Ranger did not lift his voice.

Blunt shifted ground. "John is right, boys. I'd feel the same as he does if it had been my Elvira."

Uhlmann grumbled that he had cattle in the bunch taken by the rustlers.

"When you know how many you have lost, make a bill and send it to me," Ranger told him scornfully. "I'll pay it unless it is shown that Sloan was not one of Scarface's men."

"Don't think I won't send it to you," Uhlmann retorted hardily.

Within 24 hours the truth of Sloan's story was confirmed.

Some days later Sloan was sitting on the porch of the Blunt house in the warm sunshine waiting for a wagon that was to take him to the Circle-JR. Two men rode up the lane to the house and swung from their saddles. They were Sholte and Uhlmann. Blunt was shoeing a horse and they stopped for a minute to talk with him. While they were still talking, a wagon driven by Ranger rolled into the yard.

"Ready to go?" Ranger asked Sloan.

"Yes, sir. But there's no need of my bothering you. I'm doing all right here. In a couple of days I'll move on."

"You won't bother us. We all want you to make a long visit at the ranch. The children won't let me rest until I get you."

Sholte and Uhlmann clumped forward from the outdoor blacksmith shop. Pete went up the porch steps to Sloan, an ingratiating smile on his face. He held out a hand.

"Put her there, pardner," he said. Sloan did not seem to see the hand. He looked coldly at Sholte. When he spoke his voice was icy, without a trace of passion. "What I said about you the other day still goes. I wouldn't want to live in the same township with a mean-hearted scoundrel willing to hang a man without giving him a chance to prove his innocence."

An angry flush swept Sholte's face. Blunt had come from the forge and was standing beside Ranger, a pleased smile in his eyes. "If that's the way you want it, suits me," Sholte blustered. "Since you're askin' for it, I'll say I'm not satisfied yet. By my way of it, you're still a cow thief."

"For that, next time we meet I'll flog you within an inch of yore life," Sloan promised.

"You can bellyache now, because you claim you're a sick man," Uhlmann said sourly. "But when you're well don't try to ride me, unless you want to come with your gun a-smokin'."

"Enough of that, boys," Ranger interrupted hurriedly. "Mr. Sloan has a right to be annoyed. If you two had got your way we would have hanged an innocent man. It's a lesson to all of us not to go off half-cocked."

Alumni Give $223,258.56 to N. U. Fund in a Year

Contributions totaling $223,258.56 were made by alumni of Northwestern university to the Century fund for the financial support of the university during the year ending Sept. 1, it was reported yesterday by George F. Falley, fund chairman. Gifts came from 3,833 alumni, including many service men. During the last 17 years more than 1 million dollars have been contributed to the fund, established to publicize the university's centennial in 1951 and used for scholarships, student loans, and other general purposes.

Catholics Set Up $800,000 for Extension

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than two score bishops and archbishops of the Catholic church attended the annual meeting of the Catholic Church Extension society at 360 N. Michigan av. yesterday. Bishop William D. O'Brien, president of the society since 1924, reported that more than $800,000 was allocated during the last year.

Part of this fund was for the building and repair of churches and chapels thruout the United States and dependencies, aid of missionary priests, and assisting missionary bishops in the support of candidates for the priesthood in their educational preparation. Allotments were paid to 125 priesthood candidates in the year.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Lux, managing director of Extension magazine, published by the society, presented his annual report to the board of governors of the society, which includes all archbishops of the country, 12 bishops, and an equal number of priests and laymen. Father Lux outlined war time personnel and financing difficulties of operating a large missionary magazine, but pointed out the publication was in excellent condition despite difficulties.

Development of six one-million dollar endowment funds was given special attention. While none of the funds has reached its objective, extensive growth of each was reported. The six endowments are in interests of mission students, mission priests, and chapel building.

The missions students' endowments consist of donations of $1,000 received for the education of needy but deserving students for the missionary priesthood. The missions priests' endowment income is distributed among missionaries serving new or poor missionary districts.

Income from $1,000 gifts for chapel endowment is divided into $2,000 grants for the erection of memorial structures. Fourteen such chapels were erected last year.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch is life chancellor of the society, and Bishop O'Brien, thru repeated appointments by the pope, is now serving his fourth term of five years as president.

Church Business Women Will Continue Bible Study

Dr. J. Walter Malone, vice president of the McCormick Theological seminary, will lead a discussion on "Triumphant Beliefs" when he appears tonight before the Business Women's club of the Fourth Presbyterian church. The session continues a Bible study course being conducted weekly until Christmas by Dr. Malone. The class will be preceded by 6 o'clock dinner and a program afterward will be devoted to work for mission hospitals.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Much of the success of your Thanksgiving dinner is going to depend upon the dressing you use with your turkey, duck, or chicken. There are hundreds of variations of dressing — almost anything goes, just so it's a lightweight, well seasoned combination. None of that old fashioned business of soaking crumbs in water or milk, then "squeezing" them. That's the way to make a heavy, soggy, indigestible stuffing.

Bread crumbs are Americans' choice of stuffing base. In the south cornbread is much used, and makes an excellent dressing. Rice, crackers, rolled oats, also have been used. Celery and onion are favorite vegetable seasonings. Sage, mixed poultry seasoning, marjoram, savory, thyme are popular herbs for poultry dressing.

Almost anything good and edible may be combined with the crumbs and seasonings—oysters, chestnuts, pecans, peanuts or walnuts, cooked sausage or crisp bacon, cooked giblets. Fruit, such as chopped apples, seedless grapes, prunes or raisins, often is used in stuffing for duck or goose.

It is not necessary to use much fat or liquid in a stuffing, as drippings from the roasting fowl add both fat and moisture. Many excellent dressings may be made without any fat whatsoever; bacon, ham, or sausage drippings are used sparingly in others. If you have an old favorite dressing recipe which calls for half a pound or so of butter, try it with ¼ cup margarine instead. You'll prove that the dressing may be made much more economically with excellent results.

Milk and broth acquired by cooking giblets until tender are the usual choices of moistening. The dressing should be merely dampened with liquid if it is going to be fluffy. A few recipes require no moisture at all except what drips from the cooking bird.

To estimate the amount of dressing you'll need, multiply the weight of the undrawn bird by 1 cup—a 15 pound turkey, 15 cups of dressing. What won't go into the turkey may be baked separately in a pan. It's always well to have a reserve.

Dressing spoils readily, so should be prepared no earlier than Thanksgiving morning. Poultry experts decry the old practice of stuffing the bird the day before.

Watercress is available in many markets these days. This peppery green can add a lot of flavor to a bread dressing, and make it look more attractive as well. At least a quarter of a bunch of cress is going into the dressing for my Thanksgiving bird.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Halibut Salad.
[Serves six.]

1 thick slice halibut, 1 to 1½ pounds
2 hard cooked eggs
1 cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
Salt, pepper
Mayonnaise
Tomato slices

Simmer halibut 10 to 15 minutes. Cool. Store in refrigerator several hours, or until thoroly chilled. Flake. Toss fish, chopped hard cooked eggs, celery, green pepper, and seasonings together lightly. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve on thick tomato slices in lettuce cups.

Thru the Looking Glass

This is the time of year when the woman who [1] has dry skin and [2] has said a reluctant good-bye to her twenties has to map out a program of skin care. Weather is a big factor around this part of the country so far as skin texture and youthful firmness are concerned. A winter program, with special emphasis on skin oiling, is the only thing that will ward off the little unwanted wrinkles.

This oiling begins and ends at home, right in your own boudoir. You have to slather creams, rich ones, on your skin every morning and most especially every night. But if you can possibly afford it, you should supplement this home care with a luxurious professional face treatment once a week. It will bite into the budget, of course, but if you're a working woman, or even if you're not, you know that to some extent your face is your fortune and you'd better take care of it.

The truly luxurious face treatment gives your skin three things it needs if you want to preserve its youth. First of all, it oils the dry skin that wrinkles too fast for peace of mind. Then, it stimulates it mildly, which the skin sorely needs if you're 30 and pushing 40. And it cleanses that skin deeply. Cleansing, lubricating, and stimulating are still the essentials of skin care. Nothing has changed that. And, so far as we know, nothing gives you these three important basic treatments like the professional massage, using good preparations. Better yet, the treatment usually takes in neck and back, two areas we all neglect from day to day.

An hour or an hour and a half a week is all you need, plus money. But if you can manage it thru the winter, you'll find that your investment in time and money was well spent. You're cutting way down on your chances of a bumper crop of new wrinkles when spring rolls around.

WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

THANKSGIVING SUPPER ::: ACCENT ON GLAMOUR

If ever food was truly "glamorous," it was back in the good old days at Rector's. Sooner or later, every wandering gourmet from here and abroad found his way to our famous Broadway establishment. It was, indeed, a rendezvous for celebrities of every nationality, and often to pay them honor, we named our very most special dishes after them. Chicken Tetrazzini was named in honor of the famous Italian soprano, who was a frequent guest at Rector's. Today's recipe is an adaptation, using turkey.

Turkey Tetrazzini—as made at Rector's

6 tbsp. Wilson's Certified Margarine
6 tbsp. flour
3 cups top milk
3 cups cooked shredded turkey
1 (8 oz.) can sliced mushrooms
3 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Break spaghetti into small pieces and cook in a large amount of boiling, salted water (1 tsp. salt to 1 qt. water) until tender. Drain. Make a white sauce of the next 3 ingredients. Add shredded turkey to one half of the sauce and the cooked spaghetti and mushrooms to the remaining half. Add salt if necessary. Place spaghetti in a margarined baking dish, making a hole in the center and banking it around sides of dish. Pour turkey mixture in the center, sprinkle grated cheese over top and bake in a moderate oven, 375° F., until lightly browned—about 10 minutes. Serves 6.

FOR AN "ELEGANT" SUPPER

If you're having just a family dinner on Thanksgiving Day, this Turkey Tetrazzini should inspire you to use your left-over turkey in a supper dish that really calls for having a few friends in to enjoy it with you. It may be baked in a large casserole if more convenient.

An Extra Touch

What to serve with such a luscious main dish? I would suggest pickles, celery, radishes and fruit salad; if you feel the need of a dessert, cranberry sherbet would be appropriate. For a toothsome extra touch, you might also serve breadsticks. If these are not available at your store—

Make Your Own

Just use ice box dough for breadsticks. Take dough from refrigerator about three hours before serving time. When light (after about 1¼ hrs.), shape into small balls, cover and let rest 10 to 15 min. Then roll each ball with palm of hand to make long strip about ¼ inch thick. Place on greased baking sheet, let rise until double in bulk, bake in hot oven, 400° F., for 10 min. Reduce heat and bake at 350° F. for 20 to 30 min. longer.

George Rector

KRUMSKE-DAY DUEL FEATURES ALL-STAR TRIAL

Chicagoans Wage Fight for Berths.

The preliminary doings involved in the fourth annual All-Star bowling tournament to be conducted in the Auditorium Service Men's center from Dec. 2 thru 10 by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America are now nearing the stretch stage.

First item in the finish drive is the performance of Paul Krumske, the slender and newly bespectacled Chicagoan, in the challenge match he has been waging against Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., who last December ran away from Paul with the championship in the tenpin world series. Paul is currently in the process of outdistancing Ned in the 60 game, home and home argument they are now carrying on. Fact is, he is so far in front, after their 30 week-end games at Bowling Lanes, that many pinwise citizens are of a mind to guess that there may be a new champion when the big field goes to the line in the Auditorium Dec. 2.

Round Robins Completed.

Second factor in the closing run is the official composition of the Chicagoans who will compete against the nation's best. The round robins were completed late Sunday, with eight total pin leaders in each of five establishments fighting for berths in the All-Star cast.

Results of the round robins in these five centers, all based on the Petersen point system, follow:

The leaders among the above rosters will be chosen to go into the main event in the Auditorium, where the alleys devoted to free bowling by service men and women are maintained by the proceeds of the All-Star event.

Day Trails by 22 Points.

Krumske came out of the 30 game Chicago side of the tournament with a commanding lead of 613 in total pins, and a lead of 22 points and 13 pins on the Petersen point system, determining method of deciding the match. In Saturday night's first block, the Chicagoan permitted Champion Day to win only one game of the ten, and that the last. Sunday afternoon, Ned managed to win four after losing the first four, and gained a split in the evening block. Still, he is 22 points in arrears, and he will have a job in overcoming that deficit when they conclude the match on Day's pet lanes in West Allis, Wis., on the same basis next Saturday and Sunday.

LANDIS MARKS 78TH BIRTHDAY IN HOSPITAL

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, spent his 78th birthday yesterday in St. Luke's hospital, protesting mildly because his immediate release isn't in sight.

Leslie O'Connor, Landis' secretary, said he was tired of his hospitalization and was off his feed. Otherwise, his condition is highly satisfactory. He's been there 49 days. Mrs. Landis, convalescing with a fractured wrist, also is in the hospital. They probably will have their Thanksgiving dinner there.

Blackhawks Get Helping of Ice for Breakfast

Coach Faces Cold Facts, Orders Morning Drill.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The unwinningness of our Blackhawk Skating club has reached the panic or breakfast practice stage. After losing seven out of eight, including Sunday's 4 to 3 defeat by Toronto, Manager Paul Thompson had the lads on the Stadium pond yesterday morning and tried a lot of magic tricks in an effort to convince himself he has a major league squad if only he can find the right combination. Things have got so bad Paul now is trying out Mush March on defense.

There are those who have been suggesting that the addition of a few good hockey players would lift the Hawks to some sort of class contention with the rest of the National Hockey league. These should be told that President Bill Tobin has been phoning and wiring all over the Dominion of Canada in an effort to spend big money for a sound player. He has tried time and again to get Doug Bentley and George Allen unfrozen from their frosty Saskatchewan farms, all to no avail.

In Saskatchewan They Are—in Saskatchewan They'll Stay.

Tobin thought he had something when he conceived the idea of having Doug and George assigned to Windsor, which is south of Detroit and where agricultural pursuits really can be carried on in winter. The plan, as Tobin thought it out, was to have the boys shuck oats or eye potatoes, or something, easing up only on nights the Hawks were playing in Chicago, Detroit, and Toronto, when they would fly to their hockey sticks.

So far, however, the Canadian government apparently has ideas of helpful things the boys can do in Saskatchewan, thus making Mr. T. very unhappy, even tho Bill was born in western Canada.

Every true Chicagoan, of course, earnestly is praying that Thompson gets the right combination—and derned quick. And another thought—Paul himself was one of the greatest players in the National league when the circuit was a major league, displaying major league artistry. He still has his skates. Joe Farrell, the Hawk press agent and a great elbow checker, could play better on defense, just lifting his elbows, than any of the Hawk defenders. And Prexy Tobin—we've never seen him skate, but he could be a great cheerleader out there on the ice—if he hasn't lost his voice with those 1,000,000 long distance calls he's made since the opening flop of the season.

Rangers Next Foes, and They Have Their Troubles, Too.

There would seem to be one ray of sunshine in the entire scene, tho the beams scarcely are warm enough to melt ice. This ray is found in the fact that the next game on the Hawk schedule is with the team over which they scored their one victory this season. The New York Rangers, the only team that lays any claim to being as inept as the Hawks, will show up at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night.

This week's league statistics show Bill Cowley, Boston center, leading the league with 19 points in eight games. At this rate Cowley will beat the new mark of 82 points made last season by Herb Cain, his teammate, after Cowley had been injured while he himself was setting the league's scoring pace.

Cowley made eight points last week and Clint Smith, leading Hawk, was next for the week with six points.

Joe (Ching) Farrell. Paul (Bucko) Thompson. Bill (Taffy) Tobin.

SEVEN HEARTS CAPTURES $25,000 RIGGS HANDICAP

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—J. Graham Brown's Seven Hearts, taking an early lead and holding it thruout, easily won the 19th running of the $25,000 added Riggs handicap today.

After Trainer Ben Jones scratched Twilight Tear, the public choice until just before the race, when day long rain made an uncertain track, Seven Hearts was established the favorite and didn't disappoint his backers. He took command and defeated Charles Turner's Bon Jour by two lengths, with Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Stymie three lengths farther away.

Seven Hearts, winner of the Westchester handicap at Jamaica this fall, paid $3.30, $2.40, and $2.20 across the board in the mile and three-sixteenth feature. The victory, with Jockey Paul Keiper up, was worth $21,600.

BERNIE BIERMAN TO COACH EAST IN SHRINE GAME

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 20 (AP).—Bernie Bierman of Minnesota will be among the trio of coaches in charge of the team that will represent the East in the East-West Shrine game New Year's day, it was disclosed today at the University of Minnesota.

Terranova and Jeffra Draw in 10 Round Bout

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Phil Terranova of New York, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, and Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, former bantam and featherweight king, battled to a 10 round draw tonight at St. Nicholas arena. A crowd of 2,900 paid $3,836. The decision was unpopular with the crowd, which thought Terranova had an edge.

C. Y. O. TO HOLD OPEN DIVISION BOUTS TONIGHT

Capacity Crowd on Hand at 1st Show.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Open division boxers will have their inning in second and quarter-final round competition in the 14th annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament in the C. Y. O. center gymnasium, 31 E. Congress st., tonight.

Novice entrants opened the meet in the center last night with 17 bouts in three weight classes. Survivors will join the more experienced boxers in this evening's action.

Don Lonergan, lightweight brother of the better known Ray, scored the first knockout on last night's program. Don, representing St. Matthew parish, won a first round technical knockout over Wade Kilbride of Our Lady of Peace to qualify for tonight's fighting. Also advancing on a technical knockout was Tom Kelleghan of St. Gregory, who stopped Dominic Trafficanta in the second round. A capacity crowd was on hand for the exciting show.

Twenty Bouts Tonight.

Twenty contests are scheduled tonight, it was announced by Lou Radzienda, C. Y. O. boxing director.

Russ Turner, St. Cyril representative, is the darkhorse among the experienced 135 pounders. Russ, who was born in Oswego, Kas., 17 years ago, has won seven of his 10 appearances in the last year, one of his victims being Lloyd Watts, 1943 C. Y. O. featherweight title holder. His leading rivals are James Bernard and Lou Blackwell, both of St. James; Katsie Ueda, Holy Name, and Pvt. Vince Pellegrini, Fort Sheridan.

Plummer Title Favorite.

Joe Plummer, 1944 novice Golden Gloves bantamweight title holder, is this evening's leader for the open featherweight medal. His foremost opponents are John Mertes, Our Lady of the Lake; Bob Wright, Precious Blood; Charles Immormino, Holy Rosary, and Ray Longergan, St. Matthews. The latter captured the C. Y. O. 118 pound trophy a year ago.

Semi-finals will be held tomorrow and the finals Dec. 6.

Results:

War to Last 5 Years, Says Jack Dempsey

Five more years of war—five years that will require 100 per cent coöperation of Americans whether they are in the uniform of their country or civilians—were predicted yesterday by Comdr. Jack Dempsey of the coast guard in a brief appearance before the Monday Quarter Back luncheon in the interest of the 6th war loan drive.

"If we are to have our American athletic life we must buy bonds and more bonds," said Dempsey. "I have just returned from overseas and I sincerely believe that this war will last at least five more years."

Dempsey shared the speakers' program with Aldo [Buff] Donelli, coach of the Cleveland Rams of the National Football league; Creighton Miller, former Notre Dame star and now a member of the Irish coaching staff, and Doug Mills, athletic director at Illinois.

In commenting on the relative strength of the Michigan and Ohio State elevens which will meet Saturday in Columbus, Mills said:

"I will say that Michigan has the best defensive line in the middle west and I will also go on record as saying that Ohio State has the best offense in the middle west. That will be a close game in Columbus, closer than most of you suspect."

SCOOTER M'LEAN THRU; ALSO BEAR TITLE DREAMS

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Ray [Scooter] McLean, the Bears' hard luck half back, is thru for the remainder of the season, the coaches said yesterday. The remainder of the season, for the Bears, adds up to Sunday's game with the unbeaten Eagles in Philadelphia, and an excursion into Pittsburgh the following Sunday for a match against the Card-Pitts.

McLean's right arm, injured earlier in the season, was hurt when Alex Wojciechowicz ploughed into him in Sunday's game in Detroit.

Being excluded from the National league title game is a new experience for the Bears, who have participated in four straight. Adding to their unhappiness is the knowledge that they will not be a party in football's glamor game, the College All-Star spectacle next fall. But as one member of their coaching staff put it: "We hate to lose, but I guess we have to take our bumps once in a while."

Fourth Western Title for Packers.

The Bears had a hunch the Giants would beat the Packers—which they did. But the Bears also thought they would be able to take care of the Lions—which they didn't. Perhaps it didn't make much difference, because it takes a lot of imagination to give the Card-Pitts a chance to trip up the Green Bay Packers Sunday in Comiskey park.

This is Green Bay's fourth western division championship since the East-West system was installed in 1933. The Packers previously won in 1936, 1938, and 1939, twice going on to win in the title play-off. They whipped Boston [now the Washington Redskins] in 1936, 21 to 6, and defeated the Giants in 1939, 27 to 0, after having lost the previous year to the Giants, 23 to 17. Green Bay won championships in 1929-'30-'31 when there was no league division.

Being in the eastern race is breathless stuff for the Philadelphia Eagles, who last had a winning team in 1925. The Eagles have been in and out of the league many times. Under the modern East-West plan they never before have had a winning team and were in the door mat class.

Three More Games for Eagles.

Now the Eagles have five victories and two ties. The Redskins and Giants are deadlocked for second place with five victories, one loss, and one tie. To finish unbeaten the Eagles must beat or tie the Bears, Tigers, and Rams on successive Sundays in Shibe park.

The assignment against the Bears appears the toughest, especially on the basis of past contests between the two. They first met in 1933, Philadelphia winning, 3 to 0. Since then they've engaged in seven games, the Bears winning all of them and usually by topheavy scores.

Hoppe Takes 98 Point Lead Over Cochran

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

William Frederick Hoppe, a lad of 55 summers who has been playing billiards since he had to hoist himself on a step in order to draw a cue, yesterday moved into a 98 point lead over Welker Cochran of San Francisco in the opening Chicago blocks of their challenge match for the world's three cushion championship. The dapper New Yorker, who is still regarded as Mr. Billiards by his most bitter rivals, celebrated his return to Chicago, where he has scored so many championship triumphs, by winning the 21st and 22d blocks of the traveling argument, 50 to 46, and 50 to 47, with a copyrighted Hoppe rally. Last night's block was decided in 45 innings.

Play Twice Each Day.

Last night's victory gave Hoppe an over-all margin of 1,100 to Cochran's 1,002, the champion picking up 47 points in the two Chicago blocks, and the total of 22 they have played in Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit, and Chicago. They resumed the match in Chicago yesterday and will continue in 50 point blocks to begin at 3 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. thru Saturday, except for Thanksgiving. Yesterday's scores follow:

Afternoon Block.

HOPPE—010 121 101 031 000 100 200 001 200 000 303 001 220 103 001 000 057—50. 51 innings. High run, 8.

Evening Block.

Will Face Nine Rivals.

The Chicago end of the match will conclude the challenge of Cochran, prior to the 1944 championship proper, to be held in New York City from Dec. 3 thru 12. In this, Hoppe will meet nine rivals, including Cochran.

Emerging from the 39th inning of the afternoon block, Cochran apparently was in complete charge, with a lead of 43 to 28. Hoppe then picked up a single billiard in the 40th, followed that with his best effort of eight in the 42d, and after another ace in the 45th the champion smashed thru with a five in the 50th and a finishing seven in the 51st. From the 40th to the finish Cochran was able to assemble only three points.

Two High Runs of Seven.

Hoppe had a high run of five last night, altho he had a total high run of 12 for the day, as he wound up the afternoon with a run of seven and in the continuation last night he picked up five more. Cochran had two high runs of six in the evening competition.

In the 43d inning last night, Hoppe held a 48 to 46 lead, then picked up one in the 44th and then added two more in the 45th.

BUCKEYES SEEK TITLE, PERFECT SEASON RECORD

Wolverines Also in Race for Crown.

Columbus, O., Nov. 20 (AP).—If there ever was a football natural, it is coming up here Saturday between Ohio State's unbeaten and untied Buckeyes and Michigan's once beaten Wolverines.

Over the years, there have been few gridiron rivalries more intense than that between Ohio State and Michigan but that's only incidental this year. The game Saturday will have more than the usual number of angles and because of them there will be a capacity crowd of 74,000 on hand.

Just 60 Minutes from Title.

First, Ohio State now is just 60 minutes of playing time away from its first perfect regular season in 24 years. Next, a combination of circumstances has made this game the Western conference championship contest. Ohio State can take the title for the second time in three years by beating or tying the Wolverines. A Michigan victory would give the Wolverines the crown, with six games won and one lost, against five won and one lost for Ohio State and possibly Purdue.

Then too, there is that intriguing Rose bowl possibility. If the Western conference decides next Sunday to lift its ban on post-season games, it's a good bet the winner of the game here will be invited to the New Year's day show.

Expects Hardest Game.

Carroll Widdoes, acting head coach of Ohio State, reported today the Buckeyes came out of Saturday's game with Illinois without any serious injuries. Ohio State has won all its games by at least two touchdowns and Widdoes sized up the Michigan game as the hardest one yet.

Ernie Godfrey and Paul Bixler, assistant coaches, reporting on scouting trips to Michigan games, said they were impressed by the Wolverines.

All reserved seats for the game Saturday had been sold for two weeks ago. Eleven thousand general admission tickets will go on sale at noon Friday and Ohio State officials doubt if they'll last more than two hours.

WOLVERINES KEEP BUSY.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20 [Special].—There was little rest for Michigan's football squad today as it started drills for Saturday's Western conference title game with Ohio State in Columbus.

Joe Ponsetto, quarter back, and Clem Bauman, tackle, took things easy because of leg injuries suffered against Wisconsin last week but the rest of the squad went thru a workout on both offensive and defensive tactics.

Ponsetto and Bauman are expected to be ready for this week's contest. Gene Derricotte, freshman back who appeared in the Wisconsin game for only three plays, has recovered from an ankle injury suffered in the Illinois game two weeks ago.

DUNEDIN GETS P. G. A. SENIORS' GOLF TOURNEY

Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America and also of the seniors' division of the National P. G. A., yesterday announced the annual P. G. A. seniors' tournament will be resumed from Jan. 15 thru 19 on the Dunedin Isles course in Dunedin, Fla.

Dunedin is expected to become the national home of the P. G. A. as soon as final plans are completed. Eddie Williams, pro at Chicago's Bryn Mawr club, will be the defending champion.

GIRARD REJOINS BADGER SQUAD FOR FINAL GAME

Freshman Star to Play Against Gophers.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20 [Special].—Earl [Jug] Girard, triple threat freshman star of the University of Wisconsin football team, will be back in action when the Badgers finish the season against Minnesota here on Saturday. Girard has been on the bench for the last four weeks with an injured knee and his passing and kicking have been missed greatly.

The Badgers emerged from the Michigan defeat last week with only minor bumps and bruises, with the exception of Martin Meyer, tackle, who has a badly injured knee and may be benched. Should he be kept out of the final game Ken Tarzetti, a former end at Tulane, may draw the assignment.

GOPHERS MAY LOSE PAIR.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 20 [Special].—The Minnesota football squad went thru its usual Monday exercises today with two important matters to be considered. Jerry Kafka, reserve tackle, is about to join the marines and may not be available for the final game of the season Saturday at Wisconsin. Walt Edwards, former quarter back, who had been shifted to center when Bob Lossie left for deck officer training, is expecting a draft call and also may be out of Saturday's game.

DIMANCHEFF IN HOSPITAL.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 20 [Special].—Preparing for the season finale with Indiana Saturday, Coach Cecil Isbell today started the task of rebuilding the Purdue back field after receiving word from team physicians that Boris [Babe] Dimancheff may be on the sidelines.

Dimancheff, acting captain and leading scorer and ground gainer in the Big Nine, suffered a knee injury in Saturday's game with Navy and is confined in the university hospital. Coach Isbell was notified this morning that there was only a slight chance that the star back will be in uniform.

3 INDIANA BACKS AILING.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 20 [Special].—With three of their regulars, including Half Back Bob Hoernschemeyer, on the injured list after Saturday's Pittsburgh game, Indiana's Hoosiers began preparations today for this week's football contest with Purdue in an intensive indoor workout. Cold and rainy weather forced Coach Bo McMillin to take the squad to the fieldhouse.

Hoernschemeyer, who suffered an injured arm, is expected to be in good shape for the Boilermakers. Full Back George Sundheim may be lost for the game with an injured leg and Full Back Harry Jagade hurt his back Saturday.

N. U. SEEKS FIRST VICTORY.

Northwestern's football team will make one final effort to remove itself from the Big Nine cellar Saturday when it winds up the 1944 season against Illinois in Dyche stadium. The Wildcats have lost five conference games this fall and a loss to the Illini would duplicate the 1942 season when the team last failed to win a conference game.

Coach Lynn Waldorf plans to devote most of the week to refashioning the Wildcat line, which yielded considerable yardage Saturday against Notre Dame.

HEAVY DRILL FOR IRISH.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 20 [Special].—With only three days in which to prepare for the Georgia Tech game in Atlanta on Saturday, Coach Ed McKeever dispensed with the usual Monday holiday and sent the Irish squad thru a lengthy workout today.

Joe Gasparella, who was hurt in the game on Saturday, and Bob Kelly, who was idle against the Wildcats because of a leg injury, were both in uniform. Coach McKeever indicated that both would start on Saturday.

WAVE OF HIGH SCORING SWEEPS BOWLING LANES

Women making up the Bowling Lanes Ladies' league enjoyed one of their best nights of the season last night as individuals and teams found the scoring range. Lustre Creme was high for the night with 2,909 as it won three games from Aurora Pump Sales, and Dorothy Miller and Carolyn Lueder had a great contest for individual honors, the former rolling 616, to 615 for Miss Lueder. Pepsi Cola won three games to bring its season record to 29 won and four lost.

Packers Lay Giant Loss to Sluggish Line

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 20.—The Green Bay Packers, champions of the western division of the National Football league despite their 24 to 0 licking here yesterday by the New York Giants, headed for home this afternoon where they will prepare for their final regularly scheduled game with the Card-Pitts Sunday in Chicago.

The new western champions, while not actually viewing their fourth division title since 1933 with distaste, were a grouchy group of athletes. They apparently are not concerned over meeting the Giants again in the league play-offs Dec. 17, or Philadelphia or Washington, which also are in the eastern race, but they are disappointed over their performance before the season's record crowd of 56,481.

Hutson Gets No Protection.

"We were outcharged badly," was the explanation by Coach Curly Lambeau. "Our timing was off and Don Hutson was forced to stand uncovered waiting for Irv Comp's passes when the delay made possible interception."

The Giants played a typical late November game, for which Steve Owen's men are famed, and moreover the Polo Grounds generally has been a jinx to the Packers. Yesterday's game, altho the score was the largest in series history for the winners, was reminiscent of the 1938 game here. In that contest, Clarke Hinkle, an all-time Packer great, received the kick-off starting the second half on his own 5 yard line, fumbled and recovered. Then, confused, ran to his own end zone, downing the ball for a safety.

Yesterday Ted Fritsch and Comp let a Giant kick-off roll in to the end zone and Joe Laws barely saved a Giant recovery and touchdown when he rushed back to bat the ball over the end line.

Takes Exception to Article.

The Packers' lack of cohesion on attack was heightened by mental lapses. Hutson undoubtedly also was disturbed by a recent article in a national weekly which praised him as pro football's greatest star but described him as being a loner and said he feuded with Cecil Isbell the last season Isbell played with Green Bay. That matter now has been thoroly discussed with the author.

Harry Jacunski, Packer end, suffered a knee injury early in yesterday's game. He may not be able to play against the Card-Pitts but he should be ready for the play-off. Lou Brock, Packer half back, who has been out of the line-up for weeks, might have seen service yesterday if there had been any prospect of victory. He is counted on for the championship.

Laws Shows His Class.

Paul Duhart and Laws were the only Packer backs entirely free of minor injuries, and Laws, in particular, played a splendid game. Neither Comp nor Fritsch had speed or drive because of injuries.

Among the visitors to Packer headquarters was Lt. [j. g.] Ernie Pannell, a member of the 1941 All-Star squad and Green Bay tackle, who is on leave after 18 months on a P-T boat in South Pacific.

Green Bay's seven victories, which won the western championship, were at the expense of Brooklyn, Bears, and Card-Pitts in single games, and double triumphs over Cleveland and Detroit. The Bears and Giants defeated the Packers.

DADS WILL MEET TONIGHT TO PLAN NEW TRIER FETE

The Dad's club of New Trier High school, whose football team won the Suburban league championship Saturday with a record of five victories and no defeats, will meet tonight in the school auditorium to complete plans for a victory celebration on Dec. 6.

The guest of honor at the celebration will be Coach Walter Aschenbach. Principal speakers will be Harry Stuhldreher, coach at Wisconsin, and Lt. Paul Brown, former Ohio State coach who now is coaching the Great Lakes eleven.

Hunting May Be Necessity but Not in ODT's Book

The office of defense transportation yesterday warned owners of commercial vehicles, including trucks and buses, operating under certificates of war necessity, not to use them to take hunters and their equipment into deer hunting areas. Frank T. Corcoran, district manager, said his office had received many requests for trips to northern Wisconsin but that none would be granted and violators face revocation of certificates or reduction of gasoline allotments.

THIS ONE DIDN'T COUNT

Leonard Barnum (40) of the Naval Air Technical Training center takes a shot which is deflected by Ray Krzoska of Gardiner General hospital in basketball game at Bartlett gymnasium last night. Waiting for rebound are two Naval Air Tech players, Jim Ashe (47) and Charles Andrews (48). The technical center team won, 80 to 41.

Sailors Win, 80-41

The basketball team from the Naval Air Technical Training center on 87th st. defeated the Gardiner General hospital quintet, 80 to 41, in a Midwest Service Men's league game yesterday in Bartlett gymnasium at the University of Chicago. It was the first league game for the Gardiner team.

The scoring leaders were Jim Ashe of the winners, with 25 points, and Ray Krzoska of the losers, with 13.

U. OF C. WINS, 50-47.

The University of Chicago Navy basketball team scored three points in the last 17 seconds of overtime to defeat the Great Lakes Negro Varsity, 50 to 47, in a Midwest Service-men's league game last night in the Great Lakes fieldhouse. Bill Beaterman, center on Chicago Navy, was the leading scorer with 18 points.

WILLIAMS GAINS UPSET VICTORY OVER MERRITT

James Williams, south side heavyweight, was given a split decision over Dan Merritt of Cleveland in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens last night. The crowd of 1,344, which contributed to a gross gate of $2,782, booed because of lack of action until the last round, when Williams scored two knockdowns.

Ted Christie, New York junior lightweight, stopped Chief Red Cloud of Detroit in the fourth round of a scheduled eight round secondary feature. It was Ted's first start since he broke his hand last August.

Benton Cobbins, Cincinnati junior welterweight, beat Walter Holba of Milwaukee and Robert Fowler, Nashville, Tenn., defeated Jimmy Sherron, Indianapolis, in six round contests. Al Sheridan, Indianapolis heavyweight, beat Johnny Copeland of Detroit in a four round opener.

PLOCH BOWLS PERFECT GAME FOR KEELEYS

Harold Ploch, anchor man for the Keeley Beer team, bowled a perfect game of 300 in putting together a 712 series in the North End Traveling league last night. His other games were 201 and 211. Despite Ploch's great efforts, Chapin & Gore carried off team honors with a high series of 3,217 as a wave of high scoring swept the league.

SERVICE TEAMS MEET.

Touch football teams from Gardiner General hospital and Fort Sheridan will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon at 48th st. and the lake for the championship of group 2, 6th service command.

Woods Opens Drills for Bout with Costner

Sgt. Lou Woods, 153 pound boxer of Fort Sheridan and Detroit, opened training yesterday in Ringside loop gymnasium for his eight round bout against George Costner of Cincinnati in Chicago Stadium Friday.

Lou, who appeared in fine form, expects to snap Costner's string of victories, which include four knockouts in a row, three in Chicago and one in Indianapolis.

Costner was forced to confine himself to light loosening up exercises because of a lack of sparmates. He went four rounds with Robert Earl on Sunday, but yesterday the latter preferred working with Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, who is paired with Johnny Bratton in one of five other matches of eight rounds on the card.

Earl Unbeaten This Year.

Ace Miller, Los Angeles lightweight, will arrive today for his contest against Earl, former city Golden Gloves 135 pound champion. Miller, who beat Dave Bruce and Robert Fowler in recent Chicago appearances, will be seeking to deal Earl his first defeat of the year. In nine contests, Earl has won eight and fought one draw.

Elmer Ray, Los Angeles heavyweight, who knocked out Bill Petersen on the Ray [Sugar] Robinson-Woods program in the Stadium last month, sparred with Hubert Hood yesterday for his encounter with Claudio Villar, who will reach town tomorrow from New York.

Louis to Arrive Tomorrow.

Sgt. Joe Louis also will arrive tomorrow for a three round exhibition on this card against Dan Merritt. This is the third so called exhibition for Chicago since boxing was legalized in Illinois in 1926. In the previous ones Max Baer knocked out King Levinsky and Levinsky was given a newspaper decision over Jack Dempsey.

The Illinois Athletic commission yesterday handed Mayon Padlo a six months' suspension for his refusal to meet Costner Friday. In announcing the ban, which will hold in all National Boxing association territory, Sheldon Clark, commission chairman, said Woods' substitution for the Philadelphia boxer against Costner makes the program more attractive.

Pheasants Can Breathe Easy—but Not Ducks

BY BOB BECKER.

The Illinois pheasant season closed yesterday. From now on thru the rest of the late autumn and winter, hunters who have shells will have to be satisfied with the duck and rabbit shooting. So far this season not many duck hunters we've talked to have been satisfied with the waterfowl season.

Unusually warm weather during the early part of the season, a late migration, low water, overshooting on some of the marshes, and gunwise ducks from the grain fields in the north have made it tough for many of the private and day shooting clubs along the Illinois river.

3 Boats Bring in 3 Ducks.

When we were on the river a few days ago we could hear nothing but complaints from most of the duck hunting spots because of the few birds being shot. One club [noted for its good shooting in former years] one day had the experience of three boats bringing in the grand total of three ducks. Another well known club recorded eight ducks as the grand total for a day's shoot by several members. Around Hennepin the boys told us that the big cornfields in their drainage area weren't producing a single bird, whereas in former years the mallards always worked those fields and thus provided shooters with some good sport.

Right now there are about 3,000,000 ducks along the Illinois and the duck shooters are wondering if this is the beginning of the good shooting. There will be another smaller migration of birds during the next few weeks.

Must Regulate Water Level.

After talking to veteran duck hunters, old guides, and the Illinois natural history survey scientists, we're convinced that two or three ways to produce better mallard hunting along the Illinois are: [1] Water levels in marshes will have to be stabilized by small dams and levees because you can't depend on the river to keep the right amount of water in a marsh. [2] Management of marsh foods for the ducks must be practiced. We notice this year that several marshes which combined these two have the finest shooting in years with their stands of millet attracting the ducks. [Clear lake is a good example. Ed Long's marsh above Bath is another.]

A third possible system to improve the mallard hunting is to cut out the half-hour-before-sunrise hunting regulation. This is doing much more harm than good along the Illinois, because once you scare out the mallards before sun up with a good blasting they don't come back. Authentic records of duck kills show that hunters are not getting more mallards by going out early and shooting before sunrise.

LOYOLA PLANS INFORMAL TEAM IN BASKETBALL

Loyola university is scheduling a series of basketball games for the 1944-'45 season with colleges in the Chicagoland area, the Rev. James T. Hussey, S. J., athletic director at the Jesuit institution, said yesterday. Father Hussey stressed that the games are being arranged on an informal basis and there is no intention of arranging a major schedule such as was followed by Loyola university until two years ago when the sport was dropped.

Loyola will be represented by a squad of 10, nine of whom are freshmen. The team is being coached by Alex Wilson, director of the physical education program at the university. Schedule:

Jerry Glynn Returns to Knollwood Club as Pro

Jerry Glynn, the Chicagoan who has been one of the most faithful instructors in the free golf schools conducted annually by THE TRIBUNE, yesterday announced that he will leave his post as professional at the Park Ridge Country club to return to his old job at the Knollwood club in Lake Forest. Before coming to Park Ridge in 1943, Glynn had spent eight years at Olympia Fields and six at Knollwood.

Politics or Poetry.

For months now, I've been playing politics,
I've had it with my breakfast, lunch, and dinner,
And fiery discussions all the time,
On who would be the Presidential winner.

Now, woe is me!—much precious time I've wasted,
I've lost some faith in things, in this campaign;
So now I'll take my pen—consult my muse,
And try to be a poet once again.

'45 Contract for Madigan Still in Air

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 20 [Special].—Iowa's battered football players rested today while Coach Edward [Slip] Madigan attended a meeting of the athletic committee in regard to his returning as Iowa coach next season. However, the issue was not settled as Madigan temporarily closed the discussion as to whether he would or would not return by stating "I haven't reached any decision on the matter and don't expect to until about the middle of January."

It was Madigan's contention a day of rest would be more beneficial to the bruised players than a practice session, but he plans to open defense work tomorrow in preparation for the final contest with the Iowa Seahawks Saturday.

Dick Woodard, right half back, further injured his leg; Jack Kelso's ankle injury was aggravated in the Minnesota game, and Full Back Jim Hansen still cannot run well.

PHILLIPS IS RELEASED.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20 [AP].—Bill Phillips, public relations director of the Phillies for the last six years, has been notified of his release effective Dec. 15.

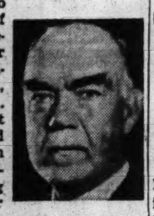
HIGHWAY FUND DIVERSIONS HIT BY MOTOR CLUB

Illinois and Indiana Campaign Begins.

The Chicago Motor club has launched a vigorous campaign to put an end to the diversion of highway revenues to other purposes in Illinois and Indiana, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, told the American Automobile association meeting in the Palmer House yesterday.



Charles M. Hayes.

"By 1945 Illinois will have diverted 89 million dollars of highway funds for purposes other than road building," Hayes said in calling for improved roads and renewed opposition to spending road moneys for schools, relief, and other general purposes.

Large Sums Diverted in Illinois.

"In Illinois diversion has been especially high. Since 1933 large sums were diverted for school purposes and relief. Diversion for school purposes ended in 1940 after more than 22 million dollars of motorists' tax funds had been used."

Hayes said the Indiana and Illinois campaigns would be supported by trade, labor, civic, and agricultural organizations, and asserted that similar efforts were necessary.

"Other states also are offenders," he said. "In 1942, 204 million dollars in state highway taxes were diverted to nonhighway purposes. States contributing about 90 per cent to the diversion figures were Florida, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, and Wisconsin.

Urges Ban on Misuse of Funds.

"All of us must do what has been done in many states, and that is to stop diversion by amending state constitutions to prohibit the misuse of motorists' tax funds. In Illinois and Indiana it will be necessary for the state legislature to pass a resolution which then must go to a general election for a vote."

Reviewing road construction needs, Hayes said that even before the war highways needed improvements, and that this condition was aggravated by the stoppage of new construction and heavier traffic.

"Thus in the post-war era our states are faced with the problem of catching up on suspended construction, reduced maintenance, and creating a system of modern highway construction that will take care of highway transportation of the future which we all are certain will greatly exceed pre-war traffic," he said.

Emphasizes Safety Factors.

Hayes said new construction should emphasize such safety factors as primary trunk roads, boulevard type highways, and modern lighting for night driving.

Reporting statistics provided by the emergency road service division, the association said tire failures again topped the list in 1943 service calls, but the number was less than in 1942. Carburetor trouble calls trebled, from 498,000 in 1942 to 1,576,000 in 1943, and wrecker crane service trips climbed from 851,000 to 1,199,000. Battery trouble was about as frequent as in 1942, but starter and ignition difficulty was less.

DELAY LINCOLN SUIT AGAINST REPRICING LAW

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Trial of the Lincoln Electric company suit to prevent government collection of alleged excess profits has been postponed indefinitely. The suit challenges the constitutionality of the war contract renegotiation act, under which Lincoln was billed for $3,250,000 as excess profits.

A three judge District court ordered the case to trial on its merits. The trial was postponed from Sept. 27 to today and then put off indefinitely, while the court considers other cases.

Corn Pickers, Last Farm Item, Taken Off Rationing

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Termination of rationing and distribution control over corn pickers, the last item remaining on the farm machinery ration list, was announced today by the war food administration. All other items were removed from the ration list on Sept. 28.

Civilian Light Truck Output Is Authorized

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Production of light trucks for civilian use, suspended early in 1942, will be resumed in January, the office of defense transportation said today. Production will be at the rate of 10,000 each three months. Farmers ordinarily purchase more than half of the light truck output.

The supply of steel and other materials for domestic transportation will be larger in the first quarter of 1945 than in the last quarter of 1944, ODT said.

WPB Trims Allotment.

The domestic transportation industry has been allocated 1,254,838 tons of carbon steel in the January, February, March quarter, compared with 1,039,100 tons in the final quarter of 1944. ODT had asked the war production board for an allotment of 1,585,847 tons.

Of the allotment, 507,000 tons will be used by the railroads for replacement rails.

ODT said materials will be available for 2,300 box cars for delivery in the second quarter of 1945. Railroads must place their orders by Dec. 1.

Add Quota for Auto Parts.

Another 155,000 tons of carbon steel will be available for automotive replacement parts, the largest allotment since the start of the war. Materials also will be available for 105 passenger train cars, chiefly day coaches, now on order. ODT said a program calling for 250 cars a quarter would be started as soon as governmental authorities had approved the man power requirements.

50 MILLION NAVY MUNITIONS BILL IS INTRODUCED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—A 50 million dollar appropriation to boost naval munitions production was requested in legislation introduced today by Chairman Vinson [D., Ga.] of the house naval affairs committee. Chairman Walsh [D., Mass.] of the senate naval committee said he would introduce similar legislation tomorrow.

Vinson said the funds were needed for "necessary tools, equipment, and facilities for the manufacture or production of ordnance material, munitions, and equipment." Walsh said the bill was requested by the navy which said it proposed no additional projects at present, but wished to be in a position "to meet the challenge of new developments as they appear."

Walsh said he would offer a second bill removing the present limitation of 7,200 on the personnel of the naval reserve officers' training corps.

DRUG STORE SALES MOUNT; COSMETICS, VITAMINS ARE HELPS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Retail drug stores, less hampered by war time merchandise shortages than many other retailers, will sell 2.8 billion dollars worth of goods this year, the department of commerce estimated today, a gain of eight per cent above last year's 2.59 billion dollars and 79 per cent above the 1939 total of 1.56 billions.

Experts of the department said no important shortages of retail prescription supplies have occurred during the war. The volume of prescriptions has increased substantially. With more women in jobs, they bought more cosmetics, which have remained in good supply.

Another index has been "the sharp rise in the demand for vitamin products as the result of effective advertising and increased awareness of the need for health protective measures in time of war."

The corner drug store has branched out into even more fields than before, the department said. Druggists found it possible to substitute new lines, such as books, glassware, and leather goods, for merchandise no longer available.

PREDICTS U. S. WILL USE OWN SHIPS IN PEACE

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Basil Harris, president of the United States Lines, today said that the post-war policy of the United States would be directed toward carrying half of its foreign trade in its own merchant ships.

"That policy should not alarm British shipping men," Harris told the foreign marketing group of the American Marketing association, because he was sure that "the soundest thinkers among British shipping and foreign trade" realized trade would be greatly increased after the war.

He defended government subsidies to American shipbuilders, "solely to equalize labor costs all around the world."

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP).—Severe worm damage since Oct. 1 has cut the 1944 Illinois commercial apple crop 11 per cent. Only 2,418,000 bushels, smallest yield since 1938, were reported today by the state and federal agricultural departments. Last year 2,790,000 bushels were harvested.

Test Validity of Arrest for A. & P. Trial

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Federal District Judge Vincent L. Leibell reserved decision today on a petition by Carl Byoir, press agent, to sustain a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his removal to Illinois for trial on a charge of conspiracy to violate the anti-trust laws.

Byoir's attorney said his client was arrested by arrangement with the government in an effort to test the validity of his arrest. The writ then was issued by Federal Judge John C. Knox.

Named with A. & P.

A criminal information was filed in Danville, Ill., federal District court Feb. 26 against the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, 11 affiliates, 16 officers, Byoir, and Business Organization, Inc., which he heads and which acted as public relations counsel to the A. & P. companies.

The information charged they conspired to violate the anti-trust laws in connection with the manufacture, buying, and selling of food and food products.

Indictment Nolle Prossed.

A criminal indictment, naming the same defendants, was nolle prossed in the Dallas, Tex., federal District court Feb. 26 after the 5th United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the indictment was defective with respect to Byoir and Business Organization, Inc.

Byoir's attorney contended the Illinois information was worded almost exactly as was the Texas indictment and that no substantial change had been made. Thus prosecution might subject his client to double jeopardy, he said.

TRADE PARLEY ONLY A START, SAYS BENNETT

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Peter Bennett, one of the chairmen of the United Kingdom delegation, today termed the international business conference at Rye, N. Y., "a success," but only a start toward international coöperation.

Addressing a farewell luncheon of delegates from 52 nations in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, Bennett said that tho many differences of opinion were expressed and "no awkward subjects" avoided, the differences were chiefly those of emphasis; America dealing "in black and white" while British views were "gray . . . and not so sharply defined."

Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the conference reception committee, called for adjustment of trade barriers as an aid to world trade, saying it would raise standards of living thruout the world.

UTILITY OFFERS PLAN DISSOLVING ITS PARENT FIRM

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—Illinois Power company today filed with the securities and exchange commission a plan for the liquidation and dissolution of its parent, the North American Light and Power company.

The plan proposes to settle more than 26 million dollars in claims which Illinois Power contends are owing to it due to alleged mismanagement on the part of the parent. All rights of North American thru debentures and stock ownership would be subordinated to the claims of Illinois Power and to the rights of the public holders of North American Light and Power stock.

EIGHT OVERAGE LAKE STEAMERS PUT UP FOR SALE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Eight overage Great Lakes steamers were offered for sale for cash today by the maritime commission.

The oil-burning vessels, ranging in age from 41 to 47 years, recently were turned over to the commission by the war shipping administrator. Bids will be received until Dec. 7.

Bidders must agree to operate the vessels as stationary units or dismantle and scrap them. They may be operated only for one outward voyage, with or without cargo.

HIGHER WAGES, FROZEN PRICES TO TRIM PROFIT

Death of Little Steel Formula Expected.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Altho labor is confident that the administration soon will revise the Little Steel formula to permit upward adjustment in wage rates there is no prospect that compensating price increases will be allowed to manufacturers. With wages rising and prices frozen, a trimming of corporation profit margins is predicted.

The expectation that the Little Steel formula will be discarded is based on the report made last week to the President by a committee headed by Chairman Davis of the war labor board. The committee reported that living costs rose 30 per cent between Jan. 1, 1941, and September of this year. [The CIO member of the committee insisted that the rise exceeded 44 per cent.]

Based on Earlier Findings.

The Little Steel formula, limiting wage increases to 15 per cent, was based on earlier findings that the cost of living had increased 15 per cent between January, 1941, and May, 1942.

As a result of the new report the President is expected to act soon to establish a new formula that will permit increases in wages from present levels. Thus labor is expected to get pay raises in advance of the war's end.

Not only would increases be permitted, but labor also hopes to have all controls on wages removed as soon as possible. Labor's enhanced political strength is counted on to bring about cancellation of the wage controls immediately at the end of the war.

On the other hand, administration spokesmen are explicit in their statements that price control will be extended. Furthermore, the office of price administration is taking a "hard boiled" attitude toward applications for price increases.

Bowles' View Unmistakable.

This policy was put in unmistakable language by OPA Administrator Bowles in a speech in Boston Nov. 16. He said:

"We will hold manufacturers' prices at or close to early 1942 levels. We will allow price increases to the manufacturer only when really necessary to secure full production and a reasonable profit. When such price increases are necessary, we will ordinarily expect them to be absorbed to a reasonable degree by the distributive trades—just as our manufacturers from the earliest days of the war have absorbed cost increases in the factories."

It is considered certain in Washington, D. C., that the price control act, which expires June 30, will be extended. It also is forecast that business will get no tax relief in 1945.

These factors, together with the prospect that wage earners will get higher pay and that wage controls will be ended in advance of price controls, indicate lower business profits.

PREDICTS EARLY ACTION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Chairman Davis of the war labor board said tonight that he hoped for a decision this week on CIO Steel Workers' union wage demands.

One source close to the board—not Davis—said that in his opinion the union may get 5 or 10 cents an hour, rather than the full 17½ cents demanded. Davis, however, said that any talk now of what the decision would contain would be "pure speculation."

The other source, discussing action as probable "before the end of the present CIO convention in Chicago," mentioned a partial award to cover shift differentials, "inequities," and other situations in that class, rather than a straight time raise.

Seek Rail Passenger Comfort; Diesels Fail to Trip Iron Horse

Baggage Thru Car Side

Sundry proposals for designing railroad equipment to improve the passenger's ride, ranging from elimination of track noises to movement of baggage thru car sidewalls to speed unloading and end aisle congestion, were made last night by Otto A. Kuhler, design engineer of the American Car and Foundry company. Car builders are striving toward these ends, he said.

Otto A. Kuhler.

Speaking to the Western Railway club in the Hotel Sherman, Kuhler asserted that in 1928 the only visible improvement offered to the public in the preceding 20 years had been the "slot where you drop the razor blades."

Won't Be "Purring Box Car."

First on his list of predictions was that the power units of diesel locomotives would become so large they would reach clearance limits and leave no room for the box car type of housing. With the diesel motor thus exposed, it would not be a "purring box car," but have a character of its own like the steam locomotive.

For better visibility and natural lighting, he recommended not only larger windows but transparent window posts, perhaps constructed of modern glass and plastics.

Emphasis Placed on Comfort.

Additional comforts can be provided thru heated car floors which will eliminate heater ducts and create even heat thru absence of forced circulation; air conditioning and heating extended to watertight and airtight vestibules and passageways, and better designed seats, he said.

Kuhler urged "good interior lighting" to provide continuous tubular light whose source is "invisible." This would be achieved thru fluorescent lighting housed in specially designed fixtures.

He also said lounges should be more attractively designed and each should contain a couch where the passenger can really "lounge"—or lie down if ill.

Rely Heavily on Steam

Altho railroads in the last 10 years have become more diesel minded in respect to both passenger and freight locomotives, the steam driven "iron horse" is more than holding its own, railroad men said yesterday.

Several railroads have announced post-war plans for more streamlined trains, powered by diesel locomotives, but large orders also have been placed for steam locomotives.

One example of a railroad which still is relying heavily on steam engines is the Santa Fe, one of the pioneers in diesels. It has placed in service in the last two years 55 steam engines made by the Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Denote Wheel Arrangement.

Of these 30 were of the 4-8-4 type, and the remaining 25 of the 2-10-4 type, the figures denoting the wheel arrangements. Under the 4-8-4 type engine, for example, there are four pony truck wheels in front, eight drive wheels, and four engine truck wheels on the rear.

Including the newest engines, the Santa Fe on Sept. 1 had in operation 315 steam passenger locomotives and 1,041 steam freight locomotives, compared with 15 diesel passenger engines and 52 diesel freight engines, with more in each category to be put into service as received from manufacturers.

In general dimensions the 55 newer engines built by Baldwin are similar to older Santa Fe locomotives, but in each case there was a thoro revision of design, partly a result of uses of substitute materials. They are among the heaviest of their respective types ever built.

Foot Warmers in Cabs.

The Santa Fe has in service 61 locomotives of the 4-8-4 type with driving wheels 80 inches in diameter, and has been using engines with five pairs of drivers for more than 40 years. The cabs of both the 4-8-4 and the 2-10-4 types of locomotives are provided with two extra seats and with individual radiators and foot warmers. Equipment for train heating also is applied, so that both types can be used in either passenger or freight service.

Their tenders have capacity for 25,000 gallons of water and 7,000 gallons of oil. The frames are of the cast steel water bottom type, so arranged that stokers can subsequently be applied should it be necessary to change to coal fuel.

INDICTMENT CHARGES STEWART-WARNER, 6 PERSONS WITH FRAUD

New Orleans, La., Nov. 20 (AP).—The government charged fraud in connection with war contracts against the Stewart-Warner corporation, Chicago, and six individuals in indictments returned secretly by two federal grand juries Saturday and made public today.

Stewart-Warner and two individuals were named in an indictment drawn at the May term of the grand jury in connection with New Orleans contracts of Consolidated-Vultee corporation. Others were named in true bills from the February term of the jury, in connection with contracts held by Higgins Aircraft, Inc.

The indictments alleged fraud in connection with charges for crane service, riggers, and other labor, tractor service and the like, alleging "conspiracy" in making certain rates.

Individuals indicted included Charles B. Stritzel, as traffic superintendent of Consolidated-Vultee; George L. Meyer Jr., vice president of Stewart-Warner, and Joseph N. Edwards of New Orleans, said to be a representative of Stewart-Warner.

Officials of Stewart-Warner last night had no comment on the indictment, awaiting details of the charges.

EXPECTS TRUST SUIT TO AFFECT RAILROAD RATES

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20 [Special].—The apparent disposition of certain government agencies, especially the department of justice, to interfere with long established methods of rate making may effect changes in railroad rates and service, Roy B. White, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, today told stockholders at the company's annual meeting.

The railroad freight rates are established subject to approval by the interstate commerce commission, this trend is shown by the anti-trust suit brought by the department of justice against the Western Railroad association, the Association of American Railroads, and the officers and directors of these associations, he said.

"Altho detailed discussion of the suit would hardly be proper here," White said, "I bring this to your attention because of the implications and possible effect upon railroad rates, and indeed, upon railroad transportation generally, should the department of justice succeed in obtaining a decree dissolving the Association of American Railroads and interfering with its important and effective work."

White estimated that gross revenues in 1944 would be $388,338,600, an increase of $30,196,400 over 1943, but that net income would decrease about 8 million dollars as a result of increased taxes. He said that the 1943 profit of $30,509,480 was $14,814,116 below 1942 profit.

STOCK MARKET ENDS HIGHER IN SLOW SESSION

Some Issues Aided by Short Covering.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—A little short covering and investment bidding helped the stock market advance today. Except for scattered climbers the market was narrow from the start and dealings slow. Activity picked up a bit in the final hour when rails and steels stiffened and assorted specialties turned upward. Declines were plentiful at the close, but advances of fractions to a point or more were larger in number.

Dividends and earnings remained as the principal bullish stimulant. Individual situations inspired some purchasing. Many customers stood aside to await the usual year end tax selling, the fate of the Little Steel wage formula, and developments on the western front.

60 Stock Average Gains.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.2 at 54.8, the widest advance since Nov. 2. Of 803 issues traded 374 advanced, 215 declined, and 214 were unchanged. Transfers were 691,840 shares, smallest for a full session since Oct. 31, compared with 705,660 Friday.

The $6 and $7 preferred issues of Standard Gas, in belated recognition of last week's recapitalization approval by the securities and exchange commission, rose 1¼ and 2½ points respectively to 1944 peaks. Loew's reached a 1944 high, but encountered profit selling and finished at a net loss of ⅛.

RAILS LEAD BONDS HIGHER.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP). — Led by rails and industrial specialties, the bond market moved up over a broad range today. Advances were small fractions to a point or in numerous cases 2 and 3 against only minor losses in major groups. Each department of the Associated Press averages ended up 0.1 with the rails at a new high since 1937. Sales were $9,960,900 compared with $8,158,600 Friday.

United States government loans were inactive as the investment trade plunged into the sixth war loan drive and, if precedent is followed, activity will be light until the treasury has met its 14 billion dollar goal.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in sales of 26,000 shares. Heavily traded issues included Chicago corporation and Commonwealth Edison, both unchanged; Belmont Radio, which rose 1¼ to a new 1944 high of 13½; and La Salle Extension and Cities Service, each up ¼. Continental Steel advanced ¼ to a new 1944 peak of 29. Arrangements were made for the sale of an exchange membership at $4,500, the same price as was paid last week which was highest since May, 1936.

Philco Earnings Increase; Shipments Gain 52 Pct.

Philco corporation yesterday reported increased profits in the first nine months of 1944 of $2,898,425, or $2.11 a share, compared with $2,445,034, or $1.78, a year earlier. Shipments of radar and other electronic equipment in the period rose 52 per cent.

FOOD SURPLUSES TO PLAGUE U. S., HOPE PREDICTS

Kansan Asserts 2 Price System Needed.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Rep. Hope [R., Kas.] estimated today that post-war food consumption would be no more than 85 per cent of present consumption and said, "We are deluding ourselves if we think we will not be plagued with surplus problems after the war."

Clifford R. Hope.

Speaking at the Grocery Manufacturers of America convention, Hope advocated use of a "two price system," which he explained as having one price for farm goods sold for domestic consumption and a lower price for farm goods sold for export or for industrial uses, both guaranteed by the government.

"If we can meet foreign competition from the standpoint of price and if our government will exercise the economic power which it will have at the end of the war, we can find some export outlets for agricultural products," the congressman said.

Earlier, Lee Marshall, director of the office of distribution, war food administration, told the convention that when the war in Europe ends the WFA would cancel "every restriction that doesn't bear directly on beating Japan." He said 23 million dollars worth of food no longer needed for war orders had been sold in the last six months.

Commenting that "some people seem to have the idea that the government is selling cheap," Marshall said, "all foods in good condition are offered at ceiling prices, less normal trade discounts."

Sales of "off condition" goods might have created the false rumors of "bargain prices," tho spoilage losses amounted to "less than two one-hundredths of one per cent," he said.

POLLED SHORTHORN CATTLE SALE SETS RECORD: $816 A HEAD

Columbus, O., Nov. 20 (AP).— C. K. Tomson, secretary of the American Shorthorn Breeders association, said an all-time record was set today when 49 head of polled Shorthorn cattle sold for $40,000, an average of $816 a head.

The sale, held on a farm operated by C. B. Teegardin and his son Paul at near-by Ashville, produced a top price of $3,000, paid by E. Killian of New South Wales, Australia, for a 14 month old bull calf, Oakwood Union Jack.

The highest price heifer was 73d Dutchess of Glouster, purchased by the Cherry Hill farm of Baltimore, Md., for $2,100.

'STRETCH' STEEL IN ROLLING MILL TO GET QUALITY

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—United Engineering and Foundry company today announced development of a rolling mill unit which uses a stretching process to obtain high quality strip steel of the temper, hardness and ductility wanted.

Developed in coöperation with Republic Steel corporation at its Niles, Ohio, plant and in full operation, the mill handles 2,500 to 3,000 feet of strip steel a minute.

Named the "unitemper mill" by its designer, the machine was designed to meet requests of can manufacturers for a tin plate of increased temper and hardness combined with satisfactory ductility and flatness for fabrication. The steel produced can be used not only for tin plate, but also for auto body sheets, furniture sheets, stainless steel panels and other strip mill items.

Burlington Will Expand Telephone and Teletype

Installation of additional telephone and teletype facilities to cost approximately $690,000 will be started immediately by the Burlington road to meet present war time demands and in anticipation of increased military traffic to the Pacific coast, Edward Flynn, vice president, announced yesterday. The additional facilities will provide the railroad 6,000 miles of new telephone channels and 15,000 miles of new teletype channels.

HOG RECEIPTS INCREASE AND PRICES SOFTEN

The second largest hog receipts in five months were bought quickly at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. Prices were steady to 15 cents lower. The range was as narrow as at any time since October, 1943, when virtually the entire market was frozen at the one-price ceiling of $14.75 a hundred pounds.

More than 85 per cent of offerings sold either at the $14.25 top price, or within 10 cents of it. The average was 10 cents lower at $14.15. Almost all good 190 to 270 pound hogs sold 10 to 15 cents lower at $14.15 to $14.25. Butchers weighing more than 270 pounds again sold at $14. Sows were steady to 10 cents lower.

Other markets were steady. The top price for steers at $18.50 equaled last week's high, but most sales were made at $14 to $18. A few lambs sold 15 to 25 cents lower near the close. The $14.70 top was paid for natives.

GRAINS MOSTLY LOWER THO CORN CLOSE IS MIXED

Corn developed independent strength in the early trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, December advancing ⅞ cent to $1.09⅞ a bushel, or 4½ cents above the low of last week as the result of a drop in purchases of cash corn for deferred shipment from the country and reports that the government loan on the 1944 crop would provide increased farm storage rates on grain held in cribs until next summer. Weakness in rye increased selling on the upturn and the close in corn was ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

General selling led by a cash house developed in rye and prices were off 1⅜ cents at one time with the close ⅝ to 1¼ cents lower. Wheat was dull and ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower, oats ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower, and barley ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower on the active deliveries.

Class 1 Rail Operating Revenues Show Gain

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Operating revenues of class 1 railroads in October today were estimated at $656,119,787, compared with $647,059,168 in October, 1943, by the Association of American Railroads. Estimated passenger revenue in October was $118,320,233, against $117,904,471.

PROVIDE FLOOD CONTROL POWER SALE AT DAMS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (AP).—Public power to be developed under a billion dollar flood control bill would be sold primarily at the dam under an amendment approved today by the senate commerce committee. Under the original draft, the secretary of the interior would have been authorized to build transmission lines to dispose of power from the 20 or more multiple purpose dams planned for post-war construction.

The amendment would permit construction of such lines only if "90 per cent of the firm power produced shall not be demanded or purchased within three years after completion of the generating facilities."

Savings resulting from use of public power by distributing companies must be passed on to the consuming public, the amendment provides. It would permit states where the dams are located to tax the power production facilities, but the states may not appraise, for taxing purposes, that part of capital investment required for flood control purposes.

INVESTING FIRM WILL PAY $29.25; 1944 TOTAL $95.25

Christiana Securities company, investing company holding principally stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and General Motors corporation, yesterday declared a dividend of $29.25, which brought total 1944 payments to $95.25, compared with $75.50 in 1943.

The Lambert company voted an extra dividend of 50 cents, the same as was paid last December. Missouri Kansas Pipe Line company authorized a special dividend of 25 cents. It paid 30 cents last September and 10 cents in October, 1943.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. voted a year end dividend of $1.50, making total 1944 payments $5.25, compared with $4.25 a year ago. Bucyrus-Erie company voted a dividend of 25 cents, which brought the 1944 total to 70 cents, against 60 cents in 1943.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP).—Business in cotton textiles was stalemated today by the lack of new offerings from mills. Activity centered on meeting heavy war requirements for all types of constructions.

Converters actively sought additional wool goods without success, reflecting the tight supply situation in the market because of heavy army procurement of both woolens and worsteds. The rayon goods market was dull. Mills were making only routine allotments to converters.

COLGATE-PALMOLIVE.

Please inform me regarding the trend of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company's sales and earnings.

N. E.

Soap business has increased during the war, partly as a result of larger industrial consumption. Colgate-Palmolive-Peet dollar sales have risen each year since 1940, after a decline in that year compared with 1939. Altho the reported volume subsequent to 1940 has excluded subsidiaries and branch offices outside the western hemisphere, the $134,951,000 net sales in 1943 were highest in the company's history. Consolidated sales from 1930 thru 1938 had been less than 100 million dollars each year.

A further gain in sales was shown in the first half of 1944, when they amounted to $79,154,000, compared with $67,543,000 a year ago. In 1943, the exemption of oils and fats in products for the military services more than offset restrictions on their use for civilian products, the company said.

Altho profits are more stable than in distinctly cyclical industries, soap earnings are subject to fluctuations, in which changes in raw material prices are often an important factor. Colgate's net income per share on the 1,962,807 common shares has been as follows: 1943, $3.10; 1942, $2.47; 1941, $3.09; 1940, $1.85; 1939, $2.67. In 1937, poorest year of the last decade, preferred dividend requirements were not fully earned.

Common dividends subsequent to 1938 have ranged from $1 to $1.50 a share a year. Net working capital has increased from $32,688,000 as of Dec. 31, 1939, to $50,712,000 on June 30, 1944.

HAY MARKET.

Timothy No. 1 light clover in alfalfa mixed, $30.000: No. 2, $28.00@29.00; alfalfa, $31.00@32.00; No. 2 and 3 clover, $27.00@28.50; rye straw, $15.00 per ton in carlots.
